SAY ALBERTA UNION ACTED WITHIN RIGHTS

An Edmonton despatch says: The first of the howls at the action of the Alberta governors in reinstating pros. at the Calgary meeting has already come over the wire. Dave Leith, of Vancouver, Vice-President of the A.A.U. of C., getting away in the lead. The coast apostle of amateurism asserts that there is every likelihood that all cards issued by this Province will be ignored in British Columbia, and forecast that Alberta will be isolated from the rest of the Dominion.

There is a trace of the more in sorrow, than in anger, attitude in the Vice-President's statement, but there is not the slightest hint at forgiveness. However, the Alberta governors took the step with their eyes wide open, in the belief that the action was in the best interests of sport, and are prepared to abide by their decision. They fully expected that their action would bring down the wrath of amateur officials. The Alberta governors are doing no more than taking advantage of the powers given them by the general meeting at Ottawa.

Shamrock IV., Lipton's Cup Challenger, Takes the Water after Five Years.
The Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's America Cup challenger, in drydock at the Shewan yards in Brooklyn, N.Y., just before the Shamrock took the water. The yacht was put in drydock five years ago, when the war broke out. The rigging was stripped, but it is doubtful whether Sir Thomas will want to change it or not. The Shamrock IV. is of an extreme type, cut off short on the overhang, the bow being carried to an extreme length. The interior of the boat is partly of wood and partly of steel. Some yachtsmen call the boat a freak.

Steeplechase Jockey Fricker, the Toronto boy, has returned home for the Winter, after enjoying a good season in Maryland and New York.

Sir Thomas Lipton sailed from New York for home on the steamship Adriatic, for Cherbourg and Southampton, still smilingly predicting that his Shamrock IV. would lift the America's Cup next year. He will return in April with his 23 meter Shamrock as a trial horse.

Pres. Ban Johnson has called the American League annual at Chicago Dec. 10. The opposition—New York, Chicago and Boston—have called it at New York on the same date. New York is asking the courts for an injunction restraining Johnson from naming Chicago as the meeting place.

Les Fohl, who retired in midseason this year as manager of the Cleveland club, has received an offer to manage the Akron club in the International League next season.

The combination of barnstormers taken to Cuba by George Cutshaw, and which played exhibition games in Havana under the name of Pittsburgh Pirates, closed its engagement last week and returned to the States via Florida. After playing some exhibitions in Florida the team disbanded. The Cuban trip was successful beyond expectations of the players who made it, so say reports. Each man got a tidy sum of money as his bit and enjoyed the vacation.

Report from American Association circles is that the St. Louis Cardinals, who have Polly McLarry on their reserve list by some arrangement or other will transfer McLarry to Louisville as part payment for Fred Mollwitz. Polly will play second base for Louisville, it is said, while Joe McCarthy will manage from the bench. Another Association story is that Louisville has put Bob Bescher on the market and will accept most any sort of an offer for him.

Joe. (Goldie) Rapp, who played with Beaumont in the Texas League the past season, and is on that club's reserve list, belongs to the Cincinnati Reds nevertheless, according to a statement from Cincinnati, and Pat Moran means to take him South with the team in the Spring. Rapp is not exactly a Spring chicken, but neither is he a veteran, and after his good work in Texas Manager Pat Moran thinks him about ripe for a utility job with the Reds.

CARPENTIER NOW FAVORITE

Well Fancied to Win Bout With Beckett in London.

New York has its six-day bike race to keep interest in sport alive, but there is something coming off on another shore the latter part of this week which will be watched closely. That is the twenty-round fight between Joe Beckett, the English champion, and Georges Carpentier, of France, which takes place Thursday night.

It is by far the biggest fistie event on the other side since the war ended. For months it has been talked about on the other side, and the London arena in which it will be held is sure to be filled to capacity. Reports say that the receipts will hit above the $100,000 mark, but that figure is most conservative, when it is known that seats are sold from $25 to $100.

The outcome of the match has aroused all sorts of speculation. In England Beckett rules a slight favorite, while in France Carpentier is rated to have the best chance to win. That the Frenchman is the more clever boxer none can deny, but Englishmen are basing their hopes of victory on the "slam-bang" style of fighting that their man employs.

A short time ago Eddie McGoorty, the American middleweight, said Carpentier was in grand shape and should win. He was one who should be able to judge the relative abilities of the two fighters. He fought Beckett seventeen rounds before going down to defeat, and since then has trained the Frenchman for the coming fight. However, there are those who have seen Carpentier, who are not all satisfied with his condition.

