ian colleges are given credit for three years of college work only.

The Queen's dean claims that the policy of Canadian schools as to development and progress ought not to be influenced very much by American criticism, and certainly ought not to be modelled upon the detailed requirements of the American Council of Education.

Queen's graduates, it is pointed out, are to be found the world over and there are very few "duds" among them. Dean Connell says, at the present time Queen's stands next to Toronto and McGill. It is easily third in respect to attendance, equipment and general efficiency. Attendance is one of the criteria upon which a school may be judged. This year there is an entrance class of eighty, although the faculty expressed a desire to limit the classes to fifty. "In point of fact there is nothing wrong with the school, except that it needs more generous support from the Board of Trustees with permission to continue its development along natural lines," declares the Queen's dean.

Enquiry as to what was needed to make Queen's medical school eligible for admission to Class A, yielded the information from the secretary of the council on medical education that the main difficulty is that Queen's has not adopted the six year course as have Toronto and McGill. But Queen's last February decided to adopt the six-year course, beginning with the session of 1920-21, so this obstacle will remain no longer after the present session. Dr. Connell has asked for a re-inspection during the current session with a request that Class A standing be granted.

At present, Queen's has laboratory work in every year of the course. There are fully equipped laboratories in anatomy, histology, embryology, physiology, chemistry, physics, pharmacology, pathology and bacteriology. These subjects are all in charge of full-time well-trained teachers.

Every undergraduate of Queen's medical school serves at least two terms as interne in one of the city hospitals. The first term of two weeks is during the fourth year. During the fifth year a longer period is arranged, the duration depending upon the number of students in the class. No one can now graduate in medicine from Queen's without having at least a short hospital experience. A few weeks in the hospital is enough to bring the student into direct contact with actual everyday medical work, and to give him some idea of what a hospital training means.

Up to the present, Dean Connell declares that the University has done nothing financially for the medical school, although in 1913 the Board of Trustees decided that the medical faculty should participate in university funds. The financial statement for the year ending March 31st, 1919, shows an expenditure of $26,000. Fees received amounted to $26,000. This is $18,000 expended over and above fees. Of this amount, Dr. Connell states that only $2,000 was provided out of general university funds.

In concluding his statement, Dean Connell says:

"When all these facts are fully weighed, I am of the opinion that it is clearly proven that there is nothing wrong with the medical school. It is far from ideal, but it compares favorably with any other school in results secured. There is much to be said in favor of the small school in the relatively small community to lay the best foundation for a medical career. No medical school can turn out a finished product requiring nothing further. The history of Queen's medical department and the demand for its training, as evidenced by the large attendance and the numerous applications for admission that are refused, all warrant a confident belief in the future of the school, and do not in any sense justify the dangerous experiment of taking away part of the school out of the city of Kingston."

QUEEN'S MEDICAL CLINICS

THE OTTAWA CITIZEN COMMENTS ON WHIG'S EDITORIAL

Says Ottawa Is Not Trying to Take Queen's From Kingston, But To Help the Medical College Here.

Ottawa Citizen.

The Kingston Whig makes out a good case for Queen's Medical College as far as regards the splendid work done by the staff of that institution in the past, and the devotion of graduates of the college to their alma mater. It rightly points out that Queen's graduates rank highly wherever they may be located.

These are not, however, the points to be considered in discussing whether Queen's Medical School should come to Ottawa for clinical instruction. The Whig admits that hospital facilities in Kingston are inadequate; it admits that many Queen's graduates have been forced to take up post graduate work because of the lack of experience in clinical work during the regular course. Certainly post graduate work should be taken up whether the student has had ample clinical experience or not. But there is a difference in taking this work up voluntarily and in being forced to take it up.

Queen's medical students, if only because of the splendid instruction they receive in other branches of their studies, should be given ample facilities for clinical observation. If Kingston lacks such facilities it is the duty of the college authorities to seek them elsewhere and not allow Queen's to acquire a reputation as an institution whose course necessarily requires a post graduate finish. Many students cannot afford that. Moreover, the more clinical experi-

Old Folks' Coughs, Catarrh, Bronchitis Quickly Cured

This Tells of a Method That Cures Without Using Drugs.

Elderly people take cold easily. Unlike young folks, they recover slowly. That is why so many people past middle life die of pneumonia.

