A DELIGHTFUL CONCERT INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

GIVEN BY THE KINGSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Which is Composed of Sixty-Eight Volunteer Players—Audience at the Grand Was Charmed By Prof. Teigmann's Orchestra.

The annual concert of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra, that has been eagerly looked forward to by friends and admirers, was given in the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening and it proved to be a delightful entertainment. Composed of sixty-eight volunteer artists organized and trained by Prof. O. F. Teigmann, this orchestra is undoubtedly one of the finest in Canada today. Two of the leading violinists, Misses Mignon and Norma Teigmann, rank with the most accomplished players to be found anywhere, having spent their lives in acquiring the mastery of their instruments and cultivating a genius which was early recognized by the musicians of Kingston. Many of the players are graduates of Prof. Teigmann who conducted the orchestra, and its achievement reflects the greatest credit upon him.

Every number on the programme was rendered with consummate skill, while the instruments chosen gave such perfect balance and richness of harmony that the effect was amazingly brilliant. The first number was an Overture, "Titus" by Mozart and was a fitting introduction to the masterpieces that followed. Among the pieces that might be particularly mentioned were the beautiful waltz "Nannette and Dainty Butterfly," (Loesch); comic symphony "The Toy" conducted by Master Arthur Teigmann; Concerto "Vivace-Largo" (Bach) by Misses Leslie Taylor and Norma Teigmann; Intermezzo, "The Egyptian and Indian Dance," Symphonie No. 8 (Schubert); Glosonda "Dance of the Hours" (Ponchelli); Sweet Sixteen, a bachelor's dream (Teigmann). In all of them there was evidence of the highest degree of training and the audience which was for the most part composed of Kingston's music lovers manifested the keenest appreciation by prolonged applause. Never in the history of Kingston has there been such a splendid musical organization or one that so justly merited the praise and admiration of the citizens.

The concert was in every respect a magnificent success. Master Arthur Christmas, a lad of fourteen years, gave a euphonium solo, "The Minstrel Boy," that was greatly enjoyed, and Angus Orr, baritone, sang "The Pipes O' Gordon's Men" in fine notes. Mrs. Teigmann, elocutionist, gave three dramatic selections very effectively, that were much appreciated.

The orchestra completely filled the spacious stage and all of the young ladies presented a beautiful picture. They were dressed in white and each wore a beautiful large red rose. Their work is an inspiration, as showing what can be accomplished in music by patient study and organization. The poise and bow work, particularly in the front row, was perfect, and the response in changes of movement faultless. The conductor had perfect control and considering the size of the orchestra, this reflects credit upon the individuals everyone of whom knew his and her part perfectly.

HAGENBECK—WALLACE CIRCUS

It Will Spread Its Tents in Kingston on June 10.

Advertising car No. 1 of the great Hagenbeck-Wallace circus spent today billing the coming of this circus on Thursday, June 10th, just two weeks from today. In another week car No. 2 will be here. It has been announced by the advertising manager, J. C. Donahue, that no banners will be tacked on the buildings this year. Asked the reason of this policy he remarked: "This method of advertising has been realized that after the big circuses, though the small ones of ten or twelve cars, continue to tack. The reason for this change of method by the big shows is that there is nothing that spoils the beauty of a city more than these rags. The big circuses have realized that after the banners remain on the walls for several weeks they become faded and raggy with the result that they hang there to the disgust of the property owners and the community, for they are never removed by the circus. This method has also been the direct cause of many deaths. In attempting to remove the dirty rags from their buildings, the property owners have fallen, either being killed or receiving serious injuries."

Therefore this circus will not be hanging banners on the walls of business buildings. The merit of their performances is known to everyone and this advertising is unnecessary. It is said the performance this season surpasses all previous years. The best of talent has been brought from England and with the headliners of this continent and the greatest of wild animal acts, the program offered is unrivalled.

A feature which only big shows provide is a downtown ticket office where seats can be obtained on circus day. The location will be announced later.

APPEAL TO GRADUATES

To Complete Amount Required For War Memorial.

Queen's is making an appeal to her graduates to complete the amount required to build the war memorial, which some months ago it was decided should take the form of a student's union. Nearly $250,000 will be required, of which the staff and undergraduates, already, have subscribed over $30,000.

The list of slain totals 179. The sacrifice of these dead comrades must be fittingly remembered. The name of Queen's, moreover, is associated with its engineers, its batteries, its general hospital, its field ambulance, the 253rd battalion, and with the hundreds of men who served in other units. That work also should be remembered. The majority of suggestions favored a student's Union which would become a centre of social and religious activity for the undergraduates.

The Union, would contain, first of all, a room dedicated to the memory of the university sons of the Great War, and having among other memorials a complete roll of honor. The building would also contain a dining hall, a debating hall and rooms for the Alma Mater Society, the staff of the Journal, the Y.M.C.A. and other agencies of student life. It is felt that provision should also be made for the women students.

GETTING THE BUILDING READY FOR FACTORY

Charles A. Eaton is Preparing for the Manufacture of Cutlery.

Charles Albert Eaton has been engaged in fitting up an office in the cereal works building, which the city has been authorized to purchase for a cutlery factory. He has a quantity of machinery consisting of lathes and stamping machines ready to install, but before much can be accomplished the ovens and other cooking apparatus that take up a considerable portion of the first floor will have to be removed. The building is well adapted for factory purposes, and Mr. Eaton is letting in more light by opening the wall at the ends for windows. He is planning to have the work pushed forward and operations underway at the earliest possible moment.

NOT TO LIGHT THE RIDEAU

OWING TO THE SMALL TRAFFIC AND EXPENSE

The Waterway's Danger Spots Marked With Posts—Movements of Vessels in the Harbor.

The department of canals has decided that the Rideau canal will not be lighted this season. For years the canal has been lighted all the way from Ottawa to Kingston. The man who had the contract to light the Kingston section of the canal lived at Brewer's Mills, and used to come up in the morning and take down the lanterns which were used to give light and then return in the afternoon and place the lights out. These lights have been a great convenience to marine men who have had occasion to travel on the river after dark. In many places if it were not for the lights it would be impossible for boats to travel. It is understood that it was the intention of the department to mark off the canal with posts similar to those used in marking bad spots in the harbor. The department has two reasons for discontinuing the lighting service. One is that there are very few steamers travelling and the other is the heavy expense.

The City of New York, is in dry-dock, being overhauled.

The steamer Maplebrook, from Port Colborne, en route to Montreal, passed down last night with grain.

The steamer Belleville from Toronto, and bay ports passed yesterday on her way to Montreal with freight.

The steamer City of Ottawa, from Montreal, passed west with freight.

The steamer Maplegreen passed yesterday from Montreal to Port Colborne.

The steamer Maple Glen, which ran aground at Brophy's Point on her way up the river on Wednesday morning, was released by the tug Bronson, and the only damage she sustained was a broken rudder stem. She was towed into Kingston on Wednesday afternoon and went into the dry dock of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company for repairs.