Beckett can absorb a lot of punishment, and it will take a real stiff puncher to put him down. He will have the advantage of about fifteen pounds in weight, which will count heavily, too.

Some Boxing Dope.

Jack Skelly, named as the alternate referee of the Willard-Dempsey fight, conducts a boxing column in the Yonkers Herald. He hits the nail on the head with the following:

It's rather amusing nowadays to sit at the ringside and listen to the majority of fans applaud and cheer the crude, slam-bang fighters, who hardly know the rudiments of scientific boxing. It's the fellow who makes most noise and wildest rushes who gets the cheers from the unsophisticated spectators. He may miss a dozen punches and be a regular circus clown within the ropes, as long as he keeps up his reckless whirlwind tactics and freakish fireworks.

According to the strict interpretation of Queensbury rules a miss counts against a boxer, but not with the present fans, most of whom never even read the rules.

They are hook, line and sinker with the razzle dazle, spectacular, rough-house scrapper, whether he hits or misses.

All of which goes to show that the fans of to-day are like most of the ringsters—they don't know the art of self-defence like the old fans and fighters of some twenty years ago.

If a boxer today rushes his opponent to the ropes and tries to shove him out of the ring, head down, like a butting goat, the crowd cheers the rusher.

If a fellow hits with an open glove making a big sound, on the back generally, the crowd cheers him for his foul tactics.

If a rough, strong scrapper outwrestles his opponent with all sorts of strange and other foul holds, the crowd cheers again.

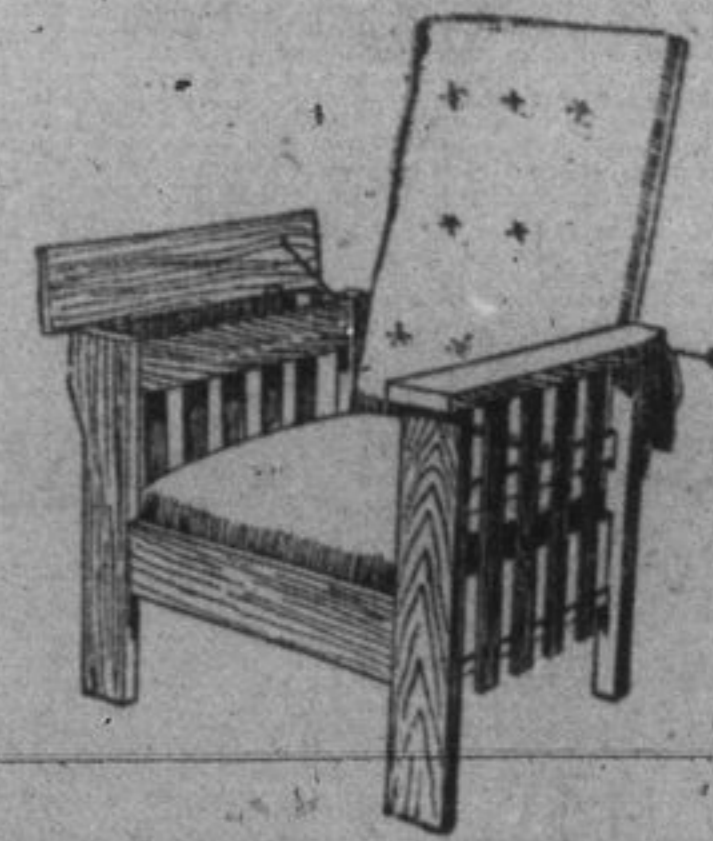

RETIRE FROM HOCKEY

Cyril Flanagan Will Devote His Time To Study.

Cyril Flanagan, half-back on the champion McGill Rugby team, and senior hockey player, announced yesterday that he would not play hockey this winter. Flanagan lost considerable time at college by playing Rugby and will not figure on the line-up of the McGill hockey team this winter. Flanagan was one of the best men playing amateur hockey last winter and his retirement will be a great loss to the college team.

Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees shows every disposition to take Frank Baker at his word, and will make no effort to coax the third baseman back to the game. Baker didn't have a very good year, is none too popular with the New York fans, and Huggins thinks he can shape up a better infield with Fawcett on third base. Altogether it looks like Baker finally would be allowed to retire.