Cough Syrup seldom does much good because they upset digestion. Any doctor knows that a much more effective treatment is "CATARRHOZONE," which heats and soothes the irritated surfaces of the throat.

In using Catarrhozone you do not take medicine into the stomach—you simply breathe into the throat, nose, and lungs rich piney balsamic vapor, so full of healing power that colds, catarrh and bronchitis disappear almost instantly.

The germ-killing balsamic vapor mixes with the breath, descends through the throat, down the bronchial tubes, and finally reaches the deepest air cells in the lungs. All parts are soothed with rich, pure, medicinal essences, whereas with a syrup the affected parts could not be reached and harm would result through benumbing the stomach with drugs.

A Catarrhozone Inhaler in your pocket or purse enables you to stop a cold with the first sneeze. Large size costs $1.00 and supplies treatment for two months, small size 50c; trial size, 25c; all storekeepers and druggists.

once the student has the more beneficial will be a post graduate course to him.

As we understand the suggestion that Queen's students be transferred to Ottawa, only those in the junior and senior years are affected. Students who have not passed their "primaries" are not concerned, because the course in the years up to the primary examinations is not concerned with hospital or clinical work, only class room, reciting work and laboratory work are included in during the first two years. What the suggestion amounts to, therefore, is what the Whig asserts many Queen's graduates take up, after leaving college—clinical work on a broader scale than is possible in Kingston.

It is natural for Kingston to wish to retain all of Queen's within her borders. The city and the university are closely knit by many bonds and Queen's, we know, would be as reluctant to leave Kingston, which is perhaps the best "study" town in the Dominion, as Kingston would be to see her, or any part of her, go. But the interests of Queen's students are above all sentiment.

Ottawa is not attempting to take Queen's from Kingston. We would like very much if Queen's were to come to the Capital, but there is not, and never has been, any serious attempt on our part in that direction. Queen's is ideally situated in Kingston. But in the matter of helping Queen's to acquire a better course than would be possible for them in the Limestone City, we admit having designs upon a portion of Queen's population. The new Ottawa civic hospital, which is to be erected at a cost of $1,500,000, would be an invaluable adjunct to Queen's Medical School, and the advantages to Ottawa would not be greater than to the reputation of Queen's and, consequently, to the reputation of Kingston.

MAY BE MAYORALTY FIGHT

VETERANS ARE ORGANIZING FOR ACTIVE CAMPAIGN.

And Will Secure Quarters on Princess Street—A Meeting Was Held on Saturday Evening.

The Kingston Veterans' Municipal Committee held an enthusiastic meeting on Saturday evening, when further progress was made in preparing for the coming municipal election campaign. The report of the committee appointed to confer with the labor delegation and with the Retail Merchants' Association was handed in, announcing that it had been found impossible to affiliate with labor, but that a basis of co-operation had been reached. It also reported that the Retail Merchants' Association had unanimously endorsed the veterans' platform in its entirety, and that both parties were willing to work together for the common good of the city.

The report was received with great satisfaction by the general committee, which was well pleased with the progress made during the past week. It was stated that a contest is expected for the office of mayor.

Steps were taken to organize for an active campaign. A committee was appointed to make all arrangements for a big organization meeting to be held in the G.W.V.A. room on a night during this week, to be announced in the press. The full membership of both the veteran associations and also the general public are to be invited to attend this organization meeting which is to be called for the purpose of perfecting work organizations. Another committee was appointed to secure a suitable building or rooms to be used as campaign headquarters. It is expected that premises in a prominent location on Princess street will be secured as headquarters of the Veterans' Municipal Committee for the next month. Another committee was named to make arrangements for a mass meeting of citizens to be held in the Grand Opera House during the week between nomination day and polling day.

The sub-committee on candidates stated that a public announcement might be expected early in the next week, as one more meeting would be necessary before this could be done. The list of candidates includes men of splendid standing in the community, business men, and also some returned soldiers who have the necessary business ability which is felt to be necessary in an alderman for the city at this time. H. C. Nickle, the veterans' candidate for mayor, was present at the meeting, and his splendid enthusiasm and advice were very much appreciated. It is hoped that another conference with labor will be held in a day or two, before the final announcement as to candidates is made.

What we may think is judicious economy may in the end prove to be foolish waste.
