presentation, and I am quite sure the citizens of Kingston will see to it that they have it. But what of those other nondescript classes, if you will, those to whom fell in part the duty in the great struggle through which we have passed "to keep the home fires burning"—shall they not also have their due representation? To these unorganized nondescripts, who form the majority of the electorate, I feel sure that my letter of the 27th inst. will not bear the interpretation that has been based on it. They will see in this interpretation simply an exemplification of "petty politics," in dragging into the controversy matters which are quite extraneous to the question at issue. If I may be pardoned for saying so, such a course of action is not in keeping with the noble and chivalrous courage which prompted these men to generously offer themselves on the altar of liberty that freedom might live. However, I am not so unsophisticated as to believe that the old game in political controversy of setting up straw men in order to knock them down has passed into disuse simply because the great war has been won and the "world made safe for democracy." I with others must accept the "logic of facts," and as I have already stated would not deprive the gentlemen who have attacked my letter of the 27th inst. of any political advantage they may have gained through the incident.

—M. S. GRACE.
About Aldermanic Candidates.
Kingston, Dec. 30.—(To the Editor.)—Would you kindly allow me space in your paper to protest against statements which were made in a letter published in your paper over the signature of the "President of the Retailers' Association."

In the first place, what grave danger threatened our city by the action of the returned men placing candidates in the field for aldermanic honors? Who have more right to say how this city should be governed than those men, who, when real danger was at our very doors, gave up home and friends, and in many cases gave up "life" that our city should continue to enjoy freedom and liberty.

Look up the lists of "candidates" whom Mr. Grace thinks will prevent the apparent danger. How many of them were willing to face the real danger in 1914? Some of them in the prime of early manhood, single men, with no one depending on them.

In Support of Ald. Peters.
Kingston, Dec. 31.—(To the Editor): I would like to tell the ratepayers of Frontenac ward why they should vote for Ald. Peters in tomorrow's election. By his wise action in 1918 in purchasing an asphalt plant for the city, Ald. Peters has saved a great deal of money for the people in the way of road building and enabled far more paving to be done than otherwise could have been attempted in these days.

Then Ald. Peters is the only man in the city who has shown a spirit in regard to the new hotel. It is hoped that the summer work will be started on the new hotel, which will cost $100,000, and to Ald. Peters is largely due the success of the project, for as chairman of the committee he has worked most effectively in interesting moneyed men in the scheme. Let Frontenac ward tomorrow elect Ald. Peters as its representative in the City Council.
—J. D.

A Grateful Acknowledgment.
Kingston, Dec. 31.—(To the Editor): This club considers it a privilege to express its appreciation to the council conducted its affairs in regard to its dealings with the city's interests, and especially to promote the advancement of the city's interests, and especially to thank Mr. S. J. Hadden, man of city property, for his interest in us and for his further the city's interests. In consideration of the fact that we have mapped out, we feel that Mr. Hadden's help is necessary. return should be made to the friends of Frontenac ward. "Sam" a vote.

Aged Sailors Found Dead and Gas Pouring From Open Jet.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—Friendship of more than fifty years, formed when they sailed before the mast from Norway to see the ports of the world, was ended to-day for Olat Johnson, eighty-three years old, and Early Jacobson, seventy-seven, and police were investigating their deaths from gas poisoning. Side by side they died as they had worked and lived after a half century's smelling salt water had lost its lure. Six years ago they retired and came to Chicago to live.

A visitor found the ancient mariners unconscious on the floor yesterday with gas pouring from an open jet. They died at a hospital.

THE MERCHANTS AND THE VETERANS

In view of the letter of M. S. Grace Daily Whig of Saturday last, to which the Veterans' Municipal Committee has taken such strong exception, and in consequence to the Merchants of the city, who were never consulted by Mr. Grace in the matter of the letter, a sub-committee of Returned Men was appointed to wait on the Merchants, and from the following they received the strongest assurances that they were not in sympathy with the letter of M. S. Grace nor responsible for his opinion. As these Merchants have been our friends under all circumstances, we feel it a duty to clear them in the manner of all blame. The following Merchants were interviewed:
