APPOINTMENTS AT QUEEN'S

Two Old Country Doctors for Medical Faculty—The New Teachers.

As part of the re-organizing of the medical faculty, Queen's University has just appointed as professor of pathology, Dr. James Miller at present lecturer on morbid anatomy in Edinburgh university, Scotland. Dr. Miller was educated at the Edinburgh academy, and at the university where he graduated B.Sc., in 1895; M.B., with honors in 1899; and M.D. (gold medal) in 1904. After graduation, Dr. Miller served in South Africa with the Edinburgh and East of Scotland hospital. In 1903 he went to Birmingham as lecturer in bacteriology in the university, and in 1909 he returned as lecturer in pathology and bacteriology to the School of Medicine of the Royal College, and to the Edinburgh school of medicine for women. Throughout the war he served with the rank of captain as bacteriologist to the south-eastern portion of the Scottish command, and in 1917 he was general hospital, and for the last year as lecturer in morbid anatomy in the university. He has also acted for ten years as pathologist at the Royal Infirmary and several other Edinburgh hospitals. For seven years he has been local editor of the Birmingham Indian office. He is the author of a number of papers in various medical journals, and of a student's handbook in morbid anatomy and post-mortem technique. He has held the post of examiner in the universities of Aberdeen, St. Andrew's and Birmingham, and in the Royal College of Physicians and Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh; Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons of London.

In Clinical Surgery, the university has been very fortunate in securing L. J. Austin, who has for many years been on the staff of the famous London hospital. Mr. Austin was educated at Clifton school and Oxford, and is a son of Judge Austin of Brighton. On his mother's side he is good Presbyterian stock, as his mother was a daughter of Professor Lorimer of the English Presbyterian Church. Mr. Austin's excellence as a surgeon is very widely known, and his quality as a teacher has been spoken, too, among others by all the Queen's students who have gone to London for further study. Immediately on the outbreak of war, Mr. Austin joined his services and was taken prisoner in one of the early engagements. After a few months captivity he was released and was afterwards in charge of the surgical work in one of the large hospitals.

Queen's has appointed as assistant professor of commerce John R. Ballard, M.Sc. It is likely that the school of commerce will be one of the most largely attended departments in the university, and the greatest attention is being paid to the building up of a strong staff. Professor Ballard is a graduate of the school of commerce and finance of New York university. During the years 1917-18 he was on military service with the American expeditionary force in France. Last winter he was in charge of the department of business administration in the university of North Dakota.

In mathematics, Keith P. Johnston, B.A., B.Sc., has been appointed as lecturer for the winter. Mr. Johnston is a Queen's graduate who was formerly on the teaching staff of the university and has recently been employed with an engineering firm in the west.

In biology, Rollo O. Earl, B.A., a graduate of Queen's in 1914, has been appointed as assistant professor. Mr. Earl has been, up to this time, in the department of the interior, natural resources intelligence branch.

In the department of English literature, it is hoped that Mr. Roy, who was for several years before the war lecturer of English literature in the university of St. Andrew's, Scotland, and who during the war, by his knowledge of Russian, made a remarkable place for himself in the intelligence service, will take the place of Professor W. D. Taylor, who has gone to the University of St. Andrew's.

A. E. Prince, M.A., who has been appointed assistant professor of history in Queen's, is a graduate of Manchester university and afterwards studied at Balliol College, Oxford. He was appointed lecturer in medieval history at Queen's just before the outbreak of the war. After carrying out his duties in the university for a winter he joined the army and served in Gallipoli from October, 1915 until the evacuation. He then served in Egypt until September, 1918 and was mentioned in despatches by General Allenby. Mr. Prince has made medieval history his special line of study and it is confidently expected that the department of history in Queen's will, with Professor Morrison, Professor McNeill, and Mr. Prince, be extremely strong and well-balanced.

