S. Kenyon of Iowa comes forward with a suggestion that the President be asked by the Senate to undertake negotiations with the British Govern ment looking to the acquisition by the United States of the Bermuda Some men weigh a lot more on the Islands, which lie almost due east from Charleston, S.C., are about two days' sail from New York in a southconsterly direction, and have long been regarded as the principal North Atlantic naval station in the chain which Great Britain has established around the globe. Perhaps Halifax, N.S., would dispute this claim; nevertheless, Bermuda is a station which American naval men have coveted since Revolutionary days, hence one of the reasons for Senator Kenyon's resolution, which has been referred to the Committee on Foreign Rela-

Within the last twenty-five years the United States has slowly improved its naval position in the West Indies. The Spanish-American, War made Porto Rico an American colony and gave Uncle Sam Guantanamo Bay in Cuba as a naval training station which is used by the Atlantic fiest in winter. Then the opening of the Panama Canal provided addition security, and finally the United States acquired the Danish West Indies (St. mas and St. Croix), now the Vir-Islands, by purchase, thus obtain-bases for the protection of the London despatches say that there is no intention on the part of the British Government to consider the VERY decade or so some one cession of any of its West Indian pos-suggests that the United sessions or Bermuda to the United States should buy several of States. Even if Great Britain serlously considered such a move if would be necessary first of all to con-sult the wishes of the people of the islands. Self-determination is more than a phrase in British colonies as old as Bermuda or Barbados and Jamaica, and no British Government part of American statesmen and naval would attempt to barter their future

> Bermuda disputes with Newfoundland the distinction of being the oldest British colony. The Bermudians have a distinct political entity. They have made their own laws since 1620. when their Parliament - the oldest legislative body next to the mother Parliament at Westminster - came into existence. The British Govern-ment demands nothing of them. They pay no taxes or tribute to Great Britain, and acknowledge only the British Government's right to send them a military and civil governor, whose constitutional powers are limited. In return for the protection of the British army and navy the Bermudians give their allegiance to Britain, and being British by birth and tradition they are satisfied to remain a part of the British Empire, although union with the United States would undoubtedly give them certain commercial advantages which they do not now possess, because while their natural market is New York it offers restrictions in the way of tariff sche-ar vote there is no doubt that the majority would be opposed to a hange in allegiance. Again, Canada would doubtless ave to be considered. Canada has an eye on the West Indies as a market for her products and an outlet for her surplus capital, and the ques-tion of giving the Dominion control over the islands has arisen more than once. Canada now buys great quantities of West Indian sugar and gives in exchange farm products and manufactured articles. Union with the Dominion might prove of advantage to the West Indies, provided that Canada could offer the same military protection which Great Britain prorides for her colonies.
