paid by the public? Only one of the big newspapers of this country published this extract from Mr. Lewis' evidence against the coal operators and commented on it editorially. It adds:

"Every reader shares Mr. Lewis' curiosity. Many would like to know where coal can be had for $9. It costs more than that. For instance, $15 a ton is paid in Augusta, Ga. What do you think of the American system that makes the consumer pay fifteen times what the stuff costs at the mouth of the mine? By the way. Montreal.

Montreal, May 11.—Oats, Canadian straights, $13.75 to $14.50. Hay their so-called 'outrageous demand firm; No. 1, $3.20 to $3.25; No. 2, $1.30 to $1.32; Canadian western, No. 3, $1.29. Bran, $53; flax, No. 1, $4.74 to about half of the time, and the men $4.79; wheat, cash, No. 1 northern, have been able to earn wages only about three days a week. They did $1.94 to $1.96; oats, No. 3 white, not ask for a shorter week; they asked for a longer week, a chance to do more and earn more. The ingenious press agents of the coal mine owners made the whole country think the miners wanted to do less work, when they really wanted to do more."

At the hearings recently closed in Washington before President Wilson's commission to settle the coal strike, so called, Van H. Bittner, statistician of the miners' union cited a mass of statistics showing wages, earnings, cost of production, profits, etc., and then submitted statistics obtained from the treasury department and financial reports, which show that in 1917 there were 355 mining companies in the central competitive field that made 15 per cent on their capital stock, 311 made 20 per cent, 295 made 25 per cent, 270 made 30 per cent, 232 made 40 per cent or more, 197 made 50 per cent or more, 105 made 100 per cent or more, and 8 companies made over 1,000 per
