URGE GREATEST EFFORT

BY GOVERNMENT TO SOLVE HIGH COST OF LIVING.

A Strong Resolution Passed By the Union of Canadian Municipalities On Wednesday Evening.

A lively tilt developed at the meeting of the Union of Canadian Municipalities in the City Hall on Wednesday evening when Dr. J. W. Edwards, M.P. for Frontenac, came into direct conflict with Mayor Hardie of Lethbridge and into indirect conflict with Hon. A. G. Mackay, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Alberta.

In a hot discussion over the cost of living, Mayor Hardie insisted that Premier Borden had not done all that might have been expected of him to alleviate conditions arising out of the high cost of living.

In an instant Dr. Edwards was on his feet endeavoring to assist the gentleman from Alberta for his aspersions. He claimed that the prime minister, despite an onerous burden of other duties, was fully cognizant of the conditions resulting from the high cost of living and the member pointed out the great amount of remedial legislation passed at the last session and which was now getting into operation.

His remarks were interrupted with amusing frequency by interjections from Hon. Mr. Mackay, who has tried to the currying favor of a man in the convention, who wants something accomplished to the point and who is not afraid to ask for it.

Mr. Mackay reiterated his demand that Dr. McPaul, Cost of Living Commissioner, should be forced to forward the facts on which he bases his reports to the attorney-generals of the province who might take action upon them, and ultimately he had a clause inserted in a resolution to be forwarded to the Government.

Incidentally Dr. Edwards, who left the hall after his encounter with the westerners, claimed that no good could be accomplished from the resolution as it only advocated the establishment of machinery which was already in operation and that it showed a surprising lack of knowledge of the legislation of last session.

However, the resolution was passed in the following form with only three dissenting voices:

The Resolution.

"Whereas the investigations of the Committee of the House of Commons has adequately proven the popular allegation that profiteering existed in the handling of the necessities of life;

"Be it resolved that the U. C. M. speaking for the citizens of their communities urge that the greatest efforts be made by both parties to solve this pressing question without delay in view of the great hardships resulting to the common people and the bitter and dangerous feelings in evidence towards the classes and individuals thought to be responsible for the same;

"That the machinery provided for investigation by municipalities is cumbersome and unworkable and further that in the opinion of this convention such investigations should be at the cost of the federal Government and further that the Government should see that the new Commerce Court or some other body properly constituted and with an adequate supply of funds should properly investigate the cost and profits in the case of all necessities of life without any delay and where profiteering is found adequate means should be found for the prosecution and punishment of those responsible.

"Further this convention demands that the statements made by Dr. McPaul, if true, be followed by immediate action on the part of the Government.

During the evening the meeting had the opportunity of hearing Clinton Rogers Woodruff, since 1894 the very efficient and capable secretary of the National Municipal League of the United States and a recognized authority on municipal affairs. In a forceful address which was vigorously applauded, Mr. Woodruff urged the very present necessity of strong municipal union not only for the purposes of stable organization and self-protection but also to develop a clearer understanding of the functions of municipal administration in its various ramifications. He recounted the splendid work accomplished by the municipal league of the United States in the past twenty-five years and urged that the Union of Canadian Municipalities perfect their basis in order to be able to confer a lasting benefit upon the municipal governments and the people of the Dominion.

A resolution was also passed widening the classes of those eligible for membership to include municipalities, firms, individuals and associations interested in municipal affairs who shall be associate members.

Resolutions appointing representatives to the forthcoming industrial conference, and on cold storage were referred to the committee on resolutions which sat until after midnight.

Had a Fine Outing.

The delegates to the Canadian Union of Municipalities greatly enjoyed the trip on the steamer Brockville, among the Thousand Islands. They said they had never seen anything so charming and picturesque. The boat went to Gananoque, sailed through many intricate passages and then crossed to Clayton and back to the city. The visitors had five hours on the water.

Mayor Newman, Ald. Corbett, Mills and Litton and civic officials, gave fine attention to the comfort of the party. They arranged for dancing, for refreshments, for social enjoyment and for information regarding the route. Everything in this respect was up to the notch. When Kingston was reached at 7.15 p.m., cheers were given with a gusto for the entertainers.

