

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS Victory Day Number

A record of the Peace Celebrations, on land and sea. A most elaborate publication, illustrating all the functions of the Peace Celebration in Great Britain.

PRICE, 75 CENTS COPY.

At Uglow's 141 Princess St., Kingston

SCHOOL OPENS

Next month the kiddies will be back to the task of making themselves better fit for the life ahead.

PARENTS

Are you giving the child a fair show? Is he backward, cannot study any length of time, without headaches and print blurring? Does he suffer pains in head or back?

These and many other complaints come from defective eyesight.

If your child is backward and has any of the above symptoms consult

J. J. STEWART, OPT. D.

"Right Specialist." King's Post Office Kingston The House of Better Glasses.

Vanity Cases and Silk Bags

We have a few of each of these new lines left and to clear have marked at special prices.

Vanity Cases $5.00 Silk Bags $2.75

Kinnear & d'Esterre

JEWELERS

100 PRINCESS ST.

Ocean Steamship Ticket Agency.

C. S. Kirkpatrick 35 Clarence St. Phone 588.

MOORE'S

Tire service is the best.

MOORE'S

Accessory Department is the largest—we have just what you want.

MOORE'S

Re-built tires are wonderful money savers. Try one.

MOORE'S

Have your size tire in stock and will put it on quick.

MOORE'S

Sell Dominion Tires only and every Tire and Auto Accessory worth while.

MOORE'S

"Where They Rebuild Old Tires" WELLINGTON STREET KINGSTON, ONT.

Mid-Summer Sale

Women's Pumps

PATENT COLT and VICI RID, in Colonial or plain seamless patterns; with Louis and Spool heels. Regular $5.00 and $6.00. To clear $3.75

Allan M. Reid,

SHOE STORE

111 Princess St.

Kingston

RECALLS FORMER VISIT

OF THE PRINCE OF WALES TO TORONTO IN 1869

H. Crothers Was One of Kingston Delegation That Went to Toronto To Be Presented—No Handshake Then.

Hutchinson Crothers of Kingston writes as follows to the Toronto Mail and Empire: The writer was one of a delegation who visited Toronto to see the Prince, he not having called at their home town. Arriving at noon, by previous arrangement we were received at the Old Parliament at 1:30.

On a platform, slightly raised from the floor and extending the whole length of the south wall, were standing the Prince, the Mayor of Toronto, the Duke of Newcastle, the Governor-General, Sir Edmund Head (I think), and many others. Our party filed in at once and the proceedings were simple in the extreme. In the centre of the dais stood the Prince, with the Duke of Newcastle on his right, and no doubt the rest of our party stood opposite we made our best bow, which he returned. There was no word spoken. It must have been uninteresting to the Prince, to say nothing of weariness by bowing ever so slightly to four or five hundred persons.

Two figures on the dais I see as distinctly to-day as I did then—the Prince in his nineteenth year, with smooth, round face, light auburn hair, rather large blue eyes, rather diminutive chin, the whole expression being mingled with anything forcible, formidable or original. Dressed in a morning suit, without orders or decorations of any kind, his interest in the proceedings were not of a very high order as might be expected from the surroundings.

The Duke of Newcastle at the time was a member of the British Cabinet, holding the portfolio of Colonial Secretary, and as such responsible for the Prince's movements. A plain-looking gentleman, nothing striking about his appearance, nothing to indicate his aristocratic lineage, aged about 40, of medium height, slightly built, somewhat light complexioned, with a full beard and moustache. His appearance was as much Canadian as English, and he would pass anywhere as a successful business or professional man. Like the Prince, there were no orders or decorations of any kind. The time occupied during our interview was probably less than an hour.

The Prince arrived by boat from the East. Near the landing was a large amphitheatre constructed of plain pine boards with a raised dais in the centre, the whole capable of seating some few hundred people, and liberally supplied with flags, bunting, etc. Here the Prince was received and the civic address presented. Filled with people in holiday attire and on pleasure bent, this spot would have a striking, animated appearance, but as the writer saw it within a few days after use, with dark clouds and a lowering sky and a gale of wind tossing flags and bunting in all directions, its appearance was cold and dismal in the extreme.

