NEW SCHOOL CORNER STONE

Laid Monday Afternoon by Chairman T. W. Mills

Warm Tributes Were Paid to the Late Robert Meek After Whom The School Is Called.

The ceremony of laying the corner stone of the Robert Meek public school in Cataragi ward was carried out on Monday afternoon. The stone was laid by Thomas M. Mills, chairman of the Board of Education, while the platform was occupied by Mayor H. C. Nickle, members of the council, trustees and officials. A large throng of residents of the ward and the children who will occupy the rooms of the building when completed were in attendance to hear the speakers, all of whom paid warm tributes to the work of the late Robert Meek who served the Board of Education of the city so faithfully during his life time.

The chairman called upon Rev. W. T. G. Brown to offer prayer. His invocation was an inspiration to all within sound of his voice. W. M. Campbell chairman of the property committee, presented a silver trowel to Mr. Mills bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Thos. W. Mills, chairman, upon laying the corner stone of the Robert Meek School, May 24th, 1920." Mr. Mills then laid the stone and declared it to be well and truly laid. Turning to the audience he said: "Every true citizen feels the glow of a healthy pride in the city in which he lives particularly if it be the place of his birth. He loves her institutions. There are no stores and streets and parks that he likes better than those in his own city. The others may be better and grander than those in his own city, but he loves the city of his choice and the place of his birth, and will not allow anyone to knock it, that is, if he has the heart of a true citizen. He has respect for those in authority, who are selected by the people, and may I add right here, that there is no city that has better reason to feel satisfied with its schools and officials and teaching staff than has our own beautiful city of Kingston. Where can a scholar or student acquire an education under more favorable conditions. Nowhere, not even in Toronto or Montreal, and our educational facilities are growing in usefulness and importance all the while.

"I congratulate the people of Cataragi ward on the prospect of having a school that shall be second to none, with a fine assembly room, which I trust will be much used by the citizens in furthering good fellowship generally and thus prove a benefit to and an inspiration for the scholars. The assembly room well patronized will help bind the scholars to the community, and the community to the school.

"My! how they love to see the older people coming out to the school and exhibiting an interest in their work, and hard work it is for the most of the kiddies. I often wonder if we older people have enough sympathy for the little fellow who is struggling with his lessons and other troubles—have we?"

"May I say that our citizens should der their tax burdens with a good heart. I know there are some grumblers but this grumbling wears away and is lost in the multitude of people who do not grumble. A citizen with no family, and large property interests, is called upon to pay taxes to erect a $140,000 school for the fellow with small assets and large family. What splendid arrangement that is after all.

"I am glad that it fell to my lot to have the privilege and great honor of participating in laying the corner stone of the Robert Meek Memorial School. I am glad that it has been called after a once busy man, who won an abiding place in our memory, a man who did more for the public schools of this city than any other man I know of. Therefore, it is very fitting that we should express our love and esteem by naming this school after him, and thus aid in perpetuating his memory.

"There is not now (and I think

5 or 6 Years of Misery from Goutre, Gu-Solve Re-moved it.

Everyone—man or woman, who has goutre, will read with the greatest interest the following letter from Mrs. Wm. Lower. It was a happy day for Mrs. Lower when she heard of Gu-Solve. It will be a happy day for you when you decide to get rid of your goutre for ever.

"Dear Sir,—I now take much pleasure in writing you to thank you for Gu-Solve. It sure is a wonderful medicine, and I sure can give it a great recommendation, as it certainly has done wonders for my neck, which is progressing just dandy. I can see a big change since I commenced taking it. The two (2) bottles have taken it pretty nearly away. I am at the third (3) bottle now, which is taking it completely out of my system. I have gained in weight since taking it and the trouble which has been making life miserable for me for the last five (5) or six (6) years, has been completely overcome. I have suffered every day with severe pains in my neck, and it was causing my eyes to pain a lot, and I was very nervous, so much so, that the slamming of a door would make me terribly upset, and a good night's sleep was out of the question. I would certainly get out of bed the next morning feeling more tired and worn out than I did the night before. Then I decided to give Gu-Solve a trial, and it is the honest truth, I commenced to feel better before I had taken all of the first (1) bottle of your wonderful medicine, and my condition just kept getting better, until I am now better than I ever was in my life. I have got back all my strength, can easily do my housework. My nerves are in perfect condition, and I can now sleep as well as a child. It is simply wonderful the way I have gained—in fact I just feel fine all the time. As long as I live I will never lose an opportunity to say a good word for Gu-Solve. Thanking you again, sincerely yours, Mrs. Wm. Lower, Ontario, Canada.

there never has been) a member of any public school Board, who is not deeply interested in the welfare and education of the children of his city. Therefore, I feel honored in representing the Kingston Board of Education here today in connection with this important event in the history of the city and of Cataragi ward in particular. May the school prove a blessing to the whole community, yes, and to unborn generations whose little feet shall yet tread its halls and occupy its rooms for the development of their lives."

