FORCED TO TAKE SON FROM SCHOOL

Grateful Mother Telis How Tanlac Brought Back Her Boy's Health.

"I am more grateful than I can our boy Arthur, for it has completely restored his health and built him up wonderfully,' was the statement made by Mrs. Florence Mulines, of Peter street, Toronto, the other

"His illness was brought about the air raids. During the war we were in England, and you people here can't imagine what we went through when those terrible zeppelins and sothas came over, dropping their combs and aerial torpedos, and the noise of our guns trying to shoot down the German aircraft was as terrifying as though one was actually et the front. As the result of that apprience, Arthur, who is just fif. teen, got into a frighfully nervous condition, which affected his general calth as well. We had the greatest difficulty to get him to eat, and his stomach was all upset, for he had indigestion very bad and his food formed gas and turned sour. He was always complaining of terrible headsches, and had spells of dizziness. He got into such a badly run down condition at last that we had to keep him away from school. He lost all night would lay awake for hours. We tried everything we could think of to try and build him up and make him well, but nothing seemed to meet tin case. "Then when the war was over we name out here to Canada and heard bout Tanlac, and got some for him. Very soon we noticed that he was ating much better, and sleeping coundly at night. It wasn't very long before he was playing just like other boys, and was full of life, and everylody was remarking what a wonderful change had come ever him. He has gained eleven pounds in weight and is to-day a bright, healthy, happy oy. How can I help praising Tanme, and you may be sure that I shall always recommend it whenever I get the chance."

Tanlac is sold in Kingston by A. P. Chown and by the leading druggists in every town.

tin syrup can lid, a stick of scaling wax, and a sheet of brown paper, are all you need to manufac-ture a real but harmless flash of lightning. Let your lid be one with a flanged edge and about 4 inches in diameter. It should be clean and

Light a candle. With a damp cloth, hold the lid, right side up, over the candle flame. When the center of the lid is warm, apply the blunt end of the sealing wax and hold it there until some of the wax melts and runs out on the tin. Take from the flame and hold the scaling wax upright until it is stuck to the tin. Now take your sheet of wrapping paper and cut a piece at least a foot square. Warm it slightly, over the stove, near a lamp, or in the sun. Lay it on a wooden table which is clean

Lift up the can lid by the sealing wax handle, and rub it briskly on the warm paper several times. Lift the lid from the paper and bring the edge of a knife or some metal object near the edge of the lid. A bright spark will be seen to pass between the lid and the metal. Benjamin Franklin found that static electricity collected by such a device as this was the same kind of electricity as that which produces lightning during a thunder storm.

You can make paper figures dance with this. Cut them out of colored tissue paper, lay them on the table, charge the device by running the seal-ing-wax-handled lid on the warm paper and, if you hold the lid over the scraps of paper, they will dance up and down as if alive.

The Critical Wolf And the Memory-Man said:

A Sheep-Dog having, after many vain attempts, caught a Wolf, was about to kill him when the Wolf complained of the Dog's injustice.

The Dog, who prided himself on being just, promised to set the Wolf free if he could prove his criticism. "Kinsman," said the Wolf, "you pursue me, at your master's orders, because I kill a few sheep. Yet I eat only when I am hungry. Your master, the shepherd, kills a hundred sheep to my one, in order to sell them, and has not even the excuse of being hungry. If you were really just, you would help me to protect the sheep against Man." A pretended friend is often worse regularly in the very hot days." "You ought to try to avoid it. Never use soap in your bath when the hot weather is coming on. If, however, you have caught it, and want to get rid of it quickly, sponge your whole body, twice a day, with water containing all the boric acid that it will dissolve. For, you see, prickly heat is an irritation of the oil glands of the skin. Soap is apt to increase it, and boric acid, because it dries the skin, will reduce the irritation. You'll be amazed to find how much this simple trick will help." -GEORGETTE BEUREZ

Oratory sometimes leads to curious mistakes. A war correspondent, telling of his experiences in the World War, closed his description of a battle with the words: "And the sun sank to rest, amid the groans of the dying and the shrieks of the dead."

It was an Irishman, accused of cowardice when running away from a fight in which he was greatly overmatched, who replied: "Bedad, I'd rather be a coward for five minutes than a corpse for the rest of my life."

at a hospital a negress with a broken jaw. The surgeon, intent on discovering the exact nature and extent of the injury, asked numerous questions, to all of which the negross returned evasive answers. Finally she admitted she was "hit with object." Was it a large object?" asked the physician. "Tol'able large." "Was it a hard object or a soft object?" "Tol'able hard." "Was it coming rapidly or slowly?" Tol'able. fast." Then, her patience exhausted, she exclaimed : "To tell de truf, doctor, I was jest nach'ly kick' in de face by a gemman friend."

The governor of Maine was at the school and was telling the pupils what the people of different states were called. "Now." he said, "the people from Indiana are called 'Hoosiers,' the people from North Carolina "Tar Heels,' the people from Michigan we know as "Michiganders." Now what little boy or girl can tell me what the people of Maine are called?" "I know," said a little girl. "Well, what are we called?" asked the governor. "Maniacs."

Knew Where It Was That Time. A man who was continually losing his collar button while dressing complained to his wife about it, according to a Western paper. With an ingenuity born of the use of hairpins, she told him to hold his collar but ton in his mouth and he wouldn't lose it. This worked for several days when one morning she was startled by an unusual commotion

"What's the matter?" asked the wife anxiously. "I've swallowed the collar button," gasped the man. "Well," responded his better half, "for once in your life you know

The First Complaint

FRANCIS BOLT-WHIELER "I don't see why I should have to go swimming, when I don't want to !" Letty Stein was standing before the Council, voicing a complaint. By the rules of the Camp, she had a right to be heard before the full Council. Letty did not like the water, had not carned to swim, and, as she phrased

"She thought this was supposed to be an Independent Camp—and she was more bossed around than she was at

The situation was serious. As Director Pierre and the other council members knew well, there are some discontented people everywhere. If Letty's revolt were successful, others would follow.

Lars broke in bluntly. "You'll go in the water because I say so," he ordered. "Dirt brings sickness. As Camp Engineer, I'm in charge of the health of this camp. That goes!"

"And if I won't?" queried Letty "Then I'll order you sent home, as possible source of infection due to
