REALLY NOVEL ATTRACTION

IS TO BE WITNESSED AT THE GRAND

People Snapped on the Streets Shown On the Screen—The Pictures Were Taken Unknown To the Subjects.

To see yourself as others see you is seldom the privilege of anyone, but an enterprising photographer has made it possible to do this at the Grand. During last week the artist snapped over a hundred of Kingston's citizens on the screen at the Grand during Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, matinee and evening. The pictures were shown for the first time on Monday afternoon before a large audience and there were uproars of laughter. So startling are the various poses of the subjects that one would almost think the artist was presenting "Kingston in Cartoon." There was no selection for all sorts and conditions are there, society leaders, business men, young sports, the newly married, the beautiful blushing coy maidens, the ogling masquerade, the serious, the sad and glad, all have been caught napping so to speak, and may see themselves in the hurry and bustle of the street just as others see them. Seldom has the Grand presented so novel an attraction. The audience was captivated from the start and held in suspense, for no one knew that he or she would not be the next. Some of the pictures are really very fine. One wonders how the artist found so many pretty girls, and girls so becomingly dressed. The baby carriage and the market basket are strongly in evidence, too. The pictures were snapped while the people were waiting and few people who passed the artist last week escaped him. Any person who recognizes his or her picture can obtain it by applying to Manager Branigan. Manager Branigan was himself snapped while conversing with Rev. Father Kingsley. Others recognized on Monday were: Market Clerk McCann, W. Mullinger of the police force, William Newlands. Yours may be there, too.

Theatrical

"Seven Days' Leave." The big military-naval melodrama, which comes to the Grand on Labor Day, matinee and night, holds the record for all plays of its type, not only in Great Britain and Australia, but in New York, where it played for over twenty weeks at the Park Theatre, to the largest business of the season. It is now playing at Sir Henry Irving's Theatre, London, where it is rapidly approaching its third year, while companies are presenting it in both Melbourne and Sydney, Australia; in South Africa, while one company will again present it in Canada. The story of this Walter Howard play, centres about a young master in the British army, whose invention to detect undersea boats has been stolen by a man and woman German spy.—Advt.

At Griffin's. Admirers of Charles Ray turned out in full force last evening to his new picture "Hay Foot Straw Foot," in which he is seen in a typical role, the kind which most pleases his admirer that of a country boy who made the joke of the town until he proves himself a hero in their eyes. The clever comedy exhibited by this popular star in previous photoplays is more than evidenced in "Hay Foot, Straw Foot," which as its name suggests provides abundant opportunities for a good many laughs. The picture also contains many dramatic moments and thrills galore, which taken all in all go to make this production one of the best in which Charles Ray has been seen, in some time. This picture, along with our usual added attractions will be shown again to-night and to-morrow and cannot fail to please.—Advt.

At The Strand. The clever and racy comedy "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," made a great hit at the Strand Theatre on Monday night. The theatre was crowded to the doors and after the usual splendid selections of Pathe News, the great feature picture, "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots," was presented. The beauty and charm of the play, of the perfectly natural sequence of events and the wholesome explosion of pent up emotions place it in a class by itself. The talented actress, Constance Talmadge, captivates the audience and no one can help falling in love with her. The jealous vigilance of her husband, young Leffingwell, makes him the sorry victim of startling circumstances connected with a pretty pair of embroidered slippers, that his wife wore at a dance. A duplicate pair had been bought by Walter Huntley, who gave them to his maid after Mabel Brown for whom they were purchased, had broken off her engagement with him. Leffingwell knows Huntley has been attentive to his wife, and on the night of the dance, while passing the window of Huntley's room, he sees the slippers on a woman's feet. He believed the woman to be his wife, but she was in reality the maid. It is not until several weeks after that he learns of the existence of two pairs of slippers and the horrible cloud is dispelled. This beautiful play will be shown at the Strand on Tuesday and Wednesday, matinee and evening.—Advt.

Visited Their Home Town. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith have returned to Kingston after spending three months in the states of Michigan and Illinois, visiting their old home and friends in Chicago, including a trip to Crystal Lake, Northern Michigan, in the fruit district. They also visited the well-known 200-acre fruit farm of Paul Ross. At the cherry trees he picked and shipped fifty tons to the P. D. Armour canning factory at Frankfort, at eleven cents a pound; the cost of picking, three cents a pound. The apple crop on this farm is estimated at 50,000 bushels.

LEAD DOUBLE LIVES

But the Post-Office Department Will Call a Halt.

The attention of the Postoffice department has been brought to a practice which is said to be fairly prevalent in university circles of the dominion. It appears that many young men have been given an opportunity to help them through college by securing night jobs in the postoffices of such cities. It appears further, however, that after securing their degrees and embarking upon their chosen professions, many of them have continued to be members of the post-office staffs thus leading "double lives" and reaping double emolument. It is the policy of the government service that anyone employed thereon shall give his attention solely to the duties of his position. Such men therefore as are not doing so as desired shall be asked to resign forthwith.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my darling son, Clifford R. Kirkland, who fell up his life August 25th, 1918, in France:

One year has passed my heart still sore, As time goes by I miss him more; His loving smile, his welcome face, No one can fill his vacant place. His memory is as fresh to-day, As at the hour he went away. —His mother, Mrs. Charles Peer

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Reginald Hugh Holland, taken home August 25th 1919, dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Holland, 17 Nelson street.

The Master came to the harvest field, Where reapers were gathering the grain; He plucked the fairest flower of all To take to his home again.

For no stain was on his armour, His soul was pure and white; Our own little Regie boy, With his eyes so clear and bright.

Transplanted from a world of sin, To dwell with Thee at home, In robes of purest splendor, Before the great white throne. —Mother and Father.