Dr. John T. McNeill, Ph.D., a graduate of McGill, appointed professor of church history, studied for the ministry of the Presbyterian Church paying special attention to church history. In Vancouver he had the advantage of studying under Professor MacEwan of Edinburgh, and Professor James Stalkes, of Aberdeen. He crossed to Edinburgh to study further under Prof. MacEwan and went from Edinburgh to Halle, in addition to working at Union Seminary, New York, he took his Ph.D. in history (especially ecclesiastical) magna cum laude in Chicago. While at Chicago, Professor McNeill lectured in Chicago University. He is at present professor of church history in Westchester Hall, Vancouver, B.C. and has studied specially in the field of the history of the Celtic church. He comes to Queen's university very highly recommended by such men as Dean Shaller Matthews of Chicago, the late Professor MacEwan of Edinburgh, and Professor Ernest Scott, late of Queen's university.

Theatrical

Don't Tell.

One of the most important theatrical events of the season is scheduled for the Grand Opera House, Thursday, September 2nd, one night only when Mr. and Mrs. Graham Moffat, Miss Winifred Moffat and their entire original Scottish cast will make their appearance here in Mr. Moffat's newest comedy, "Don't Tell" which has just concluded a most successful run abroad. The Moffats are making their first American tour under the direction of William Morris, known to playgoers throughout the world, as the manager of Sir Harry Lauder, and who was in London last spring when he acquired the rights to "Don't Tell" for the United States and Canada. After seeing the play in Glasgow Mr. Morris decided it would be almost impossible to attempt to secure an adequate cast in New York and so he induced Mr. Moffat to bring Mrs. Moffat and the original company to this country and thus preserve the charm and atmosphere of this latest work by the author of "Bunty." "Don't Tell" while "Don't Tell" is said to be purely Scottish in its theme, atmosphere and characterization, it is said to be totally unlike anything Mr. Moffat has heretofore written. In "Bunty" the quaintness of Scottish rural life is depicted, as in "Annie Laurie," which has not yet been produced in this country, the idyllic appreciation of the native traditions are expressed. In "A Scrape O' the Pen," the tragedy of Scottish stoicism is the key-note. "Don't Tell" is described as a comedy of modern Glasgow life in which a plumber suddenly elected to the magistracy, is the chief character, from which premise it will be seen even Glasgow has its ultra-modern ideas.—Adv.

"Babes in the Woods."

Among the new faces in the cast of F. Stuart Whyte's fifth annual English pantomime "Babes in the Woods" which come to the Grand Opera House for two nights starting Monday, September 6th with special matinee on Labor Day, and George H. Summers as Capt. Kidd, who has to quit piracy and take to the real estate business on account of the luxury tax, R. N. Mincke, who by the way is responsible for the book of the "Babes," as the "Pincus" Baron Victor Dyre as the "Very Wicked" Baroness, Tom Billie who came from London to do the part of Dick Turpin, Mona Warren a charming and talented western girl who has made a name for herself in England will appear as the Pincus boy. Included in last year's favorites who are with the company are wee Dorothy Mackay who won such a warm spot in affections of local playgoers last year as Red Riding Hood and who will this year be seen as one of the Babes, in company with Madge Strachan and last but not least Charlie Cardall and Harriet Fawn whose screamingly funny coster skit is well remembered here. The scenery and costumes of "Babes in the Woods" are said to be on an even more sumptuous scale than any of Mr. Whyte's former productions which is the equivalent of saying that they will be on a par with anything ever attempted in Canada. CANNOT GET COAL SUPPLY

Pyke Coaling Station at Cape Vincent Idle—Only Chute on River.

