

Veterinary Wonder Medicines

Known to all horsemen and stock owners from coast to coast. We mention a few of our many recommendations which speak for themselves.

DR. G. W. BELL, V. S.

Sole Manufacturer, Kingston, Ont. Agents in all parts of Canada.

I have many enquiries here for Veterinary Medical Wonder. Please forward by return 3 doz. bottles, also send me price list.

A. W. TRACY, V.S.
Sherbrooke, Que.

I have used your Veterinary Medical Wonder on my stock farm giving it to horses, cattle, sheep and pigs, and find that one dose generally effects a cure. I gave a cow a dose which had not chewed her cud for three or four days and in a few minutes she was chewing as well as ever. I have given the Wonder to horses that could scarcely stand on their feet and in ten minutes have effected a cure.

S. G. HOGLE,
Odessa, Ont.

Send me two dozen bottles of Wonder Colic Cure, sample sent me was the best I ever tried. I have treated a number of horses with it and have never had to give a second dose.

E. H. KETTLEWELL,
Tuxford, Sask.

In my long practise as a Veterinary Surgeon I have obtained great results from your "Wonder Medicines," which I keep constantly on hand.

JOHN F. FRIESEN, V.S.,
Lingham, Sask.

ARTHUR D. MILLS,

If every medicine stood as high in the estimation of the public as Dr. Bell's Medical Wonder there would be something doing in the drug business.

E. SCARLETT, Druggist,

Send me two dozen bottles of Veterinary Wonder; also one dozen packages Kidney, Water and Blood Powder, and one dozen Wonder Fire Blister. All "Wonder" Medicines sell well here.

A YULETIDE TRAGEDY

When Josiah Gibbs found that his wife "had it in for him," as he called it, and had bought him a box of cigars for his Christmas present, he grew wise and, with apparent sorrow, said to her:

"Now, isn't it too bad, my love? I discovered that cigar smoking was becoming so injurious to me that I have quit it and have to content myself with a few whiffs now and then on my pipe with mild tobacco. Now, isn't it too bad?"

"I'm so sorry, dear!" said Josiah Gibbs' wife. "But your friends will enjoy them, and I am sure that will please you."

Gibbs smiled grimly and, as his wife departed, winked knowingly at himself in the looking-glass. And when he saw his friend Joe Spicer he told him how he had escaped his wife's Christmas cigars—Joe Spicer, the best judge of a good cigar that ever bit off the end of a two-for-a-half. And Joe smiled grimly, too.

But every time Joe Spicer called at Gibbs', which was often—he was an old friend of Gibbs—he smoked one or more of Josiah's wife's Christmas cigars.

"Gallant and diplomatic of you, old man!" Gibbs would say to Spicer on opportunity, and smile the knowing smile. And Joe would smile his.

And by and by the cigars were all smoked by Spicer, and Gibbs' wife was led to say to Gibbs:

"It's just a perfect shame, Josiah, that you couldn't take any pleasure in those cigars, and that your friend Spicer should have had them all."

At which Josiah smiled his knowing smile and said:

"Oh, well, my love, never mind, Joe seemed to enjoy them."

"Yes, indeed!" said Josiah's wife, "why shouldn't he?"

"Which made Josiah smile more and more, and almost chuckle. But he said nothing.

"Yes, indeed," repeated Mrs. Gibbs, why shouldn't he? You know, Josiah, you told me that a woman should never choose cigars for a Christmas present to her husband, as a woman knows nothing about their quality, so I asked Joe Spicer, having heard you say often what an excellent judge of a cigar he was, to select a box for me—the best he could get—and he did, and—"

Josiah Gibbs had instant business down at the office, where he tore his hair and flung his pipe and tobacco out of the window. And he passed Joe Spicer without bowing, and without his knowing smile. But Joe still wears his—Browning's Magazine.

1920.
What it may hold, I do not know,
How much of weal, how much of woe,
How much of joy, how much of pain,
If thorns or flowers its path shall strew,
Who may be false and who be true;
Yet knowing not, my wish is this—
A year for all of boundless bliss.
The seasons crowned with peace and plenty,
And grief for none, in 1920.

—J. Aitken Brown.

Don't wait until it begins to sprinkle before starting to lay in something for a rainy day.
