

MERRY DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

YOUNG FELLOW CALLED FOR ANOTHER MAN'S CLOTHES.

And Then Disposed of Them at a Second-hand Store—Police Located the Suit, But the Culprit is Missing.

About the boldest daylight robbery which has been pulled off in Kingston in many a day was put over this week by some young fellow who has not yet been located, and who evidently has left for parts unknown.

Several days ago a young man named Weaver left a suit of clothes to undergo some alterations, and also to be pressed at the tailoring shop kept by Christopher Robinson on Wellington street. A day or so later a young man called at the tailor shop and told Mr. Robinson that Weaver had sent him to call for his suit. Mr. Robinson was rather surprised at the visit from the young fellow, as the suit was not ready, he having arranged with Mr. Weaver as to the time it should be finished. However, the caller had an excuse to offer, which was to the effect that Mr. Weaver had been called out of the city suddenly, and this was the reason for his wanting the suit of clothes sooner than he at first expected. Mr. Robinson hurried up the job in order to oblige his customer, and in due time the young man went off with the suit.

But the next day Mr. Weaver appeared on the scene and asked for his suit. "But your man called here for it yesterday," said Mr. Robinson. Weaver was surprised to hear this, as he did not send any person for his suit.

Then Mr. Robinson explained all the facts of the case to Mr. Weaver, and the latter reported the matter to the police. Constable James Cotter, who is doing plain clothes duty this week, succeeded in locating the missing suit of clothes in a second-hand shop.

It was learned that the young man who called for the suit at the tailor shop gave this suit and $2 to boot for another suit in the second-hand store which caught his fancy. Mr. Weaver was very much surprised at the proceedings, as he stated that he did not know of a single person having knowledge of his having left the suit of clothes at the tailor shop, but he was overjoyed at getting the suit back again.

The police would now like to have an interview with the young fellow who pulled off the nifty "stunt."

The Late Mrs. J. W. Elliott.

Three years, to the very day, after the death of her husband, Mrs. John W. Elliott, sank into eternal sleep on Monday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Crothers, Princess street. Never very robust, she was stricken a week ago with pneumonia and could not rally. Deceased was a woman of fine attainments, gentle and sweet in manner and life, and capable in all undertakings. Her friends, and they were many, are greatly grieved at her passing. In Queen Street Methodist Church she was devoted and helpful and her true Christian worth was there abundantly exemplified. Deceased was a daughter of the late George Watson and she is mourned by a fond mother, two sisters, Mrs. T. W. Moore, Detroit, Mrs. E. T. Jones, Sydney, Australia and one brother, Benjamin Watson of this city. Tenderly and lovingly Mrs. Crothers gave care and thought to Mrs. Elliott through the past years when sickness and weakness came upon her.

Gildersleeve won by a good margin, while T. M. Asselstine and George Hanson lost by a few points, but not sufficient to kill the Kingston lead. The rinks were as follows:

Tankard Games. The tankard and district cup games in the Ontario Curling Association commenced Tuesday afternoon. The competition came in for considerable criticism, owing to their rule that prohibits a curler once playing on a tankard rink from competing in a district cup competition.

The opinion freely expressed was that this rule operated only to the benefit of the clubs in Toronto and other large centres, that the smaller clubs were in many cases prevented from entering the district cup competition by reason of the fact that some time or other one or more men had played on a tankard rink and had in this way been disqualified from playing in any other competition.

The feeling is that this rule should be rescinded and that a curler should have the privilege each season of electing whether he would play in one or the other competition, or if that was felt to be too wide, a privilege that all curlers who had played but one game in the tankard should not be under any disability as to playing in the district cup competition.

Chief of Police Robert Robinson has inaugurated the finger print system of records for prisoners. This is a system which has been in vogue for some time in all the large centres, and has been carried out with great success.

On Monday the local police secured the finger prints of J. P. Black, who was arrested charged with passing bogus cheques, and also James Sutter, who was sentenced to three months in jail for theft.

The system is one that will be a great help to the local police and to the police all over the country.

PROPERTY CHANGES. Some Merchants Must Move—Worm with Company to Build.

Owing to property sales, several Princess street merchants will be moving in the spring. Warwick Bros. have purchased the building occupied by W. A. Sawyer, boot and shoe merchant, and will transfer their business there. The Dominion Express Company moves into the present Warwick store below Montreal street.

The Bank of Nova Scotia takes the building occupied by the Dominion Express Company at the corner of Princess and Wellington streets.

It is understood that the Worm with Piano Company intend building from its present factory at the corner of Princess and Ontario streets right up to the brick buildings below King street. The tenants of the small stores in the middle of that block have received notice to quit.

Standard Oil Melos. New York, Jan. 13.—Rumors are in circulation that there was to be a big melon-cutting by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. One report was to the effect that 100 per cent. stock dividend was to be declared, while another held that stockholders would have the right to subscribe at par to new common stock. If the stock dividend were to be declared it would mean the distribution of $100,000,000 at par, while in the case of a subscription at par to new shares on the basis of one new share for each old share, the rights would be worth about $346 to the common stockholders. There was no confirmation of the rumors.
