MILK PRICE MAY JUMP TO 16 CENTS A QUART

The Producers Fix $4 a Hundred Pounds as the Winter Price.

Lower cost of living? Not on your life! According to an announcement made by the Kingston District Milk Producers' Association, which met on Saturday afternoon, next winter's milk is to be $4 a hundredweight. That will mean that the local milk retailers will have to charge about sixteen cents a quart after the 1st of October. At present the retailers pay $2.50 a hundredweight and sell the milk at eleven cents a quart. Last winter the producers sold their milk at $3 a hundred pounds and the retail price was thirteen cents a quart. Next winter, therefore, will see a record price for milk and the infants of poor families will be the chief ones to suffer. The high price of feed is to blame for the increase in the price, but whether $4 a hundred pounds is too much for the producers to charge will no doubt be ascertained later on by the city council, which has the power to appoint a commission to make an investigation.
