BODY STILL UNIDENTIFIED INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

CORONER'S JURY ENTERED VERDICT OF DEATH BY ACCIDENT.

Unknown Man Killed on Grand Trunk Tracks—Death Due to a Fracture at the Base of the Skull.

"That this unknown man came to his death by accident while on the Grand Trunk Railway tracks," was the verdict of the coroner's jury on Friday evening. Coroner D. E. Munnell presided, and the only witnesses examined were Dr. S. A. Keyes, who was called to the G.T.R. station after the body had been discovered west of Collins Bay and brought to the city. Albert Rowley, section foreman on the G.T.R., who discovered the body lying near the tracks, and Charles Cunningham, embalmer. Dr. Keyes stated that death was due to a fracture at the base of the skull, a fracture on the right side of the head and broken jaw. There was no sign of other injuries except cuts on the face, evidently made by his being thrown into the cinders on the track.

Albert Rowley told of the finding of the body a mile and a half west of Collins Bay at 4:55 p.m. on Thursday. The body was lying face down about six feet from the north rail of the north track. The man was dead but the body was still warm. From an examination of the ground about the track, Mr. Rowley stated that it was his impression that the man was struck by an east-bound train on the north or west-bound track while walking on the track. All section men are instructed to order trespassers off the right of way. There was no marked grade at this point. The man's left hand was in his overcoat pocket. The witness did not know what train struck the man, but supposed it had been a freight.

Charles Cunningham, embalmer for James Reid & Co., undertakers, told of embalming the body. There was nothing found that would show the man's identity, but from his clothing and fact that he had a bullet wound in the left side, where the bullet had entered and left the chest, he was evidently a returned soldier. "E.L." was tattooed on the front of the left forearm. He wore a brown overcoat, a sweater similar to military sweaters, also underwear similar to military underwear.

P. Copley was foreman of the jury and it took but a short time to reach a verdict.

DAVIS-JORDAN NUPTIALS.

At the Home of the Bride On Wednesday.

On Wednesday morning at the home of her parents, Prof. and Mrs. W. G. Jordan, Barrie street, the marriage took place very quietly, of Eilda Jordan to Zephaniah Davies of Toronto, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Davies, St. Brides, South Wales. The bride looked very sweet in her travelling suit of navy blue, with which was worn a gray georgette blouse and hat of black velvet. Gray marabou stole and muff completed a very simple and pretty costume. Prof. Jordan married his daughter and was assisted by the Rev. Dr. R. J. Wilson of whose church the bride is a devoted member. The family and one or two very intimate friends were the only ones present at the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Davies left for their honeymoon, to be spent in Toronto and western points. In the evening Prof. and Mrs. Jordan entertained the wedding party at dinner at the Frontenac Club, among the guests Dr. and Mrs. Dennis Jordan of Toronto, who came down for their sister's wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Davies have taken an apartment in the Queen City where they will reside.

Making Improvements to Victoria School—To Hold a Home-made Sale to Raise Funds.

A meeting of the Parents and Teachers' Association of Victoria school was held on Friday afternoon and there was a very good attendance. Mrs. H. T. J. Coleman presided and after tea had been served business was taken up. Miss Day made a report for the property committee and Miss McTear, treasurer, gave the financial report.

It was decided to purchase a lantern for the school to be used in teaching certain work, and Principal J. G. Ettlinger gave a short address showing the value of the lantern as an aid. Mr. Ettlinger, Mrs. Wallace and Prof. McClement were appointed a committee to purchase the lantern. A football and a basketball are to be purchased for the boys in the senior grades. Mrs. Harold Day stated that the association would hold a home-made sale on Hallowe'en.

Among the other important matters that were discussed was the crossing on Alfred street, opposite Stover's store, and the non-observance of the "Go Slow" signs by automobile drivers approaching and passing the school. A determination to have the speed laws and the signs observed was expressed.

Tony Rankin has spent his entire political life persistently advocating better rural roads. The work is just commencing. Frontenac must elect him to finish this vast and much needed work—Advt.
