LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGione Gibson

I think I surprised myself more than I did Miss Parker when I said that I liked men again, but not in the mass. But, thinking it over, I know that I had told the truth. I could not like individually, and yet when I thought of men as a sex I almost hated them.

"I like to nurse women better than men," confided Miss Parker. "Women are braver and much more patient, although I have met a few men who were the exceptions that proved the rule, just as I have met a few fussy and querulous women. You were a splendid patient," she said with a smile.

"I couldn't have been otherwise; I was most of the time unconscious, you know."

"It is then," remarked Miss Parker, "that people show their true natures."

"I do not believe that. I have been told by physicians that some of the loveliest mothers in the church used blasphemous language under an anesthetic, and some of the roughest of men became as little children under the same conditions."

"That in no way controverts my assertion," said Miss Parker unexpectedly.

"Oh," was my astonished remark as I subsided.

Filled With Wonder. I looked at this woman sitting beside me again and again during the next few hours of our journey, and I wondered how two people could live together as we had done for many weeks and yet one at least might not know the other at all.

Parker was seemed to me a kind of scientifically ministering automaton. I had never thought of her as having her thoughts and opinions upon probably every subject which had intruded upon my mind.

"I must get her point of view," I said to myself, but all once I felt too tired to probe further. I wanted to rest and look out on the ever-changing landscape. I did not want to think. I knew that soon I should be back in the world—the world of business and hurrying and strife, and that I should need all my courage, all my energy and all the enthusiasm I possessed.

I was awakened from my reverie by Miss Parker asking me, "Shall we go directly to your home, Mrs. Gordon?"

"I think not," I answered, "although Mr. Gordon did not say. I think he expects us to go for a few weeks to our rooms in his mother's house."

"I understand that she was not at all curious in the matter, but just trying to make conversation."

Told In Twilight

The Country Club provided another delightful afternoon for its members and their guests on Saturday. The tennis courts were full and the postponed Clock Golf competition came off with many interested spectators, Miss Wilhelmina Gordon being the prize winner. An American tennis tournament is being talked for next Saturday. The ten table, bright with pink poppies, was in charge of Mrs. Heber Lafferty and Mrs. Garnet Greer. Among those present were Col. and Mrs. Hill, Col. and Mrs. Foulkes, Prof. and Mrs. Iva Martin, Mrs. W. H. P. Elkins, Capt. and Mrs. Neil Black, (Toronto), Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gilderleeve (Denver), Capt. and Mrs. Webber, Major and Mrs. Garnet Greer, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Ryan, Mrs. Fortt, Miss Loretta Swift, Miss Isabel Gilderleeve, Miss Dorothy Gilderleeve, Miss Marion Leslie, Miss W. Gordon, Miss Mamie Anglin, Miss Alleen and Miss May Rogers, Miss Edith Macpherson (Ottawa), Miss Hilda Hague, Miss F. Foulkes, Miss Laura Kilborn, Capt. Leg, Messrs. Rudd, Foulkes, Swift and Rogers.

Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Radcliffe, Toronto, accompanied by Mrs. Radcliffe's sisters, Miss Scholtz and Mrs. Craig, of Kingston, and her nephews, sons of the late Major Loghrin, motored to London last week and were guests with Mrs. Mara for two days, in honor of her guests, Mrs. Mara entertained at a picnic at Port Stanley.

Mrs. Turner and children, Hamilton, are with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Slater, Barrie street.

Dr. Gordon Byers and family, Summit Circle, Montreal, are at Gananoque.

Mrs. W. Kirkpatrick and Miss Lassie Kirkpatrick, Barry street, are leaving tomorrow for Lake of Bays, Muskoka.

Miss Mildred Lee, Kingston, is the guest of Miss Raf Botting, Westport.

Capt. and Mrs. S. V. Cooke, Kingston, are staying at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa.

Mrs. T. J. Elliott and three sons have left the city to join Mr. Elliott in Calgary and will settle in Richards, Alta.

In the Old House. "No, she is to live in the old house, where she has lived so many years. A friend and distant relative of Mr. Gordon's and of his family is to live at her home. Mme Gordon is a handsome woman for her age, rather stately and, you might say, set in her way. She has always run the house and John and I have been more as guests or boarders with her. However, like most cases of this kind, the arrangement has not been particularly pleasant. Mme. Gordon has expected more of us than she would have asked of guests, and we have felt sometimes that she had not paid as much attention to our wants as she might have had we actually been boarders, although of course John has always paid the house bills."

Miss Parker made no comment, but I was a little curious to know just what she was thinking, for there was a peculiar look in her face.

"You look relieved," I said.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she said quickly. "I did not mean to show my thought, but if I be allowed, my dear Mrs. Gordon, I will say that the only trouble I have ever experienced in nursing in families has come from older people, who thought they had a right, not because of any training or special fitness for the work, but solely because of age, to know better what to do in all cases than I or anyone else. It is sad, Mrs. Gordon, that age almost always brings selfishness and conceit in its train. I have rarely met and old person who could say to me, 'Yes, my dear, I have been through all those things which you are going through now, but, take heart, take courage, I have weathered them, and so will you.' Instead, most old people say to you, 'You are not doing the right thing. It isn't what I did at your age, and unless you change and do not only the thing I want you to do, and in the way I want you to do, you will never come through as I have done.'"

Heart Beats Faster. I had no time to go further in the conversation, because we were beginning to slow up as we went into the home station. I felt my heart beat a little faster, as for the first time I allowed myself to ask, inwardly, "Would John be there to meet us?"

I did not expect him, really, but oh, how I hoped he would be there. Although we had begun slowly to pass some people who were evidently waiting for friends, I did not really look out the window until we came to a full stop, and then to my amazement I saw Elizabeth Moreland—and no one else.

Codfish Croquettes

The EASIFIRST way

A DAINTY, satisfying and economical dish—when properly cooked! Use the recipe given here—just a wee bit of skill—and EASIFIRST. Your Codfish Croquettes will be light and delicious indeed.

Why? Because in deep frying EASIFIRST may be brought to an intense heat without burning. This means that foods fried in it have a quickly-formed, protecting crust which prevents the fat from soaking in! The interior cooking is done by heat alone, as it should be.

The EASIFIRST left over may be used again. It will not carry any flavor.

Here is a Good Recipe—Try It!

- 1 cup boiled codfish
- 2 cups mashed potatoes
- 1 cup thick white sauce
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Salt to taste
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Shred the codfish, add potatoes, pepper and parsley, then add the cream sauce. Shape, roll in crumbs and egg, then again in crumbs, and fry in a deep kettle of EASIFIRST.

For Cream Sauce, 1 level tablespoon EASIFIRST, 1 level tablespoon flour, 1 cup hot milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Every package of EASIFIRST bears the Government's stamp of approval. Your grocer will supply you. Sold in cartons and tins.
