Mrs. John McKay and Miss Helen McKay, Sydenham street, entertained at the tea hour on Tuesday in honor of Miss Elizabeth Cunningham.
The spacious rooms and wide verandah were filled with flowers in the shades of gold and white, a charming background for the gay summer frocks of the guests, who were, for the most part, of the younger set.
In the tea room at the charmingly pretty table with its centre of golden gloss and feathery "baby's breath" filling the silver bowl resting upon its polished surface, were Mrs. Hubert Steacy making the fragrant tea, and Mrs. Nell Polson cutting the ices. But the centre of attraction was not the lace table, with its dai-nies, but the big wedding bell hung in the drawing room with golden chrysanthemums and green vines decking its snowy surface. Within its depths were numbers of dainty handkerchiefs so arranged that as the bride-elect pulled the ribbons that took the place of the bell rope, she was indeed showered with prettily given gifts from her girl friends.
Then came the reading of the verses attached to the morsels of lawn and lace, and very dainty some of them were, and full of good wishes for the girl bride-to-be.

There was a very charming party at General and Mrs. Elmsley's house on King street on Tuesday evening, organized by Col. and Mrs. Foulkes.
The earlier part of the evening was devoted to bridge and the latter to music and dancing. Mauve and white sweet peas made fragrant the spacious rooms and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the pleasant evening. Among those present were Col. and Miss Foulkes, Col. and Mrs.
Hill, Col. and Mrs. Bevan Dunbar, Capt. Fort, of the R.M.C.; Col.
Cameron, Capt. Routhier, Col. Stockwell, Miss Alison Macdonald, Mr.
