The Rescue of Two Aviators of the United States Army Who Were Held in Mexico By Bandits-The Story of Their Wanderings in the Wilds.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Marfar, Tex., Aug. 19 .- Lieuts. H. G. Peterson and Paul H. Davis, aviators of the U. S. army, held captive for more than a week by Mexican bandits, who demanded a ransom of $15,000, were rescued early this morning by Capt. Matlack, of the Eighth cavalry, who, according to the agreement made, journeyed into the Mexican rendezyous unaccompanied. The men are safe in American territory.

Capt. Matlack brought back with him one-half of the ransom money. He said after Peterson had been released Davis was brought forward by the bandits, and the two mounted Capt. Matlack's horses. The bandits demanded the remainder of the ransom money, and Capt. Matlack and Davis answered by riding rapidly

The aviators landed on the American side of the river, Lieut. Peterson said. Upon their arrival at Candelaria, a week ago Sunday, their engine developed trouble and they were forced to land, smashing their landing gear and fusilage in doing so. The two aviators then tried to find their way to the nearest army camp, and became confused. They walked and swam down the Rio Grande during Monday, Lieut. Peterson said, then hired Mexican burros after Peterson developed fever.

They had started for Candelaria when overtaken by a band of armed bandits, Lieut. Peterson said. They continued on their forced journey until Friday night, when the bandits compelled the aviators to write message demanding a ransom and telling of the death threat. They were unharmed.
