LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGione Gibson

DISTURBING NEWS
The next thing I heard was a voice that seemed to float to my ears from a great distance. It said: "Well, she will be all right now," and then I opened my eyes. I never knew that eyelids could be so heavy; it seemed to me that mine weighed pounds—and I looked up into the face of my kind old doctor.

I knew, of course, the moment that I saw him that I must have been unconscious a long while, long enough to send for him, and long enough for them to stretch me out on the bed and remove my clothing. I was lying there in my night dress, and for all that I knew, I might have been ill for weeks. Alice came forward and said, "Don't talk, Katherine, just lie still."

"But I don't understand. The last thing I remember, you asked me to go with you to see Ruth. Was that hours or days ago?"

"It was about two hours ago, Katherine, when you fainted," she said. "I have fainted so many times lately. What is the matter with me, doctor?"

The old doctor looked at me curiously. "Don't you know what is the matter with you, my dear child?" he asked.

Never Fainted Before
"I haven't the slightest idea. My heart has always been strong enough until now. I never fainted before in my life until within the last few months. First, just before the automobile accident, when I was expecting—a rush of realization came over me. "Was it possible—Oh, it couldn't be." But even as my thoughts formed again the sentence, "it couldn't be," I knew instinctively that the doctor was right.

I was crying hysterically and Alice was trying to calm me. The doctor mixed a sedative and insisted upon my taking it.

"She will be better in a little while," he said.

Never Will Be Better
"No, I won't," I answered. "I will never be better. I shall be quite as unhappy about this baby's coming as I was about losing the other."

It seemed to me, as I lay there, that no woman had ever been so unhappy over the knowledge that a child was coming as I. I tried to tell myself that I was wicked and selfish but all the while that insistent thought was flashing through my brain that when a child comes the marriage bond is tightened.

As Alice said just before I fainted. "When children come, the marriage is cemented in such a way that whatever one's personal feelings and inclinations are, one's duty is imperative." I told myself these things over and over, but it meant nothing, literally nothing. Beside them in my brain was written all John's neglect of me, and his utter selfishness where I was concerned.

I think perhaps, what crystallized this in my mind was the fact that since I had inherited money John had been so kind and thoughtful of me. He could never do anything nice for me in the future, and give me a care, or even a smile that I would not think was inspired, not by his wife but by a Texas oil well that was pouring money, money, into his wife's pocket.

Wanted to Be Free
I do not think that ever before had I wanted to leave him so much as this moment. Never had I wanted, with such great intensity, to be free. Perhaps this was because I realized that I was bound, bound forever to John and the baby that was coming.

THE 250TH ANNIVERSARY

OF THE HUDSON BAY COMPANY ON MAY 3RD.

Celebration of the Event to be Held in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

(Canadian Press Despatch)
Winnipeg, Man., May 1.—With Indian fur brigades and York boats loaded with pelts on the Red river, council fires burning at Lower Fort Garry and the smoke of the peace pipe scenting the air, the romance of wilderness days will live again at the celebration of the 250th anniversary of the Hudson Bay Company which will be inaugurated in Winnipeg, May 3.

Sir Robert Kindersley, G. B. E., latest of the distinguished line of Hudson's Bay Company governors, will be present from England and will take part in the river pageant and in the subsequent street pageants which will be held successively in Edmonton, May 6-8; Calgary, May 11-13; Vancouver, May 15-19, and Victoria, May 21-24.

The Red river pageant, which promises to be one of the most interesting historical spectacles ever staged in Canada, will start from the site of old Fort Garry, early capital of the company's once vast empire and which Winnipeg grew, and pass down stream eight miles to Lower Fort Garry. Trikers out in bravery of paint, feathers and beaded buckskin, Indians from a dozen tribes will man York boats and canoes in fur brigade formation. To do honor to the company to which their ancestors paid loyal allegiance Indians will come from the shores of Hudson Bay, James Bay, Lake Superior fur country, northern Saskatchewan; from the prairies and from the Rocky mountains, Athabasca and British Columbia.

A flotilla of freight boats piled high with bales of furs will trail in the wake of the York boats in charge of factors and trappers in pioneer costumes. As it glides in long procession through a countryside famous in Hudson's Bay traditions, the company by smoking the calumet past the site of Old Fort Douglas, the scenes of Lord Selkirk's Red river settlements and the battlefield of Seven Oaks where Governor Semple and twenty men fell in conflict with their rivals of the North West company, the pageant will seem to sail out of the past of 250 years ago.

When it reaches Lower Fort Garry whose stone buildings and battlemented stone walls still preserve the picturesqueness of early days, two ancient brass cannons at the gate will boom a salute from the rusty throats. Within the walls of the old stronghold where the first treaty was signed between Canada and the western Indians in 1871, Governor Kindersley will seal anew the ancient friendship between the Redmen and the company by smoking the calumet of peace. The pipe, especially designed for the occasion, will bear carved upon its stem the totems of all the tribes and will be presented to the governor as a souvenir. Sir Robert will confer upon each of the braves a medal struck in honor of the anniversary and at a council at which the Indians will squat upon the ground in a wide semicircle, will reply to orations by the sachems and chiefs. After the speeches the Indians will present a wampum belt to the governor in ratification of their pledges of fealty and will partake of an old fashioned feast.

Street pageants will be held in the other four cities. Floats will picture romantic episodes in the company's history and the development of the west and in the parades will appear Indians, trappers, cowboys, dog teams, Red river carts, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, government officials and civic bodies. In all the cities moving pictures taken on a special expedition which spent seven months in the north and illustrating every phase of the fur trade, will be exhibited free to the public. During the pageants it is expected the five cities concerned will declare holidays.

Cleans Thoroughly--Polishes Brilliantly

THE remarkable, beautiful effect obtained from the O-Cedar treatment, is due to the fact that O-Cedar "cleans as it polishes."

It is important that all dust and grime be removed from any surface, in order to give it that lustre which is something more than a mere surface polish.

This O-Cedar accomplishes. A few drops of O-Cedar on a wet cloth will form a soft lather that removes all scum and dust.

The final operation consists of a brisk rub with a dry cloth. The result is all that could be desired—a hard, dry lustre on furniture and floors; a dazzling radiance on your automobile.

O-Cedar Polish, 25c. and 50c. a bottle; $1.25 and $3.00 a can.

O-Cedar Polish Mop, without handle, $1.50. The handle, 54 inches long, is 25c. extra.

Both Polish and Mop at your Hardware or Grocery Shop.
