"SWAT THE COLD" - A HEALTH SLOGAN

Health Authorities Are Back of Campaign Which Covers Entire Continent.

The familiar "Swat the Fly" slogan is now being revised by health authorities and the public is being advised to "swat the cold" in winter as heartily as they "swatted" the fly in summer.

Behind the movement is the desire to check the possible spread of "flu" by the prompt treatment of every case of cold. The symptoms of the "flu" in its early stages are the same as those of a bad cold and last year the flu reached its advanced stage in many cases before the patient realized that the trouble was more serious than a cold.

If every person would get busy as soon as a cold develops and use home remedies to break it up, we wouldn't hear so much about the "flu," says one Eastern official. "It would do wonders and that quickly."

Colds in the head or the "flu" in its early stages are promptly and effectively treated at home by the use of Grip Fix. This is not a patent medicine, but a combination of drugs such as would be used by any physician. It comes in capsule form and relieves a cold in the night and acts promptly in case of "flu."

At this time of the year every home should have a box of Grip Fix. It is on sale at all drug stores, where it sells for 35 cents per box.

A Creeper for Garage
BY GRANT M. HYNE

If Father likes to take care of his own car, as many car-owners do, he has probably often wished that he knew of some scheme to make easier the work of getting under to reach out-of-the-way grease-cups on the chassis. Why not build him a "creeper," like those the mechanics use in the repair-shops—or rather a wooden imitation of the spring affairs they use?

The creeper should be made strongly and of good sound wood—clear-grained pine, yellow pine, cypress, or anything else that is handy—for Father is heavy. The stock for the frame-work should be 3/4-in. wood, 4 or 5 in. wide (B and B are 18 in.

long; A and A are 36 in. long.) Fasten the joints with screws. The platform on top should be made of some lighter boards, about 1/2-in. thick, taken from grocery boxes—strong but flexible enough to bend a little.

For wheels, get four strong furniture castors—preferably with metal wheels—at the hardware store. Select castors that have locking devices which drive into the holes first and keep the castors from falling out. Bore holes for the castors in the frame-work at C, C, and C before you nail down the top boards.

A head-rest will be a much-appreciated addition to the creeper for Father will tell you that his neck gets tired when he is working under the car. The standard (D) for the head-rest should be cut out of a 2x4, and should be about a foot long, slanted so as to hold the rest about 4 in. above the creeper. The crosspiece should be a 1-in. board, 5x8 in., covered with cotton-stuffed cloth. As it is often handy to take off the head-rest for certain kinds of jobs, fasten it to the creeper with two long stove bolts.

Aches and Pains of Rheumatism Sometimes Almost Unbearable.

There are weather conditions that make rheumatism worse. They are not the same in the cases of all persons. Some victims of this disease suffer more in dry warm weather than in moist cold weather, but all suffer more or less all the time.

The cause of rheumatism is an excess of uric acid in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints. Hence the blood must have attention for permanent results in the treatment of this disease.

The Wreck of the SS. Titanic. At the time of the wreck of the SS. Titanic she was the latest of vessels afloat, her length being 882 1/2 feet. She was built in Belfast, Ireland, and belonged to the White Star Line. She started on her maiden voyage from Liverpool, bound for New York, under the command of the late Captain Smith, with two thousand passengers on board. While in mid-ocean, off the coast of Newfoundland, and under top speed, she came in contact with a huge iceberg, and foundered during the night of April 14th, 1912. The wreck of the Titanic is one of the greatest disasters ever known on sea. The night was cool, the ocean calm, and the sky was filled with twinkling stars.

After an evening of gaiety, the passengers had retired for the night. But it was not long before the ship received a terrible shock, and some of the passengers were thrown from their berths, while others rushed on deck to ascertain the cause of it. It was not at first thought that the damage to the Titanic was of a serious nature. But on a closer examination it was found that the majestic steamship was damaged to such an extent as to endanger the lives of those on board.

The order was then given by the late captain to have the lifeboats lowered. His next order was that women and children should be the first to be placed in them. The attending scene, which occurred when husbands and wives, parents and children, parted, never to see one another again, was one that will always remain in the minds of the people. Yet through all there was wonderful calmness, and more wonderful bravery shown by many, while endeavoring to save their loved ones.

The Titanic carried sixteen lifeboats, all of which were filled with human freight, and lowered in three of the lifeboats capsized amid the ice-floes, and after hours of drifting, the remaining sixteen were rescued by the SS. Carpathian. Among the passengers on board the Titanic were many prominent personages, including C. M. Hays, who was president of the Grand Trunk Railroad; J. J. Astor, W. T. Stead and Colonel Archibald Gracie, all of whom were doomed to a watery grave.

