STEEPLEJACK HAD A FALL

EX-PRIVATE W. J. PLACE FELL
DISTANCE OF SIXTY FEET
ON SUNDAY.

Was Engaged in Painting Smoke-stack of City's Incinerator—Had Miraculous Escape, as No Bones Were Broken, But Suffered From Shaking Up.

Ex-Private W. J. Place, who since the war has been occupied as a steeplejack, sustained a bad fall on Sunday morning from a height of sixty feet.

He had been engaged to paint the smoke stack at the incinerator, and as the fires in the furnaces were only drawn on Sundays, he arranged to paint the stack on Sunday morning.

Before starting his work he tested the staves and satisfied himself regarding the strength of the ropes and tackle to be used. After he had taken his seat the helpers started to raise him to the top of the chimney, where he planned to fasten his apparatus that would enable him to paint from the top down. When he was raised about sixty feet the wire cable broke and he fell, landing on the iron roof of the building.

Dr. I. G. Bogart was called, and had him conveyed to the Hotel Dieu in S. S. Corbett's motor ambulance. Upon examination it was found that no bones were broken, and he suffered no injury beyond the shake-up due to his fall. Dr. Bogart said he would soon be all right. Mr. Place had contracted to paint the Kingston Laundry smokestack also.