On King street the Orange Order had erected an arch of wood wound with paper, which resembled finely dressed stone. On one side was a half figure of Queen Victoria, and on the other a half figure of King William of Orange. In the half circle above were the words "These We Maintain."

At this time there was a sharp cleavage between the Duke and the Orange Order. The following in part at least was how it occurred: In the Province of Quebec the Prince was taken to the Roman Catholic Church and some of its subsidiary institutions, receiving addresses of The Orange Order of the Province of Ontario (then Upper Canada) thought it entirely fitting that they should present an address also. This was refused and ignored by the Duke. I put the case mildly when I say that for weeks and perhaps months feeling ran high in this Province, the Duke's personality being regarded much on the same plane as we have been regarding the Kaiser's during the war period. For the above reason the Prince was not allowed to land at Kingston when his steamer lay for two days pending negotiations which failed, neither did he land at Belleville, and very serious doubts were entertained as to his landing at Toronto. A compromise was reached, however, at the last moment, the basis of which was as follows: If the party in charge of the Prince refused to pass under the Orange arch they could take a side street if they so desired.

In 1869 Toronto possessed the merest outlines of the Toronto of to-day. The Grand Trunk from the east reached the station by a single line with only a few sidings. The station building resembled a large overgrown barn, such as one might see in the early rural districts, surrounded by a deep clay bed, which in the rainy season would make the roads almost impassible. The whole waterfront was a vast plain, east, west, and north towards King street the home of sheep, goats and cattle. The following buildings were on their present sites in 1860, Queen's Hotel, on Front street; St. Lawrence Market, St. James' Cathedral, Rossin House (now Prince George Hotel), Osgoode Hall, University College, and of course others. West of Osgoode Hall was a large open area of some ten acres, more or less, called Spadina, and used for a parade ground for troops, etc. The population at the above date was something less than 50,000.

Will Enter Queen's.

Mrs. Seale has been in Toronto from Peterboro' a few days. Her son, Aubrey Seale, who graduated from the Royal Military College two years ago with a first-class in mathematics, was given a commission in the Imperials, and gazetted to the Royal Engineers. Now that the war is over, however, it is probable that this youthful officer will resign his commission and return to Canada and enter Queen's University.

George Shortt's Position.

George Shortt, Ottawa, formerly of Kingston, returned soldier, was the successful candidate for the position of sub-trade commissioner, Department of Trade and Commerce.

LIGHTNING CAUSED FIRE AT BATTERSEA

Barn and Cow Stable of John Sleeth Destroyed on Sunday.

Loss estimated between $5,000 and $6,000, was done on Sunday, when a barn and stable, belonging to John Sleeth, one of the best known farmers of Battersea, was struck by lightning and set on fire. The two buildings were totally destroyed. Neighbors turned out, and as a result of their good work another building close by was saved. Seventy tons of hay and 500 bushels of grain were destroyed, also a number of valuable farm implements, including a milking machine and a separator.

NEW WAY TO MAKE MONEY

Discount Canadian Bills and Give Canadian Change.

The Americans are characteristically good business men and they are taking every advantage of the abnormal discount on Canadian money which has arisen through the exchange situation. The latest dodge to pile up the mighty dollars is to discount Canadian bills which are being exchanged and then give the change in Canadian money. A soldier who went to Alexandria Bay the other day tendered a ten dollar bill for some small purchases. He was charged sixty cents and when he got home and looked at the bills which were returned to him he found that instead of being American dollar bills for which he had accepted six per cent discount on his Canadian dollar the crafty Yankee had given him his change in Canadian money.

ROAD SEASON AT GRAND

Will Open on Labor-Day With "Seven Days Leave."

