

SCHEDULE NOT COMPLETED

FOR THE ST. LAWRENCE AMATEUR BASEBALL LEAGUE.

Kingston Teams Cannot Devote so Much Time to Play as Other Teams Whose Players are Able to Holiday All Summer.

The St. Lawrence Amateur Baseball League executive met on Friday at Gananoque to draw up a schedule for the summer.

Representatives were present from Alexandria Bay, Clayton, Gananoque and Kingston. Brockville had no representative present as its team were holding a meeting of their own to decide how many games a week they could play.

Much difficulty was experienced in arranging the schedule. The teams from the other towns can play five games a week while Kingston's two teams are composed entirely of Kingston boys who are unable to leave their work so often.

TO MEET IN TORONTO

The Oddfellows Refuse to Go to the Soo Next Year.

London, Ont., June 19.—Toronto was selected as next year's convention city for the Ontario Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, which closed its sessions in the Masonic Temple yesterday.

A vigorous battle was waged by the New Ontario delegates to carry the convention for 1921 to Sault Ste. Marie, but the Grand Lodge shied at the enormous additional expense that would be involved, and on a vote of 211 to 121, Toronto was selected.

The following officers were elected for the coming term: Grand master, H. G. Robertson, of Barrie; deputy grand master, A. W. J. Hamilton, of Fort William; grand secretary, William Brooks, Toronto; grand treasurer, P. T. Coupland, St. Mary's; grand warden, T. A. Sharp, of Midland; grand marshal, J. E. Anderson, Lindsay; grand conductor Charles Cowie, North Bay; grand guardian, J. I. Cosens, Stratford; grand herald, J. C. Gilder, Ottawa; grand messenger, William Fountain, of Toronto; grand chaplain, Rev. J. W. Hibbert, Essex.

Prominent Men and Hunters Start From Edmonton, Alberta.

Edmonton, Alta., June 19.—Noted soldiers, financiers, big game hunters and globe trotters, as well as men prominent in the north, were passengers on first train of season over the Alberta and Greater Waterways railway to Fort McMurray.

Among the prominent passengers who are making the trip, most of them going right through to the mouth of the MacKenzie river, some 1,200 miles north of Edmonton, are: M. Staes, a prominent financier of Belgium; Lieutenant-General Sir Richard Turner, V.C.; D. K. Miller, of Milwaukee, noted globe trotter and big game hunter; G. Boucher, of Toronto; H. A. Conroy, of Ottawa, Indian agent, who is taking the train to the Indians; Dr. McDonald, of Port Smith, the medical man to the Indians of that district, and many others.

The Northland Echo will meet the train at the end of steel, and will at once start on its long trip down the MacKenzie river to the land of the midnight sun.

ANOTHER GERMAN PLOT

POLAND A STEPPING-STONE IN WORLD POWER.

Caustic Analysis of Main Outlines of Teutonic Policy Which Desires to Exert Strong Influence in Newly-Organized State—Berlin Has Clever Scheme to Make Ambitious Use of Neighbor.

CIRCUMSTANCES alter cases. The present position of Poland is very different from what was foreseen by President Wilson, Mr. Lloyd George and M. Clemenceau last June. Its safety within the frontiers fixed for it by the Treaty of Versailles was admittedly dependent on the capacity of the League of Nations to uphold the rights of the weak and on the complete disarmament of Germany.

Of the dangers which threaten Poland from the East and the West that from Germany is infinitely the greater. There is no reason to suppose that, if the Poles are given sufficient munitions and equipment for their army, they will not be able to repel the Bolsheviks, but the German menace is not one which can be met by armed force.

It is not for nothing that they call it a "Saloonist." The strong men, who, with or without the Government, control the fortunes of Germany to-day, the chiefs of the military caste and the great capitalists do not intend that it shall exist for more than a season as an independent state. The plan is to prevent it from ever becoming strong, except under German influence. Poland is to be a stepping-stone to Russia.

In pursuance of this policy half a dozen new railway lines were planned and partly built. A new scheme for reorganizing the railway station at Warsaw for the speedier handling of goods traffic was thought out. The Vistula and the Bug were surveyed with an eye to their development for barge traffic. The prospects were found good, and docks were started at Plock and other places.

The general lines of this policy are still being held in view. The consolidation of Poland as a state is to be prevented in every possible way. Every opportunity is to be taken of encouraging strikes, communist agitation, and political squabbles as a means to this end.

The Prussian Poles are to be discouraged and discontented by having every flaw and weakness in the Polish methods of administration held under their noses and contrasted with Prussian efficiency. The Polish market is to be flooded with products of German manufacture, and German capital is to be skillfully used to establish controlling influence in every big enterprise that the Poles may undertake.

Motor cars, agricultural machinery and every sort of manufactured goods, from airplanes to fountain pens, are now being effected in Poland by Germans at prices at least 60 per cent. lower than anything which Entente countries produce.

The comparatively favorable rate of exchange between Polish and German marks of course helps the German. It is to his advantage that the Polish currency should stay so low that the Poles cannot afford to buy from England, France or America, and there is a good deal of evidence that the market has been manipulated by German agents with this object in view.

The way in which the German authorities have persistently hindered the Poles from enjoying free use of Danzig for imports and exports, and the careful steps they have taken to remove from the port everything that could be of use to the Poles (all in defiance of the terms of the treaty) are just one more example of German determination to prevent Poland from developing normally.

The wretched Poles are to be shepherded into making a mess of their country, and then, when it is quite helpless, the Prussian will step in and run it for them.

It will be impossible for the Poles to set aside every official who served Austria or every man who collaborated with the Germans in the kingdom from 1916 to 1918, but both Poland and her allies must beware of the danger which lies in seeking help from an enemy. It must be admitted, however, that only too often there are incentives to be won for Poland by looking to Germany. The Allies waste months in deciding whether Poland's demands are justified, how they can be met, and who is to meet them. The Allies have friends in Poland who will support their connection with Poland through thick and thin rather than risk dependence on Germany, but there are others, equally opposite.
