NUTRATED IRON Is Used By OVER 3,000,000 PEOPLE ANNUALLY To Help Build Up THEIR HEALTH STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

You Can Tell
The People Who Have Plenty Of Iron In Their Blood
They Are The Strong Vigorous
Healthy Folks

Look around at the men and women you meet in a single day. One glance is enough to tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood strength and physical energy to back up their mental power and make them a success in whatever they undertake.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says that to help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases and restores the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is conservatively estimated that Nuxated Iron is now being used by over three million people annually, and it has been used and endorsed by such men as Ignace Jan Paderewski, Ex-Premier of Poland and Master Pianist; United States Judge G. W. Atkinson, of the Court of Appeals at Washington; also former Health Commissioner Wm. A. Kerr, of Chicago, and many others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGione Gibson

A Visit from Mother.
Charles' intimation that it was cowardice that made me plan to go back to my husband as soon as I felt physically fit set me to analyzing my true feelings about John.

I pondered the matter for a long time before I went to sleep last night and I know now that I do not hate John. I know this, alas, better than ever before. Since I have been down here alone, I have wanted, oh, God, how I have wanted to feel his arms about me, to look up into his eyes and know again that he wanted me. I love John but I do not like him; he is my lover, but not my friend; he is my husband and still a stranger. Just to remember how he says, "girl, girl," thrills me to my fingertips, but my whole being rises up in revolt as I think of his arrogance and selfishness. Between us there exists the eternal discord which is the great tragedy, as well as the great attraction of the sexes.

quite sure I could stand a little more happiness than I have been having lately. I do not want more night than day in my life. My hours of ecstasy since my marriage have been few and far between, and I am rapidly reaching that place where, like Helen, I am almost ready "to take my happiness where I find it."

Grown Away from Teachings.
As I sit with those thoughts coursing through my mind I shudder a little to find how far away I have grown from my mother's teachings.

What am I going to do with my little mother; I hate to be untruthful to her, and yet I am sure that if she looks into my heart she will be horrified as well as unhappy. Her life with my father seemed one of perfect bliss. Are there such perfectly happy marriages, I wondered. I'm going to ask my mother if she ever felt the twang of discord among the strings of her lute. Was her life with my father always "one grand, sweet song?"

Perhaps the Best Part.
Arnold Bennett said in an essay on women: "Who wants the sex discord to be resolved? The sex discord may be the most exasperating thing in existence, but it is also by general agreement the most delightful and the most interesting. Its development for the devilish adventurousness of mankind is a part of the great search for truth—and perhaps the best part."

"If men and women were to wake up one morning in perfect and mutual comprehension, and in the assurance that no discord separated them on that day, the sun—where it had shone—would shine in vain. The globe would have to put up its shutters, the sublime adventure would be over and the great first cause would have to think of something fresh by which to beguile the men and women within its snare."

"There you have a man's opinion, and I do not agree with him. Women do not want to live in discord even if it makes 'the great adventure.'"

"We, poor, mistaken mortals, are always longing for perfection, but having obtained it, would we not be disappointed because in the universe of emotion there would be no more worlds to conquer? However, I am

So busy was I thinking over this that I did not finish Charles' letter. When I read further I noted that they were due any minute. The letter had been delayed in the mails. I still had it in my hand when my telephons rang and the girl announced my mother and Charles. I felt that I was not ready to meet them. I had not yet decided on what I should tell or what I should not tell my mother. And above all else I regretted having Charles see that I was not happily married. I was afraid that he would bring about again a declaration from him.

Waiting Outside for Me.
All my life I had realized that he was waiting—waiting just outside for me.

I was shocked when I saw my mother. She had failed visibly since I was home at the time of father's funeral. She looked so small and white. I was more than ever sure that Charles had made a mistake in bringing her when I literally poked her up in my arms and found my burden so tiny, so light that I felt as though I were holding a child.
