

WAS WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD

Mrs. Procter Values Taniae Highly—Gains Twenty-five Pounds.

"I just think a medicine that will do as much for a person as Taniae did for me is worth its weight in gold," said Mrs. Sydney Procter, of 524 College street, St. James, Winnipeg, Man., Canada, while in the Light Drug Store in Winnipeg, recently.

"I was so badly run down and weak last winter I was scarcely able to get about," continued Mrs. Procter, "and this awful weakness although I tried all sorts of medicine in the hope of regaining my strength, I wasn't able to do a bit of housework; in fact, it was just about all I could do to move from one chair to another and the condition my stomach was in had a great deal to do with keeping me weak. I didn't have any appetite at all and even the little food I did manage to force down kept me in misery, as it just seemed to lay in my stomach and ferment and cause me awful pain and the gas formed so badly at times my heart palpitated and I could hardly get my breath. Sometimes I had terrible dizzy spells and was so nervous I was easily upset by any sudden noise and I also suffered a lot with headaches and a severe pain right across my back. I hardly knew what a good night's sleep was like but would just lay awake for hours at a time, so restless and nervous that when I got up in the morning I was completely worn out and felt worse than if I had done a hard day's work. That was just the condition I was in following an attack of the 'flu' and none of the medicines I took seemed to do me a particle of good.

"I started taking Taniae because I had heard it highly recommended and it has certainly proved a boon to me. I have already gotten back my lost strength and can do all my housework with ease now. My appetite is fine and my stomach is in such good condition I can eat and enjoy anything I want and never suffer with indigestion, gas or puffing of the heart and don't have any of those awful dizzy spells. I have been entirely relieved of headaches and backaches and my nerves are in such splendid condition that when I go to bed now I fall asleep as soon as my head touches the pillow and I sleep as soundly as a child all night long and get up in the morning feeling bright and refreshed and ready for my housework. When I started taking Taniae I was so thin I don't believe I weighed ninety pounds, but now I weigh something like 115 pounds, having gained about twenty-five pounds in weight and I weigh more than I ever did before in my life. I am certainly glad to recommend and praise Taniae to anyone."

Taniae is sold in Kingston by A. P. Chown, in Plevna by Gilbert Oster, in Battersea by C. S. Clark, in Fernleigh by Edwin Martin, in Ardock by M. J. Scullion, in Sharbot Lake by W. Y. Cannon. —Adv.

GANANOQUE

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Aug. 18.—The government steamer Lookout, formerly the Capt. Viger of Alexandria Bay, N.Y., purchased a few years ago by J. J. Munro, of this town, and recently sold to the Canadian government, has had her upper works remodelled and ran up to Kingston on Saturday afternoon, where she will be inspected and thence proceed to Toronto and will be used as a scout boat in the department of fisheries for service on the upper lakes.

Pte. Gordon Kane, who left here in the fall of 1914 as a member of the 3rd Battalion of the 1st Brigade in the first contingent, and who saw service throughout the entire war, accompanied by his young English bride, arrived in town the latter part of the week and were met and made welcome home by a goodly number. The Gananoque-Clayton ferry steamer Yennek II., which was put out of commission on Aug. 7th, by breaking her clutch, has been repaired and resumed her trips to Clayton on Friday.

There was a large offering of live hogs on the local market on Saturday, all of which was purchased by local buyers at an evening and was broken up in the morning and was conducted by Rev. C. E. Kidd and attracted a large congregation on each occasion. At the morning service, Mrs. (Dr.) E. L. Stedman rendered an excellent solo in fine voice, and after the regular evening service John H. Lord, of Boston, Mass., rendered a fine organ recital.

At the A.C.A. races at Sugar Island on Saturday afternoon, Louis Friede again demonstrated his right to the title of champion canoe sailor of America by winning that event of the race schedule, with Murphy, Britton and Kip following in the order named.

Quite a flurry of excitement was caused at the railway wharf on Saturday afternoon as the steamer Yennek was about to leave on her afternoon trip to Clayton. In taking a horse aboard, the animal dropped dead.

J. J. Bell, principal of Gananoque high school for the past year or more, and who recently resigned that position, has accepted of position of principal in the Streetville high school and he and his wife and family will remove there shortly.

A. C. Hudspeth, accountant on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, is taking charge there for a couple of weeks, relieving the manager, L. S. Barr.