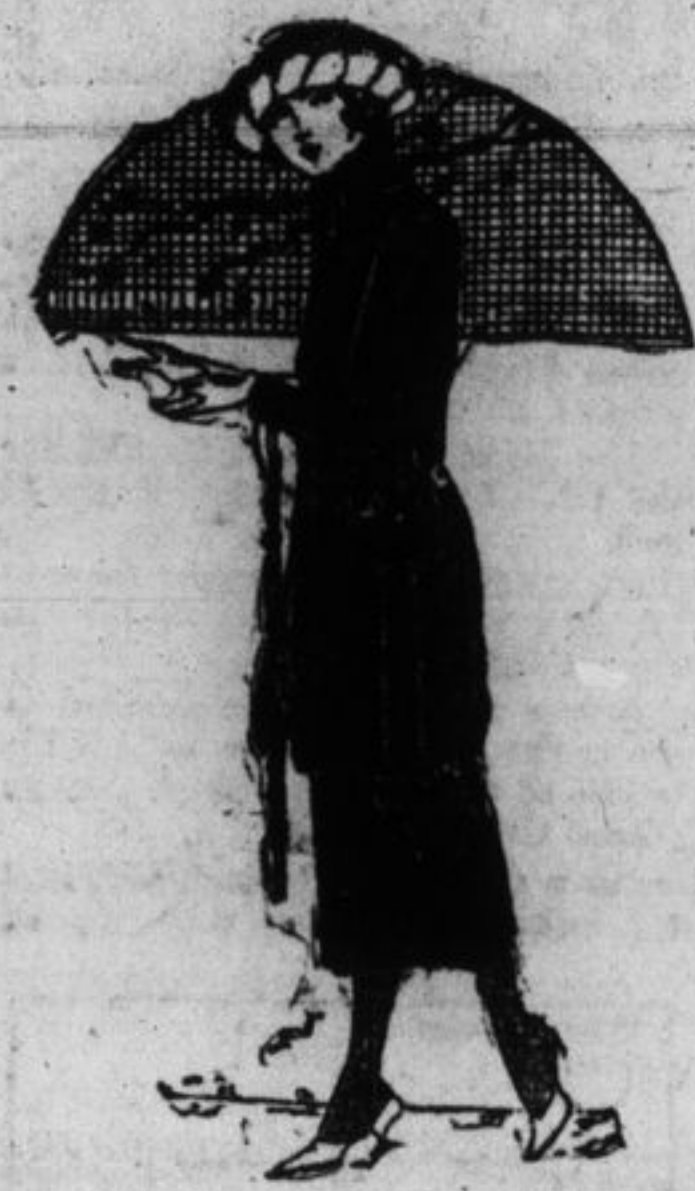

The Watertown, N.Y., Times says: Inability to obtain delivery of coal has curtailed the utilization of the coaling station for lake boats, constructed and completed this year by the Pyke Salvage company of Kingston, Canada. As a result the most up-to-date coal station on the St. Lawrence river, at least above Montreal, has been unavailable for freighters. The company has been able to secure a limited amount of coal which has been used in the lower pockets for supplying fuel to pleasure craft and light draft steamers.

It is a high affair, an immense coal pocket being upheld upon a great wooden frame and a chute provided to drop the coal carried up to the pocket by an endless chain bucket directly into the bunkers of the coaling boat. Below the top pocket are smaller pockets from which light draft craft can be fueled.

All freighters going through the American channel, which means practically the entire lower lake trade, pass Cape Vincent, and it was believed that the station would be of great convenience to shipping. To meet the demand the company last winter contracted for 20,000 tons of coal. It is reported at Cape Vincent that the coal company offered the Pyke Salvage company $2 per ton for its contract giving a clean profit without handling a ton of coal of $49,000, but that this was refused by the company.

The marriage took place at Carleton Place on the 23rd, of Miss Caroline H. Oram, adopted daughter of Mrs. John Oram, Carleton Place, to Mr. James Oram, Amstcr.

TROUBLE OVER A STILL

A Campbellford Woman Fined $200—and Costs.

Peterboro, Aug. 30.—In the recent Office reports a still. The apparatus, has placed four people in danger of the arm of the law, and on Thursday its most recent guardian, Hannah L. Young, of Myersburg, three miles south of Campbellford, was fined $200 and costs by Magistrate Payne in Campbellford, for "concocting an apparatus suitable for the manufacture of spirituous beverages." In default of payment the woman will spend the next six months in the county jail at Cobourg, at hard labor.

The two sons of Mrs. Young were likewise taken into custody, but they jumped their bail and are still at large. The original possessor and user of still, according to the inland revenue officers, is William Rogers, Madock, and a warrant for his arrest has been issued by the Chief of Police of Belleville.

Trying Out Alberta's Coal. Calgary, Alberta, Aug. 30.—E. H. Oliver, chief engineer of the Alberta Government's power plant, has been sent to Winnipeg to conduct a series of tests with Alberta coal for the purpose of demonstrating to consumers in that Province that coal from Alberta will stand the shipping and the climate conditions and will burn well.
