TO TAP RICHES IN AMAZON WILDS

Gold, Fruits and Valuable Woods Reported Abundant in Untouched Areas.

Para, Brazil, Aug. 18.—The ending of the world war has given a new impetus to the work of opening up the great reservoirs of natural wealth from gold to fruits and valuable woods, which lie in the valley of the Amazon.

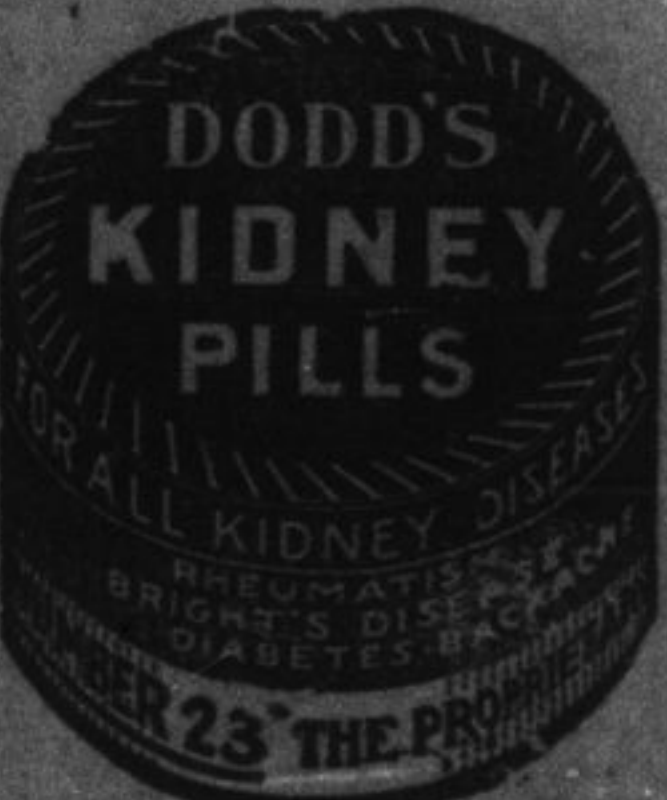

Several expeditions of exploration are being organized here, one of the most important of which is under the direction of Henry S. Fleming of New York, United States customs receiver at Para, who will shortly start on a three months' trip devoted to exploring the commercial possibilities of the vast region watered by the Amazon and its maze of tributaries. Attention is being paid to the sources of the valley which include gold, platinum, oil, titanium, vanadium, aluminum, tin, rare cabinet woods, nuts and apparently inexhaustible supplies of cacao, fibres and kapok.

The banks of the Amazon are inundated for three or four months each year and are said to afford splendid opportunities for the cultivation of sugar cane, mandioca, rice, maize, beans and other agricultural products. Back of the rivers and behind the forest walls there are vast tracts of savannah suitable for cattle raising.
