NICHOLAS TIMMERMAN DEAD

FORMER CONSTABLE AND GARBAGE INSPECTOR DIED SUNDAY.

Served on Kingston Police Force For Over Thirty Years—Was Appointed as Garbage Inspector Little Over Three Years Ago.

Following an illness extending over several months, the death occurred early on Sunday morning, of Nicholas Timmerman, former police constable and garbage inspector, at his home, 539 Princess street, and in his passing Kingston has lost a good citizen. "Nick" Timmerman, as he was known to his friends, and he had a great many, for to know him was to love him for his many fine qualities of heart and mind, served the city well, first as a peace officer and then as garbage inspector.

Deceased, who was seventy years of age, served on the police force for over thirty years, and for many years during his time on the force he acted as sanitary inspector. A little over man was a Methodist, and a member of Princess Street Methodist church. He is survived by his wife, five daughters and two sons.

The daughters are Mrs. Thomas Clark, Mrs. Noble J. Landry and the Misses Anna, Margaret and Gertrude, and the sons, Nicholas C., a member of the Kingston police force, and William J.

ON STANDARD TIME AGAIN

AND THE CHANGE MEETS WITH GENERAL SATISFACTION.

Great Overhauling of All the Clocks and Watches on Saturday Night—Citizens Ahead of Time For Church as They Neglected to Fix Their Clock.

Kingston got back to standard time on Sunday. And the change was received with almost general satisfaction. All kinds of clocks, from the old grandfather type, down to the common alarm clocks, with all the watches in town, had a great overhauling on Saturday night. "Big Ben," in the City Hall tower, was put back one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, and as a result, the police had to put in an extra hour. This is once the day men had it over the men who were on night duty.

As usual the change in time had its amusing situation. Some people, although given warning, went to bed and did not turn back the hands of the clock, and as a result they got to church an hour too early. When they got to the church and found the doors locked, they could not account for it, but suddenly thought of the change in time, and had a good laugh.

Sunday was a good day for the change, however, and by to-night it is safe to say that everyone will be in line with the new time. The steam railways do not go back to the old time until Oct. 27th, so don't forget this and be late for a train.

IN THE HALLS OF QUEEN'S.

Many Returned Soldiers Are Registering For Courses.

Queen's University is rapidly settling down to its accustomed routine for the session, the first in five years that has not been coupled up with war. Queen's, when the war was in its full swing, was a place of refuge for those who left their courses to take up a "course of warfare." The feature of this year's registration is the large number of returned men who are in this session. The university sent overseas 1,502 men from her walls, including graduates, undergraduates and staff, and a large percentage of these have registered during the last few days. As far as is known registration is very good. The possibility of a six-year course has, no doubt, deterred some from the faculty of medicine, but all other faculties are well up in numbers.

A great deal of work has been got under way since the opening, both academically, socially and otherwise. Time tables are now mapped out and lectures are all in progress. With regard to the social and sporting work of Queen's, a meeting of the Y.M.C.A. of Queen's was called for last Friday night and a large programme was mapped out for the coming winter. The Y.M.C.A., which has in the past done such valuable work for the women students, has also started in and a picnic to welcome the new and old students was held Saturday afternoon. As to sport, one only has to go on to the campus of an afternoon to see what is going on. Between forty and fifty students turn out every night to get in some practice in both rugby and soccer football. A large and varied programme of athletic and physical training has been planned, with James Bews, physical director, in control.

So it can be seen that Queen's is keeping to its old policy of "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." The university has always been foremost in the promotion of sport.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Campbell, Drummond township, on Tuesday when their second daughter, Miss Margerie May, was united in marriage to James Cavers, a prosperous farmer of Harper, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cavers, Perth. There should be music in every home—except the one next door.

NICHOLAS TIMMERMAN.

three years ago, when the city erected its incinerator, Mr. Timmerman was selected as inspector. He knew every inch of the city and in this position rendered the city able service. His appointment was made in the fall of 1915, but owing to failing health, he was last spring forced to relinquish his position, much to the regret of the civic authorities and citizens in general, for under his able management, a splendid system of garbage collection was inaugurated. He was a man who took keen interest in his work and in everything he undertook, endeavored to give the very best service. He loved Kingston and her people, and as a result of his work, Kingston was made a cleaner, healthier and more wholesome city. The late Mr. Timmerman was a well-known figure on the street. He served the city faithfully and well on the police force. For many years he served as a plainclothes man, and rendered excellent service. He was beloved by all the members of the force, and the others who had served with him in days gone by, expressed sincere regret when they learned of his death. He was a native of Holland, but came out to this country in 1873. For some few years he resided in the United States, being for a time employed in Buffalo. He afterwards came to Kingston and prior to joining the police force, was engaged at the locomotive works. In every position he held, he left a record that any man might well be proud of. While on the police force, he was also employed as a yard inspector, and his knowledge of conditions made him a most valuable man in this special work for the city. In religion, the late Mr. Timmer-

TALKING OF HOTELS.

A Fine One For Clayton, N.Y.—Exclusive One Also. If a new hotel is built in Clayton, N.Y., it will probably be on the site of the present Walton House, a site that can be secured for a very reasonable sum, and one that commands a fine view of the island region in the vicinity. Merchants in Clayton declare that it is the logical entrance way to the region, with rail facilities.

If Hart Island is bought, it will be conducted as one of the most exclusive hotels of its kind in the entire country, the rates running from $25 a day up, and with about sixty suites available for guests. The deal has now reached the stage when it is expected to be closed almost any day.