Mayor H. C. Nickle followed Mr. Mills and he paid a high tribute of respect to the late Robert Meek and his work as a citizen. Mayor Nickle declared that while one third of the city's taxes went to support the public schools, it was his opinion that it was the best investment the city has. This school will cost $142,000, but it is to fill a great need and be congratulated. The citizens of Cataragi ward, the trustees and officials and the Board of Education upon its erection. He declared that Kingston stood higher than many cities in educational matters, and it was a cause for congratulation that seventy-five per cent. of the pupils in our schools passed the entrance examinations, and reflected very favorably upon the teaching staffs.

Herbert Moore, trustee for the ward, congratulated the residents upon having such a splendid building that was to be all their own. Their representative it has been his pleasure to assist in securing it to serve their needs and he was glad to be privileged to take part in the ceremony of laying the corner stone. Allan Lemmon, another trustee of Cataragi ward, was the next speaker. He said he received his schooling in the old Cataragi school, and one object he had in consenting to the erection of a new school, was the realization of a source of gratification to himself and to all who had the interest of education at heart. He knew the late Robert Meek well and he paid a warm tribute to his faithful service as a citizen. The school was a fitting monument to his life's devotion to the cause of education and the interests of the city generally, and would prove an inspiration to all who entered its portals.

Among those present on the platform were Inspector J. Russell Stewart, E. O. Sitter, John McDonald, secretary of the Board of Education, trustees A. W. McLean, J. B. Cooke, W. A. Sawyer, Rev. J. W. Jones, F. R. Anglin, architects, J. Power and C. G. C. Drever, R. Wallace, contractor, L. Gillespie, H. Gillespie. At the conclusion of the addresses all joined in singing the National anthem.

Trade Secrets.

There are at least two trade secrets which have been so jealously guarded that they have remained close secrets for hundreds of years, and may never be known to the world at large. One is the Chinese method of making the bright and brilliant color known as vermilion, or Chinese red, and the other is a Turkish secret—the making of the hardest steel with gold or silver. Among the Chinese and Turks these secrets are guarded well. Apprentices before they are taken for either trade, are compelled to swear an iron-clad oath to reveal nothing of what passes in the workshop. They must also belong to families of high standing, must pay a large sum of money as a guarantee, and must furnish certificates of good character and honesty. These secrets have been handed down faithfully from one generation to another for hundreds of years.

X-Ray saves the Aviator.

In the construction of airplanes a great deal of attention is given to the inspection of material which is designed to enter into the various parts of the machine before it is worked up in order to avoid the possibility of accidents which might occur due to the presence of some defect. The wood used is especially watched and only such pieces as appear to be of the most perfect character are selected in the first place, and after being sawed up a large percentage of this is rejected despite the care of the first selection. The leading English manufacturers of airplanes now make constant use of the X-ray for the examination of all wood and metal designed for use in the construction of their planes. The X-ray tube is contained in a metal case, a hole being cut in the top of this to admit the upward passage of the rays. The strut is laid over this opening, and the penetrating rays pass through the wood, like the sun's rays through glass.

A Retort.

At a political meeting held in a provincial town in England a crowded audience had assembled to support a parliamentary candidate. During the speech of the candidate a man put his head in at the door and shouted in a stentorian voice: "Can anyone here sell me six pennyworth of assese?" The speaker halted, evidently quite dumbfounded; but the chairman of the meeting immediately silenced the intruder by retorting: "Yes, but you have nothing to put it in."

Some Blow!

Following a fight at Llanbradach, near Cardiff, John Charles Herbert, 17, a collier, has been arrested on a charge of causing the death of Edward Jesse Payne, 16, also a collier. The lads are said to have disagreed, and decided to have a fight. They went to a field, each accompanied by seconds and a small band of supporters. The fight had lasted about six minutes when Payne, it is said, received a blow under the heart. He fell and died almost immediately.

Oriental English.

The English in the following speech quoted by the writer from an unnamed Oriental paper, would seem to do more than halt: "The news of English we tell the latest. Write in perfectly style and most earnest. Do a murder commit, be heard of and tell it. Do a mighty chief die, we publish it and in borders sember. Staff has each one been colleged and write like the Kipling and the Dickens. We circle every town and ex-ertionate not for advertisements."