Old Battersea Has Legends

MID the rush of modern life, with its innumerable calls and interests, it comes as a relief at times to glean something of the history of the places that we pass, and of the memories that still linger round many a spot where no fragment of aught more tangible remains.

In the purlieus of Battersea in London, England, where the tram rush through long, drear streets, en route for the more open spaces of Wandsworth, there stands what might be described as a landmark of modern civilization. This is Price's Candle Factory, a huge gray building stretching from York Road to the river, issuing from whose gates, towards evening, may be seen a teeming crowd of humanity, as the hundreds of hands employed there pour out in a never-ending stream.

Few as they pass by are aware that here is the site of two renowned old English manor houses, and also, if tradition be correct, the scene of one of the most famous royal romances of history. Here, in the year 1478 (or 1480, to quote another historian) was erected by one, Lawrence Booth, Bishop of Durham, and afterwards Archbishop of York, York House, a residence assigned for himself and for those who were to come after him, should affairs of state require their presence near the court.

We again find this house mentioned in the year 1563, when Archbishop Holgate was committed to the Tower by Queen Mary, when we are told, that "the officers who were employed to apprehend him rifled York House, and took away from thence, £300 of gold coin, 1,600 ounces of plate, a mitre of plain gold with two pendants set around with very fine pointed diamonds, sapphires and rubis," besides a lengthy list of other valuables.

Again in the year 1680, a letter among the state papers, from Archbishop Sandys to John Wickliffe, "Keeper of the York House" at Battersea, is of interest, wherein the archbishop commands Wickliffe to deliver up the house to the Lords of the Council, "so that it might be turned into a prison for obstinate Papists." Under the Protectorate, York House was leased to Sir Allan Apsley, and his brother-in-law, Col. Hutchinson. It was restored to the see on the return of Charles II, but did not again become an episcopal residence.

Its most interesting legend, however, and one which, though much discredited, is not altogether unsupported by evidence, is that the great Cardinal Wolsey was once in residence at York House, and that there, at a reception given by him, did that world-famed first meeting take place between Henry VIII and Anne Boleyn, which went far to revolutionize history. York House, Whitehall, fiercely contests this point, as does Greenwich Palace, and even the gardens at River Castle, in Kent, lay claim to being the scene of that first act in perhaps the greatest historical drama that was ever played; nevertheless at the old Battersea Manor up to the end of the eighteenth century the room was proudly shown where the meeting was supposed to have taken place.

We Want 25 Used Upright Pianos

Have You a Silent Piano in Your Home or an Old Organ?

Then sell it to us. We will pay cash for it at a reasonable valuation, based upon the date of its manufacture and upon the condition it is in. Or if you prefer, you may accept the figure as so much cash to apply towards the purchase of a Player-Piano, a high-grade Phonograph or another Piano, Grand or Upright.

A modern Player-Piano in its place would bring new life into the home. A Heintzman & Co., or a Lindsay Player-Piano, can be played as any other Piano; in addition it is an instrument which anyone, even a child, can play. For dancing, for song accompaniments, for any kind of piano music, any one of these fine instruments will bring countless new pleasures into the family circle.

Perhaps you would prefer a high-grade Phonograph. We have them; Sonoras and Columbia Gramophones. Or a Grand; we have the Heintzman & Co., the Brambach, etc.

The LINDSAY Easy-Payment Plan makes it easy to acquire and pay for a first-class instrument. All our goods are marked in plain figures, and there is only ONE PRICE—the lowest for cash. For time accommodation 6 per cent. interest is charged. The valuation fixed upon for your old piano is just so much cash; it remains the same no matter what price instrument you decide to purchase in return. Under this arrangement—the only fair way—you KNOW what you pay for and get in the exchange transaction.

Do not delay any longer the musical pleasures that can be yours NOW. Fill in, clip and mail us the coupon below; it will receive our immediate attention.

PICKPOCKETS FOLLOW PRINCE.

Operate Among Crowds Which Gather to See Visitor. Montreal, Aug. 18.—Pickpocket gangs, with headquarters at Toledo and Philadelphia, have a thorough organization covering all the places to be visited by the Prince of Wales, and have planned to operate on a wide scale in the crowds that will gather to see the Royal visitor, said Chief Detective Le Page, and parties of scouts from the bands have begun their survey of the largest centres. Numbers of them have arrived in Montreal, and I do not expect that they will have a free hand in the place, as special measures have been taken.
