HERE is a mighty good prayer which comes to us from that fine organization, The Kiwanis Club of Montreal.

A KIWANIS' PRAYER.

Teach me that sixty seconds make a minute, one hundred cents a dollar, and sixteen ounces a pound.
Help me so to live that I can lie down at night to sleep, not toss, shave myself in the morning and look the man before me in the eye.
Grant that I may earn my meal ticket on the level and in earning it that I may measure my acts by the Golden Rule.
Deafen me to the jingle of the dirty dollar and to the rustle of unholy petticoats.
Blind me to the faults of the other fellow, and open my eyes to my own shortcomings.
Guide my footsteps so that each evening at the dinner table when I look at my wife who has been a blessing to me, I shall have nothing to conceal.
Keep me young enough to laugh with little tots and sympathetic enough to be considerate of old age.
Then when comes the day of lowered shades, the soft footstep and the smell of tuber roses, make the ceremony short and let the fellows say, "He was a good Kiwanian."

The world bestows its big prizes, both in money and honors, but for one thing, and that is initiative: What is initiative? I'll tell you: It's doing the right thing without being told. But next to doing the right thing without being told is to do it when you are told once.—Logic.

FACE IT

"I'VE seen a thousand men who could lick me, but never yet one who could scare me."
Thus said a slight man, past middle age, to a young man who towered above him in height and topped his weight by forty pounds, and who threatened a beating. Whether or not the young man could have made his third good did not occur. He turned away before the steady gaze of the other.

It was not bravado. It was a fearless spirit to do his best in a crisis he did not seek and could not avoid. Had he turned his back he would have been kicked. Facing his threatener he stood for a beating he would not dodge or the victory his courageous attitude won.

Many a business crisis that threatens disaster turns away before steady determination to take the beating that seems certain, but to take it from the front with honor and self-respect, rather than from the rear with ignominy.—Associated Advertising.

REVENGE IS HOLY.
How German Churches View the Peace Treaty.
The Glasgow Herald prints from a special correspondent some interesting information regarding the views of the German churches on the peace treaty.
What, asks the writer, is the guidance offered by the leaders of the churches to this crisis in the affairs of the nation? We are in no doubt as to its character. In the Kreuz Zeitung recently Dr. Conrad, one of the ex-kaiser's chaplains, wrote a homily on the attitude which religious men should adopt toward the peace which is being "dictated to Germany." He wrote: Possess your souls and do not despair. God in His good time will turn our sorrows into joy. Is there a German man who does not realize that this humiliation is but for a time and that before long the drama of the new fashioning of the earth will begin again? When that time comes Germany will rise supreme from the fire of her trials. It was in 1870-71 that began it; that was the prelude; we are now at the close of the second act. The coming third act will give us our final place, and God will be with us. All I can counsel is this: Be patient. Our hour is coming. Certainly, sign the peace, for this will give us the breathing time we require, and also time for reflection."
In the Kirchen-Anzeiger there is a sermon by Stadt-Pfarrer Brockhaus, headed "What is Now Our Duty?" Then after denouncing "the cruel and incredible terms of the treaty, goes on: "There is a revenge which is holy, and enables all of those who nourish it in their hearts. We cannot sit down under this awful humiliation. But we must wait God's time. We must wait for Him to dictate our course. He who led the German people to their weakness to strength. He who once blessed our efforts in our world mission, is punishing us now for our sins; but He has great work for us yet, and He will see that we yet stand on the necks of our adversaries." All through these sermons dealing with the peace and the present situation generally the German clergy continually exhort their flocks to be patient, to be steadfast during the days of tribulation. In a perfunctory sort of way they acknowledge that tribulation has come upon the people because of their sins and shortcomings, but the sins and shortcomings have nothing to do with guilt of causing the war or with the ineffable crimes committed by Germany in the four years of its duration.

Effect of Bolshevism.
What Bolshevism on the job, in full working array, would be described in the current issue of Forbes Magazine by Jacob de Julin, president of the Commercial Mission of the Finnish Government. Early in January of last year, while on a business trip to Helsinki, he was warned that the Reds had taken over his plant at Lake Samia, promoted a machine oiler to the post of manager, discharged most of the original working force, every one of which was glad to escape, and undertook to run the plant according to true Bolshevist rules. The result was that without technical direction and trained executive skill they managed to run the mill exactly two weeks, and thereafter it operated no more. There were seven months' supply of food—which was short in Finland—at the plant. The Bolshevists took it over and divided it. By the time the White Guard, or anti-Bolshevist troops, arrived on April 25, this food was all gone, for the Reds had not only eaten double rations but had sold much of it.
Finally the White Guard forced the Reds to surrender—and Mr. Julin was again in charge of the plant. Out of 2,000 employees only 150 were left, the rest having fled or had been made prisoners. To sum up: The net result of Bolshevism in the plant was idleness for everybody and comfort for nobody for nearly all of the three months, because of the lack of skilled men, waste of food and raw materials, with starvation in its wake, terrorism, disorder, looting and robbery. And after Mr. Julin resumed control of the plant it took him nine months to restore it to normal efficiency—nine months to repair the ravage of three.

Ancient Sweetmeats.
Who invented sweetmeats and confectionery?
Diving deep into the story of the ancients the writer has come to the conclusion that some, if not all, the credit must go to old friend Noah.
He it was who first hit upon the idea of boiling down the starch of the wheat and the juice of the grape. The result was a paste, said to be the original of our present-day "Turkish delight."
The ancient Egyptians knew all about making "toothsome morsels," although sugar was unknown.
Whole fruits, particularly figs and dates, were used for flavoring purposes, the latter especially for preserves and cakes. In old tombs date sweetmeats have been found; also records of honey jellies.
The making of confectionery, in fact, goes back 3,400 years, proof of which is to be found on the walls of Egyptian tombs.—Tit-Bits.

Why Bees Know Colors.
Interesting experiments have shown that bees distinguish different colors, but different colors acquire significance for bees when the insects have learned that certain colors are associated with certain nutritive advantages. The bees are not "reflex machines"—they are not compelled by any organic chromatotropism to prefer certain colors to others. They accumulate experience, and remember that certain colors are associated with certain nutritive benefits.—Family Herald.