A Kind Deed. One day a boy got a bow and arrow. A robin built her nest near his home. The robin had three young ones, and went to seek some food for them. The boy was trying his bow and arrow and spotted the fat robin on a stump in his garden. The boy shot at her and the arrow pierced her in the wing. She fluttered to the base of the tree where she had built her nest. She had to stay there all that long night, with the young ones crying. After she had waited for a while, a man with a kind heart, (not like the boys) lifted her in her nest. The little ones were very glad to have their mother back with them. The robin's wing got better a few weeks, after. Her young ones grew quite big. Not long afterwards they were so big they flew away. Their mother was very ill and she died. But she never forgot the man's kind deed.—Ashley Aldridge, aged 13.

A Song of Apples. When the autumn sun is bright, When leaves are crisp and cracky, And the frost clicks in the night, Their satin coats are shiny, Their seams can hardly meet, And every ruddy, round-cheeked chap At heart is sugar sweet Sing for the autumn apples When the autumn winds romp in! We run for bag and basket, We open box and bin, Then when we've gathered bushels And piled them in a heap, We never find a single one That's not too good to keep! —Arietta Orr, aged 13 years.

An Old Sword Tells Its Story. If an old sword could speak it would have many wonderful tales to tell. The sword that I am going to tell you about was through the Boer War. As the sword was made in Canada and Canada helped Great Britain in the Boer War, its story shall be most interesting. The sword had killed and wounded many at the swinging of its master therefore it was named Korak, meaning the killer.

Korak, swinging at the side of one of Lord Robert's lieutenants, marched into Pretoria. The lieutenant was sent to relieve Kimberley. The sword and its master had been through some of the skirmishes with the Boers at Kimberley.

After a siege of one hundred and twenty-two days the siege lifted and Kimberley the diamond city passed into the hands of the British.

Korak and its master were then sent to help General Buller capture Ladysmith. Although Ladysmith was strongly garrisoned it fell to the siege of the British. This is a story of an old sword that was made in Canada, and went through the Boer war with a Canadian soldier.—Gordon O'Grady, aged 13 years.

For Girls to Make Homecraft

New Year's Party Costumes BY CAROLYN SHERWIN BAILEY

Don't worry because it is the night before the New Year's party, and your dress isn't ready. You can make a lovely costume using home materials, cheesecloth, cotton batting, stitched with black yarn to look like ermine, old silkline curtains for flowered silk, cast off burlap or denim for huntsman's things, and gilt and silver paper for crowns and jewels.

The Snow Queen Wear a white dress and over it a long white cloak made of an old sheet edged with the cotton batting ermine. Sprinkle the fur with frost powder. Tufts of cotton, also frosted, should be caught to the cloak. A string of white or glass beads, and a stiff white paper crown covered with cotton wool with small silver paper stars pasted on at intervals completes the Snow Queen's dress.

Mistress Time Study a picture of the ancient Greeks that shows the long tunic-like dress of the girls with its border in the form of a fret. Make yourself a tunic of heavy cheesecloth, and paste on a border cut from gilt paper. Do your hair in a Grecian twist and wear a band of yellow ribbon that comes down over your forehead. Carry an hour glass or a small sickle.

The Spirit of the Woods A skirt of dark burlap or denim, a white blouse, and a girle of moss green velvet make the foundation for the costume. Trim the border of the skirt with artificial holly, and wear a wreath of it. Carry a bunch of evergreens, or wear a spray of pine.

The Spirit of the Hearth This is for the dark haired girl who can wear flame color. Cover an old red dress with crimson tulle or the red tulle on sale at holiday time. The covering should be full enough so that it will move like the fire it represents, and a painted border of yellow will give it the appearance of flames. A long string of black wooden beads typifies the coals of the hearth. Use the big, wooden kindergarten beads, staining them black. And do make yourself a cricket to perch on your shoulder. His body is cotton batting, covered with black crepe paper, and his legs are hat wire, wound with black silk and bent into shape.

DIED IN HOSPITAL

Boy Shot While Hunting Rabbits Near Cornwall.

Cornwall, Ont., Dec 30—Lawrence Tyo, aged fourteen years, son of Alexander Tyo, of Glenwater, a few miles east of Cornwall, passed away at the Hotel Dieu hospital on Saturday as the result of an accident on Christmas day. With two or three boys, Tyo went to a bush near Paragon, a neighboring settlement, about two miles from his home, to shoot rabbits. One of the boys, named Paul Struthers, speared a rabbit and took aim, but the gun did not go off. Tyo was behind him and Struthers turned around to tell him the gun would not work, when in some unknown manner the gun went off and the shot took effect in Tyo's left side. The unfortunate boy was hurried to the hospital here, but the shot had penetrated the bowels and he died from blood poisoning.