The season for road shows will open at the Grand Opera House on Labor Day, when "Seven Days Leave," which made a big hit when presented here some time ago, will be the attraction, matinee and night. E. R. Miles, advance agent for this production, was in the city on Saturday, making the necessary arrangements. The manager of the Grand has already a big grip of strong attractions booked for the Grand this season, which promises to be one of the most successful in the history of the local play house.

September in Algonquin Park.

September is one of the most delightful months of the year in the "Highlands of Ontario" and Algonquin Park offered attractions that are not found in other districts. Situated at an altitude of 2,000 feet above the level of the sea it assures the visitor of a pure bracing air that rejuvenates body and mind. A few days here is better than ounces of tonics and saves doctor bills. The territory is also easy of access via the Grand Trunk, 200 miles north of Toronto and 70 miles west of Ottawa. "The Highland Inn," a charming hotel, affords most comfortable accommodation at reasonable rates. The inn is heated by steam. Grate fires for cool evenings add cheer to the indoor pleasures. The cuisine is all that can be desired. Good fishing in the many lakes in close proximity to the hotel. A fine clay tennis court offers a means of physical exercise. "The Highland Inn" is operated by the Grand Trunk Railway. Make your reservations early. Illustrated descriptive literature telling you all about it from any Grand Trunk Agent, or write N. T. Clarke, Manager, Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, Ont.

Prison For C. C. Folger.

R. F. Elliott, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, has received a letter from a leading member of the Canadian Gas Association stating that the business sessions and the social events of the convention held last week at Niagara Falls were handled by C. C. Folger, of Kingston, the retiring president, in an able manner. All the members were delighted at the way in which Mr. Folger fulfilled the duties of his office, and he retires with the esteem of all.

His Arm Was Broken.

C. C. Craig, a farmer at Verona, was cranking his motor boat on Sunday when the crank flew back and struck him a violent blow on the left arm above the wrist. He was brought to the city by Dr. F. Nicholls, and Dr. A. B. R. Williamson made an X-ray examination which showed that the arm was broken. Mr. Craig will have to carry it in a sling for some time to come.

Notre Dame Convent.

Announces special facilities for vocal and piano lessons in connection with Toronto Conservatory of Music. Art course open to ladies desirous of private tuition in painting in water colors, oils, or on china. Pupils prepared for entrance to normal, matriculation and upper school examinations. Civil service, general and special business correspondence.

James Weir Retires.

One of the veteran members of the penitentiary staff has retired, in the person of James Weir, teamster, who resides on Alfred street, and who has been engaged in this capacity at the prison for twenty-three years. He has been a long and faithful worker, and he retires with the best wishes of a wide circle of friends.

Will Help Growth.

Farmers say that the rains over the week-end will do much good throughout the district. Although the ground has not been parched during the past week the heavy rains have been very beneficial for fall crops. The germination may be a little late but they are confident that it is not too late to very materially aid their growth.

Secured a Position.

Pte. A. Draw, a graduate of the Kingston School of Telegraphy, left today for Ottawa where he has secured a position. This is the second man to graduate within a week.

Will Be a Record.

St. Mary's Church, Clayton, N.Y., has just concluded a fair and it is expected the results will be $2,000 net. This will be a record fair for the church since the best previous fair in 1913, when more than $2,000 was realized.

$1.75---Girls' Patent Strap Slippers Abernethy's Shoe Store

CAMPBELL BROS. Kingston's Largest Hat Dealers

JAMES REID Phone 147 For Service

Star Fruit & Candy Store

FRIENDSHIP'S Choice Groceries

IT'S A FACT UP-TO-DATE BAKING METHODS

LACKIES BAKERY HOME MADE BREAD & PASTRY

Specials at the Unique Grocery and Meat Market

Cook's Cotton Root Compound

Kingston Cement Products Factory

Steamer Brockville Bulletin

Kingston-Cape Vincent Ferry

Pine Mouldings Allan's Lumber Yard

NOTICE OF REMOVAL

R. D. SUTHERLAND

DR. A. W. WINNETT DENTAL SURGEON