Frank Mackin, and little daughter Hilda, Aron, New York, who was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Cumming, 259 Brock street, returned home Wednesday by steamer Kingston.

Some contrary people would rather have a pint of trouble than a bushel of happiness.

Never is the weather so bad that the oldest inhabitant can't remember when it was worse.

Letters to the Editor

Present Unrest And Its Solution.

Bollingbrooke, Aug. 11.—(To the Editor): Much has been said and written concerning the high cost of living. Millions have been spent investigating the cause, etc. It has all ended where it started. Wise men learned men and men in authority have frequently asserted that greater production is the only remedy. Talk is cheap, but it takes money to buy whiskey nowadays, and more if you are caught with it. Everyone knows that greater production would certainly effect a cure, according to the law of supply and demand. People are saying one thing and doing the other nowadays.

But one thing is certain: Talking, preaching or writing will never persuade men to willfully work against their own interests. For example, where would you get a farmer who would plough, plant, hoe, bug and dig say ten acres of potatoes just to bring the price down again to fifty cents a bag, when he can make more money off a half-acre at the present price? Men are not built that way. More money with less labor and expense is the order of the day. The farmers are waking up to the idea of regulating the market and creating a demand as well as the manufacturers. Those things are all planned and calculated, and the only people who would do anything are those who have everything to buy and nothing to sell, and one-half of that force of one party and the other half are of the other party, and they would oppose each other if it cost them their lives, and so organized robbery has full sway.

There is a world-wide unrest. Everyone knows there is something wrong; few know just what it is, and less know the remedy. Therefore, there are strikes, riots, rebellions, revolutions, etc., which only make bad matters worse. The trouble is, we are divided by party churches, party politics and party societies, and through those organizations men are elected and put in positions that if they do justice to the public they must work against their own interests. For instance, we elect a politician and he is a manufacturer or has an interest in a manufacturing concern. How can we expect that man to willingly try to put his company to the extra trouble and expense of doubling the output for the purpose of cutting the selling price in two? We are apt to blame the man in the position, but it is not the man in the position so much as the position the man is in. If we expect men to work against their own interests we will get left every time. There is only one remedy and that is not by changing the man in the position, but by changing the position the man is in. What we want, what we must have, is a new foundation, new laws and regulations on the lines of equal rights and privileges. We want laws that will not hold any one above reproach, but will deal justice high and low alike without respect of persons.

We must have a reasonable limit set to all salaries, prices and profits, and a law strictly governing the same in justice to the consumer. Profiteering must become a punishable crime in law as it is in reality. But how are we going to get these things established? It is against the interests of those in authority and position. They may talk what they intend to do; they may start out to investigate and so on, but they will certainly come back to just where they started from and invent some excuse, tell the people just what they know before, take the "ratepayers' money" for their labor and leave everything just as it was before. You see, everyone is kicking about the price they have to pay for what they have to buy, but they dare not do anything for fear that they would not get the big price for what they have to sell. That is the reason that there is no improvement. Our laws have been revised, twisted and turned to suit the people in authority, and seems to be the whole object. If a man has money and a social position, he can defy the law almost to the limit, while the poor man is punished for the smallest offense. The law of supply and demand is one of the worst rules on earth. It gives the "bear and the bull a chance to do their worst; they govern the market to suit themselves.

There is no use for the government to fix the price on one or two articles. That is not fair. The only way is to figure the average cost, then allow a reasonable rate and set a reasonable limit according to a true balance of justice to all salaries. Prices and profits, punish the profiteer as the common thief that he is, and allow nothing to be exported that is needed on the home market. The idea of the farmers paying a man sixty thousand dollars a year, to look after their selling interests, of course at the expense of the consumer, while they kick at five hundred dollars a year for a man to do their work on the farm! Things must be equalized by a law of right and reason. Some say there things cannot be done without revolution. I say they can be done by evolution. If the people interested will only throw nonsense to the wind and swear allegiance to each other for a common cause. There is a right way and a wrong way to do everything, and all the ways and means that have been employed to make better times and better governments have been wrong. There is only one right way, and the people must be interested enough to be willing to bury the blood-stained hatchet of partyism and unite with the one object in view.
