Rain Prevents Outdoor Events at Fair; The Exhibition An Agricultural Success

Thursday saw the first rainy day of the fair week, but in spite of the disagreeableness of the continuous downpour after nine o'clock in the morning, there was a large number of visitors to the grounds and the palace was jammed during the afternoon up to about four o'clock, showing that, by the addition of suitable buildings for the different departments and the construction of good connecting walks, the fair, even upon a rainy day, would be a source of pleasure to the visiting public. While Thursday was children's day hundreds of farmers came long distances, starting from home early in the morning. Hundreds of automobiles poured into Kingston by the York, Perth, Sydenham, Montreal and Barrieffield roads, undeterred by threatening weather. J. M. Campbell's steamers, the Missisquoi from the Cape, and the Brockville from Picton and intermediate points were crowded. Only fair weather was needed to make the day's programme a success. The outdoor sports, such as horse races, James E. Hardy's high wire performances, and Prof. Farley's balloon ascension had to be postponed to another day. The midway was a picture of distress.

But while there was great disappointment, which was felt equally by the management and the visitors, the best was made of the situation and hundreds inspected the excellent displays in the palace, the poultry building, the live stock and vegetable exhibit. While the enjoyment of the fair was curtailed, the visitors profited by the opportunity to examine John McKay's magnificent fur show, McKelvey and Birch's hardware exhibit, E. Lawrenson's "Good Cheer" stoves, Elliott Bros.' bath room and kitchen fixtures, stoves, furnaces, etc., H. W. Newman's electrical household devices, W. J. Moore's automobile tires, R. J. Rodger's pianos and phonographs; dairy and fruit display; F. Clow's farm machinery, milking machines, thresher and tractor; M. J. Dolan's beautiful harness, W. H. Cockburn's hardware, Vanuven Bros. Ford cars, the Kingston Mattress Company's superior goods, S. Anglin & Co.'s silos, etc., Stevenson & Hunter's artistic display of hardware and paints; the Wood Mop and Glad Hand; Trengold's phonograph and sporting goods, bicycles and flash lights, and many others, including the Superior ice cream stand in the centre of the building. Automobiles lined Princess street and side streets throughout a good part of the afternoon while visitors patronized the stores, theatres and restaurants. Many could not get service at the city restaurants and went to the fair grounds where Jack's restaurant furnished meals to all comers. A good spirit prevailed everywhere, the people sympathizing with each other and with R. J. Bushell and his directors, who hope for better weather during the remaining days, so that the stupendous entertaining programme may be carried out.

An Agricultural Success. Whatever disappointment may be felt over the regrettable postponement of the outdoor sports, the outstanding fact remains that the 1920 fair was a great agricultural success. Too much cannot be said in praise of the farmers, gardeners, poultry keepers, school children and farmers' wives and daughters who contributed to their patient industry and skill to make the fair what it is—an unprecedented success. The poultry show alone is so large that it is impossible adequately to describe it, and the people will have to await the receipt of the official announcement of the prize winners. Messrs. Frith and Wallace, government judges of poultry, declared that the Kingston show is the finest they have ever been called upon to judge in the province of Ontario. This is due to the devotion and enterprise of the members of the Kingston Poultry Association, who have attracted the keen competitive spirit of poultry raisers through eastern Ontario. Not only were fancy breeds and prize show birds in the lists, but the variety of table fowl and layers, known as utility breeds, occupied the greatest space showing the progress made in knowledge of the real scientific and commercial values in the poultry industry, and the prizes were results already achieved which merit the warmest praise. B. Whitney, superintendent of the poultry division, W. A. Patterson, secretary, and Messrs. Walsh and Parkes, who are in charge, are receiving congratulations from the visitors and poultry experts.

A new feature introduced for the first time this year is an egg laying contest. There are a great many entries of barred rocks and leghorns. The contest extends over five days and the results will be announced on Monday. While prizes are provided for all exhibits representing agricultural industry, no provision was made for the city merchants and manufacturers who have made the palace such a wonderful attraction. It has been suggested that, if the directors can see their way clear financially, prizes should be offered for the best displays in the different lines of business represented in the palace itself. It is argued on behalf of these enterprising merchants that there should be some recognition of the pains they have taken to make their displays attractive and a source of very great pleasure to all who are privileged to see them.

Weighing Children. The Victorian Order nurse at the Child Welfare tent at the fair, had a busy time. Hundreds of little ones were weighed on the big scales with its curious seat. Cards with the weight, proper for boys or girls at every age to ten years, hung on the walls of the tent and beside them the government chart with further instructions for young parents. The nurse, who has a wonderful charm for children, gave much good advice to the mothers while she coaxed the shyest baby into the seat of the scales and it was delightful to see the pride of the young fathers and mothers when their small boy or girl reached the regular standard.

