SYSTEM AND SERVICE

The Watchwords Which Have Developed the Business of Anderson Brothers.

Anderson Brothers' store on the corner of Division and Princess streets is a busy looking place from the outside, but one cannot nearly appreciate the activity and the amount of business carried on by this firm until he steps inside its doors. Food for every thing and for every time and place may be purchased within, and the arrangement, quality and price of the goods assure one of quick service and satisfaction.

No miniature bureau of information is needed at the entrance because of the system used by this firm. Every commodity, whether on the counters, on the shelves or hanging on the walls, is graded as to name, quality and price. The customer may see the article for which he is looking at once and on it is the price tag. For instance, a customer may be in search of bananas. Under the old-fashioned system there is a bunch hanging in the centre of the floor space where everyone knocks against it. All the bananas in this bunch are of the same price and the customer must take the good with the bad, the large with the small. Under Anderson Brothers' system, the bananas in one bunch are separated and placed in separate containers according to size and quality, with prices to match. The customer gets what he pays for.

With the last few weeks Anderson Brothers have taken a new departure in their trade by establishing a fruit department. In front of the store they have a concrete space of six or seven hundred square feet, and the greater part of this has been reserved for the display of fruit. Like all other goods this fruit is arranged in order of size, quality and price. Friday morning the display in front of the store was enough to tempt any buyer, and the prices were right. The heads of the firm claim that they have saved the fruit-buyers in Kingston a lot of money this year. The prices of fruit, peaches for instance, have been rather high until the present time. Anderson Brothers, after a study of local conditions, believed that, by buying their fruit in carload lots, and direct from the growers, they could sell at a very much lower price than that prevailing, and in this manner handle large quantities of fruit and save money for themselves and for the buying public. Their plan has succeeded beyond expectations and they now have immense quantities of fruit of all kinds clearing each day.

The outside display space is also utilized for an array of many of the different needs of the housewife for the preserving and pickling season. In order of quality and price they have arranged cucumbers, pickling onions, red peppers, celery, and all the small vegetables and fruits for canning against the winter months.

The grocery department is the same orderly arrangement of goods which may be found all through the establishment. Clerk and customer alike may see at a glance what is on the shelves, thus facilitating the business of serving and saving time and trouble both ways. The retail meat department is a hive of activity and it is a marvel how all the customers are served so speedily without confusion. Through doors opening off this large sales room one enters the refrigerators, each set aside for some particular line of goods, and all cooled by a central condenser, without the use of ice. This saves not only space, for the pipes occupy space which could not be used, but time, labour and expense. No storeroom is needed for ice, the expense and trouble of handling it is done away with, and the accompanying slush and dirt are avoided. In some refrigerators are whole carcasses of beef, in others fowl, butter, cooked meats, lard, and all the perishable goods handled by the firm, with all arranged within easy access of the central sales room.

Several rooms are set aside for the curing and cooking of meats. In one all the pickled meats are handled. An other is equipped with cutters and large steam boilers for the chopping up and cooking of hams and various meats. A large percentage of the cooked meats handled by the firm are put up by them under their own methods and supervision. The smoking room, for the curing, is behind all these and has a large capacity. All these rooms have concrete floors and cleanliness and sanitary methods are the rule throughout.

On the premises are several large store-rooms containing stocks of goods which are not perishable, and within easy access of these is the clearing room for the wholesale business. Another room next door takes in all the goods bought and keeps a record of them. Back of the main store are the stables and garages for the horses and trucks used in the delivery service. This service is now all handled from the back of the store and is supervised in such a manner that all parcels may be traced in case of error. The front of the store is not interfered with at all in the process of sending out orders for delivery.

A staff of about thirty is constantly employed at Anderson Brothers. Of these three are constantly kept busy answering the telephone and taking orders by that route. During the busy hours of the day no less than six are detailed to the outside fruit stand, in order that customers may receive prompt and efficient service. That is the keynote of the whole business and the reason why Anderson Brothers are enjoying success. A system gives service to the people, and in serving the people the firm is serving itself.

Dr. L. J. Austin, of the famous London (England) hospital, has arrived in Kingston to commence his duties as professor of clinical surgery in Queen's medical college. WORLD BROTHERHOOD

A Gathering of Leaders From Many Lands.

The second World Brotherhood congress which opens at Washington on Oct. 1 will consider matters vitally affecting the people in many lands. The widespread interest in this movement will make it quite certain that Canada generally and the Mother Country will find it hard to exceed the representation that is being sent forward by the United States and such widely differing countries as Egypt, France, Turkey and Japan. Last year over twenty-two countries were represented at the first congress held in London, England. Among those who will attend this year's congress are Rev. S. W. Hughes, of Westbourne Park Baptist church, England, Dr. John Timothy Stone, Chicago, Brig-Gen. Davey C.M.G., principal chaplain to His Majesty's forces, Rev. R. M. Gautrey, in charge of the Methodist Mission at East Ham, Rev. Hodson Smith, principal of the English National Children's homes and orphanages, etc. The delegates from Canada and the United States comprise many of the leading thinkers and speakers of the day. In Canada the Congress arrangements are in charge of Thos. Howell, 405 Kent Building, Toronto. There is little doubt that the second World Brotherhood congress will be a great success from every point of view.

READY FOR ERECTION OF R.C.H.A. MEMORIAL

A Fine Granite Shaft to be Placed in Macdonald Park.

Lt.-Col. W. H. P. Elkins and the officers of the R.C.H.A. have the plans completed for the erection of the memorial in the city park to the members of the unit who were killed or died in the late war. The money for the monument was contributed by the surviving officers and men, and the contract has been signed for the execution of the work. All that is now necessary is the confirmation of the proposal by the city council. Next week the parks committee, of which Ald. Kent is chairman, has drafted a report recommending the site at the corner of King and Barrie streets. The monument will consist of a granite shaft mounted on a suitable base and will present an imposing appearance. The cost is said to be in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Mrs. Hamm's Statement.

Mrs. Hamm called at the Whig office on Friday and stated that she did not slap the Barriefield magistrate in the face, but says she protested when he told her that Mr. Abbott was a friend of his and that he would not sign the summons made out by Col. Hunter because she was a German. She says her reason for seeking legal action against Mr. Abbott was that he took possession of the farm and she wanted her potatoes, three acres of which she planted in the spring. She further stated that she never fell and injured herself when getting over the fence but that her injuries were due to the rough handling she received when the magistrate kicked her and pushed her against the post. She says she laid nearly three hours unconscious on the road side while her niece went to Barriefield to get a rig to take her to the hospital. In her passport, Mrs. Hamm is described as a "British subject," although of German birth.
