About ten o'clock on Monday morning an alarm of fire was rung in, and Chief Potter and his brigade and new motor truck were promptly on the move, but it was found that the fire was situated at a point very difficult of access and too far removed from the nearest hydrant to make the water works system of any use. The truck also stuck before it reached its destination. The brigade, however, assisted in every way possible to save everything they could. The furniture from the lower story was gotten out, but a considerable amount in the upper flat was burned. The building was a two-story frame dwelling, and was located near the bridge over the Gananoque river, known as the T.R.R. bridge, and near the town limits. It was owned by the Messrs. Minnie and Sarah Stunden, and was a total loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, of Front of Leeds and Lansdowne township, spent a short time in town this week with the latter's brother, G. W. Scott, Arthur street.

A league is being formed among the various churches of the town, and the mayor and Dr. C. H. Bird agreed to finance an open rink at the town park for the winter. The lumber was on the ground on Tuesday morning, and work was at once started, and the rink will be in readiness at an early date.

Through the kindness of Messrs. Shaw and Watson, the Palace Rink has been secured for the boys on Saturday from six until seven o'clock, and also the services of Capt. "Nick" Bawfi, who will be on hand to encourage the boys.

WAS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Young Man Was Taken Into Custody on Wednesday Night. Joseph Gallagher was placed under arrest on Wednesday, charged with indecent assault, the complainant being Gladys Lennox. After hearing the story of the complainant, Magistrate Farrell committed Gallagher to stand trial.

According to the evidence of the young woman, she went out for a taxi ride with Gallagher, and they drove out Princess street, about a mile outside the city limits, and it was here the offence was committed. She said that her screams brought a farmer to her assistance, and that the farmer walked in with her to the city. Another young man and a young woman were also in the party. No charge was made against the other young man.

BROOK STREET CHURCH IS NOT YET SOLD

The Time For Receiving Tenders For Building Has Been Extended.

Although the tenders for the sale of Brook street Methodist church were supposed to close on January 2nd, the committee appointed by the trustee and official boards of the church has seen fit to extend the time for bidders to make their offers.

On Thursday morning a member of the committee, when asked by the Whig if any suitable offers had been received, stated that for the present he was unable to say anything more than that the time limit had been extended. The trustees have agreed to sell the organ to Queen street Methodist church congregation.

It is expected that the Brook street church will be closed on, or about March 13th, as on that date it is expected that the Queen street church will be re-opened.

When the Queen street church is re-opened, the pastors of both churches will carry on the work until the meeting of the Montreal conference, when the stationing committee will decide who will be the new minister. In June, Rev. J. D. Ellis completes his four-year term, so it is altogether likely that he will be posted to a new field.

Smith, formerly operator at the Queen's Military Hospital, was in charge of the entertainment, which was greatly appreciated by the children.