The smiling Ward Alder, in their crisp green uniforms, which are in charge of the D.S.C.R. exhibit at the big fair, are kept busy answering the questions of the admiring crowd that is always in front of the space allotted to the three military hospitals, Sydenham, Mowat and Rockwood. Fascinating beaded bags and chains, lamps, shades of different descriptions, baskets large and small, a "curate" of wicker work, light in weight and yet strong enough to hold a substantial cake and many dainty sandwiches, several beautiful carved trays and many smaller pieces of wood carving, executed with the same skill and the larger articles, work in silk and wool, with tiny stitches that put to shame some of the women's work, all of it beautiful or useful, attractive in itself even without the underlying knowledge that the hands that have wrought this clever work have been used for this only because the strong, young bodies have broken to make Canada the fair peaceful homeland it is to-day. Mr. Warburton's veteran work is on the other side of the centre space. Here, too, is the soldiers' work, the wooden toy, so cheap and durable and so dear to the little ones, bunnies and pussy cats are friendly with cows and elephants, a poll-parrot swings on his perch and the tall piano lamp with a gold-lined shade sheds its light over all.

Judges Well Pleased. C. S. Metcalfe, one of the stock judges at the exhibition, was in the Whig office on Thursday, and he wishes to thank publicly on behalf of himself and the other judges, Robert J. Bushell and the directors of the Kingston Industrial Exhibition for the fine time given the judges and the excellent treatment they received at the fair. He says that he has been at many fairs but has never before received any better treatment than at Kingston's big exhibition.

In regard to the stock displays, Mr. Metcalfe, speaking for his own department which was cattle and swine, states that he found the entries all good. The only fault he found was in the fitting. Almost all, he said were slightly under-fit. The prizes offered could not be bettered in Canada for that grade of stock. He claims and is sure that they are high enough to tempt any exhibitor to the fair. The other judges heartily agree with and endorse Mr. Metcalfe's opinions of the treatment they received in Kingston.

DRAMATIC STOP TO MONTREAL WEDDING

Soldier About to be Married Has Recurrence of Shell Shock.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—An after effect of the Great War dramatically delayed a wedding at St. Lambert and the authorities in charge of the Prince of Wales Hospital, under the jurisdiction of the Soldiers' Civil Relief Act, are doing their best efforts to locate the bridegroom. The Anglican Church at St. Lambert had been decorated for the marriage of Miss Doreen Hicks to Bryce Muir, an overseas man. The guests had assembled and the bride was ready to walk down the aisle on the arm of her father, J. T. Hicks, well known in St. Lambert and in business circles in Montreal.

There was a delay of almost an hour and then the clergyman was told over the telephone that the bridegroom had had a recurrence of shell shock early yesterday afternoon and that the ceremony would have to be postponed. Later on it was learned that Mr. Muir had been picked up in an unconscious condition on Peel street. From the Soldiers' button he was wearing something out of the ordinary was suspected and he was taken to the Prince of Wales Hospital. He spent a fitful night and this morning Dr. F. Mackay, neurologist, was to examine him. In some way not yet known he got out of the hospital and has not since been seen.

Fortune is Set Aside To Develop Young Men

New York, Oct. 1.—An estate of more than $1,000,000 was set aside for development of young men in the empire of Russia and elsewhere, by the late James Stokes, who died in October, 1918. This became known when his executors applied in supreme court for permission to sell some local property. The residuary estate was bequeathed to the James Stokes society for the purpose set forth.

CAUCUS OF THE U.F.O. HELD BY PREMIER

In Order to Get Ready for Coming Session of Legislature.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—An innovation in provincial policies was introduced by Hon. E. C. Drury, when he called together the U.F.O. members of the legislature for a pre-session caucus. His move in the framing of legislation the government prepared its programme and early in the session submitted it to its supporters in caucus. If the supporters had any ideas about legislation the government should bring forward, they were presented, but often the suggestions, while worth while could not be acted upon owing to the time necessary for considering them from all angles.

With this in mind Premier Drury decided to get his supporters together in good time before the calling of the house to give them an opportunity to lay before the government any matters they might consider should be taken up by the government in their programme. Yesterday's meeting for that purpose lasted for some time, but did not produce any very radical proposals.

Among the subjects brought up was the question of regulating the system of fixing prices of sugar beets in the best-growing districts.

We Buy Shoes to Sell— You Buy Shoes to Wear

In placing our orders with the manufacturers, we have our customers' requirements always in mind. We know that you want neat and attractive shoes. You want well made, properly shaped shoes. You want shoes of the latest fashion. You want the very best shoes at fair and reasonable prices. You do not want to pay for anything that adds simply to the price and not to the value of your shoes.
