THE LUCK OF THE NAVY

A STRONG PATRIOTIC DRAMA
AT THE STRAND

The Company a Strong One—A Magnificent Tableau Opens the Play—At The Grand Again To-night.

The Grand Opera House was filled on Tuesday evening to see "The Luck of the Navy," a thrilling war play that had a run of nearly two years in England. The whole plot centres round a German spy, Mrs. Gordon Peel, who possesses a prominent place in society that enables her to entertain and move about with perfect freedom from suspicion. Her son is in the British Navy, which he joined as a cadet, and at the opening of the story is a sub-officer in the submarine A5. Lieut. Stanton, V.C., R.N., the commander, has secret orders which he discloses at a tea given by Mrs. Peel, and she, her Belgian convalescent officer and her son, plan to obtain possession of the orders and inform the German Navy of Stanton's plans. Their plans would have succeeded but for the arrival of the marines at the proper moment. The English police are made to appear ridiculous. Admiral Maybridge (retired), 70, but fit for anything, 'd—m it' has been a constant visitor of Mrs. Peel's, and had suspicions respecting her identity. These were confirmed by seeing signals from her house located on the coast, on a dark night.

The play opens with a magnificent tableau showing naval vessels firing at a German Zeppelin at night, and bringing it down in flames. All of the scenery is very fine and the costumes are beautiful.

"The Luck of the Navy" is a patriotic drama that is well acted and makes a strong appeal to every citizen who followed the fortunes of the Navy in the war and read of the activity of German spies on the coasts of England.

Kate Carew, as Mrs. Gordon Peel, and Percy Hutchinson as Lieut. Clive Stanton, V.C., R.N., play the leading roles, and performed their parts in a highly acceptable manner. Mrs. Peel showed great ability in the two characters of social leader and German spy, and Lieut. Hutchinson, the central figure, captivated the audience. A. F. Kaye, as Admiral Maybridge, deserves special mention for the manner in which he acts the part.

The play will be seen at the Grand again this evening.

Theatrical

Coming on Thursday.

Barney Gilmore, the popular Irish comedian, is coming to the Grand on Thursday, Dec. 4th, in his great Irish play, "The Rocky Road to Dublin." He has surrounded himself with a great acting company, headed by Miss Helen Evily, who came to this country with the Irish Players several seasons ago. The story deals with the friendly rivalry between a western miner touring Ireland, and the driver of a jaunting car, for the hand of a wealthy widow, which furnishes no end of complications. The play is full of sparkling dialogue, real Irish wit, songs and dances by Mr. Gilmore, with the assistance of a real Irish piper. The Lakes of Killarney and a story of real heart-interest makes "The Rocky Road to Dublin" the best Irish play that has ever been written.—Advt.

"Trelawney of the Wells" Rehearsals for the Queen's University Dramatic Club play, "Trelawney of the Wells," have been completed, and the players are now ready to give a performance which would do credit to a company of professionals. The costumes for the play, the action of which is laid in the early '60's, have been secured at great expense, and not only are they beautifully quaint, but are historically correct. "Trelawney of the Wells" tells a story of the ups and downs of a company of players of the "Wells" Theatre, London. The play is replete with touches of delightful humor, cleverly intermingled with heart interest. The struggle of Rose Trelawney to choose between her profession and the man she loves, will hold you till the fall of the last curtain.—Advt.

"Gloriana" When it came time to classify the great New York musical success "Gloriana" which plays at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, December 6th, with special matinee, the management was for a considerable time perplexed on whether to advertise the attraction as a musical farce or musical comedy. Finally he let its authors, Catherine Chisholm Cushing and Rudolf Friml, decide, and they came to the conclusion that "musical comedy" was the term most appropriate.

That "Gloriana" should be the much-talked of success that it is, is no wonder, for it is wealthy in story and in music. Mrs. Cushing has furnished the piece with a refreshingly entertaining story that bubbles over with mirth and surprises. Then, too, Mr. Friml has given it musical interruptions that have been the talk wherever the show has appeared. Scenically the production is what every high-class Broadway production should be.—Advt.

At Griffin's. Again last evening the stupendous photoplay "Sahara" attracted a large audience to Griffin's, and all were immensely pleased with the production. Louise Glaum, never before has been so compelling and fascinating as in the sympathetic role of Mignon. "Sahara" is an emotional drama that rivets the eyes of the audience on the screen. It is one of the few great stories of the past year or two in motion pictures. "Sahara" actually rivets the attention of the onlooker. One cannot look away. It brings tears; it has tensility; it strikes at the heart and the brain. It carries the glamor and color of the desert and the sweet scents and colors of the East. "Sahara" easily ranks as an unforgettable picture. Don't miss this picture. Miss Evans, the popular exponent of singing, continued to please again last night, and provides much enjoyment.—Advt.

AN ENGLISH WEDDING.

The Bride the Daughter of W. H. Hall, Kingston.

At St. Saviour's, Cedars Road, Clapham, England, on Saturday, Nov. 4th, a number of friends assembled to witness the marriage of Miss Ethel K. Hall, 28 Lessar Avenue, South Side, Clapham Common, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hall, 321 Earl street, Kingston, Canada, to Leonard Grey Wigens, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wigens, 57 Muncaster Road, West Side, Clapham Common, the officiating clergyman being the Rev. A. R. E. Roe. The bride, who was given away by her eldest brother, H. Hall, was charmingly attired in a dress of ivory satin with beaded and silver trimming and panels trimmed with fringe. She also wore a veil caught with orange blossoms, and carried an Ivory Prayer Book, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bridesmaids wore Miss Winifred G. Hall (youngest sister) and Miss Laura V. M. Powell, and she was also attended by two pages, who were little Miss Marjorie Hall and Master Eric Hall (niece and nephew of the bride). The two bridesmaids wore fiery crepe-de-chene gowns, with side panels of pale flame georgette, strings of pearls, black georgette hats with pale flame roses, and swede shoes. They carried bouquets of white chrysanthemums and purple heather. The little girl page wore a white muslin frock with band of pale flame georgette and white hat, and the boy was in a white duck suit, and both carried baskets of white chrysanthemums and purple heather. The bridegroom presented to the chief bridesmaid a gold bracelet, and to the other lady a string of pearls, while the girl page received a gold brooch and the boy a silver-mounted walking stick. Lieut. Frederick Newman Hoare was the bridegroom's best man, and the groomsmen, Edgar B. Wigens (bridegroom's brother) and Stanley Hall (bride's brother).

The ceremony was fully choral, W. G. Goodway, A.R.C.M., L.T.C.L., presiding at the organ, and the choir met the bride at the west door, with the officiating priest robed in cope, and the ordinary service was immediately followed by a nuptial mass. After the ceremony, there was a reception at the Guild Hall, Wandsworth Road, by Mr. and Mrs. W. Whitmore (eldest sister of the bride), and later in the afternoon the newly-married couple left for Ultracombe for the honeymoon, the bride's travelling costume being a grey gaberdine and velour hat to match. There were numerous wedding presents.
