"THE WANDERER" STAGED

Great Biblical Drama is Being Presented at the Grand.

"The Wanderer," one of the greatest biblical dramas, staged by Lodovico Bellaso, was presented at the Grand opera house on Wednesday night by a talented company of artists, with Frederick Lewis, in the title role. The setting was realistic and gorgeous, and the vivid interpretation of the actors and actresses captivated and thrilled the audience. For here was depicted the great domestic tragedy that has stirred generations and left an eternal impress of the great moral and spiritual lesson of the Master. Here was a faithful portrayal of the patriarchal life in Judea; the austere dignity of a Hebrew household, contrasted with the impetuosity of youth; oriental sensuality, luxury and feminine beauty enhanced by every grace and charm. The scenes were brilliant with color, and the whole effect was heightened by the dancing scenery adapted by Keston, and the music arranged by A. Goetzl.

Frederick Lewis, in the character of Jether, son of Jesse, is admirably adapted to the part and brought prolonged applause in the opening act by his fervid appeal for release from parental control. The character of the elder brother was sustained by Richard Thornton in a striking manner, while Miss Charlotte Wynters as Tisha, the vampire and siren of the days of old Jerusalem, scored a triumph. She resides with her pagan mother Nadina, the keeper of a gambling house, the rendezvous of scores of beautiful women and the young sports of Jerusalem. It is here Jether takes up his residence and becomes infatuated with Tisha. Then comes the wonderful love scene in which Tisha, believing herself scorned, woos him most passionately and to prove her power over him entices him with protestations of love and wine to denounce the God of Judea and sacrifice before the idol of Ish-tar, accomplishing his complete degradation. After spending all his money upon her, he is declared guilty of cheating at dice and is spurned. His enchantress laughs in his face, and taunts him with his faults, finally deserting him for a rich sea-captain who has promised her great wealth. Miss Wynters is a most fascinating and accomplished actress. Reduced to penury and weakened by illness the "Wanderer" returns home and the final scene is very affecting.

Special mention must be made of the highly finished elocution of all of the principal characters, including Eleanor Sandman, as Naomi, Charles Cline as Toia, Frederick Mosley as Jesse, Miss Helen Singer as Huldah, John Dougherty, the prophet, and Charlotte Deffry as Nadina. The degree of perfection shown throughout is seldom found in a large company and distinguishes "The Wanderer" from other plays. The play will be shown Thursday, matinee and evening.

MICE IN PACKING CASE SHIPPED FROM KINGSTON

Flurry of Excitement in Store at Delta When Case Was Opened.

Quite a sensation was caused at Delta a few days ago, on the arrival of a shipment of goods from a Kingston firm, by freight, when it was found that a whole family of mice had made a nest in the packing case. The mice had made a most comfortable home, and they were not at all pleased over being disturbed.

Whether the mice nesting in the packing case their headquarters before leaving Kingston, or while on the way to Delta, is unknown, but it is stated that when the packing case was opened and the find made, there was a flurry of excitement in one of the village stores.

THE BOARD OF WORKS.

To Consider Changes in the Tariff By-Law.

At a meeting of the Board of Works, on Wednesday afternoon, it was decided that Chairman Aggrove and Ald. Phillips should have a conference with the executive of the Kingston Motor League with reference to changes in the traffic by-law.

The board members decided to declare a "silent zone" on Stuart street and University avenue from Union at night, for the benefit of the patients of the General Hospital. Autos will be required to run only ten miles an hour and to stop using out-lets.

Residents complained that the city's asphalt plant was a nuisance in its present position, and the engineer was asked to make a report.

The "Anti" Want to Know. "Smallpox vaccine is undoubtedly of the greatest use. It is no use wasting your time speaking to the people who think it is not," added Dr. H. E. Day, Kingston, at the Dominion Child Welfare Conference in Ottawa. "But you will have to talk to them," stated Mrs. Courtice. Dr. Day, continuing, stated that the medical men throughout the country were rather afraid of the serum that was distributed free from Toronto.

Letters to the Editor

Emphasizing a Few Points.

Kingston, Oct. 20.—(To the editor): At such an appropriate time, Trafalgar Week, it should be worth while to emphasize a few points Mr. Connor has made, and bring to light a few more.

In the first place, permit me, Mr. Editor, to express my sincerest appreciation for all that the Navy League of Canada stands for. It is indeed a very worthy cause. There is nothing more essential to us as a growing nation than to train the young to be of service to their country when they grow older, or at any critical moment. There should not be such a great ignorance of our obligations to the state as there exists today. The great war showed this up in more ways than one. It should also be a great cure for the everlasting "ego" prevailing almost everywhere. There are also many other good points to this movement, almost too numerous to mention.

But even the best of the very best grade is nothing more than a weed when found growing in a flower garden. The same, at present, applies to the Kingston Branch of the Navy League.

The people of Kingston, I am almost certain, would like to see a man with some service and practical experience to his credit at the head of this organization. How about you, Mr. Commandant? Those badges did work well on one occasion, but I mean a certificate of service.

Then again, is it not a bit thick, or better still, preposterous when a man who has no definite proof of service can wear a British naval uniform giving him seniority over men who went to France in 1914, and from the ranks rose to the rank of Battalion Commander? I would like to see something which could be classed "thicker" but that surely remains to be discovered.

Mr. Editor, many of us doubt the sincerity of the worthy commandant, surely there must be one quality at least, essential for one at the head of such a worthy cause. If a thing is not sincere, there is only one other thing it can be. I will explain my point by giving an example.

The commandant on many occasions gave some lofty spiels on unity among returned men. The pauses (for applause) were indeed so very neatly placed that each one got his full quota of applause. Such a thing everybody wants, and even without those pauses a good line would have gained applause.

Please keep the above in mind. Last spring we were asked to go fifty-fifty with them on one of the carnivals they were proposing to bring to the city.

It was indeed a very kind offer, considering the financial position we were in. But no date was given nor was it stated at the time which show we were to be allowed in on.

Time went on, and we kept pressing for the name and dates of the carnivals to be brought, but nothing doing, so naturally, as we were approached by the World at Home Shows we accepted their contract. Can anyone blame us for taking this action? The worthy commandant forgot his unity spiels, and decreed that the joint Advisory Committee then in existence would have no more A. & N. representatives on it.

Oh, what a steadfast stand for unity!

No doubt he has since harangued his audience on unity, and sure enough the applause pauses must have worked magnificently.

How does he pull this stuff without blushing?

Last I forget, Mr. Commandant, I know several who would be pleased to know something about the several cases of social bacillaria, and other soldiers comforts which were to have been sent to "A" and "B" batteries, R.C.H.A. and for which each officer, N.C.O. and man in "C" Battery gave a half day's pay in the early spring of 1918. One who had occasion to investigate the matter as far as he could, saw an interesting cheque. How about it, Mr. Commandant?

The public, however, wants something definite. Is it true that you are receiving sufficient rent for the three or four rooms occupied by the Naval Brigade, that it leaves you a fair balance after paying the whole rent of the building? The public gives and the public would like to know. May I also remind you that figures backed by facts look better than mere words.

Do you not think, Mr. Commandant, that a body like the 21st club ought to get something authentic about the money raised for their colors?

Even though by the process of super-mathematics you have worked out such a startling thing as that you have with you eighty per cent. of the returned men of this city, nevertheless I am certain that the 21st would be better satisfied in seeing an itemized account in the press, or sent to their club.

You know, Mr. Commandant, the G.W.V.A. also claims a few 21st men amongst its membership, and they in particular would appreciate this information.

Before I close, Mr. Editor, I wish to say that in the opinion of the many rather than the few, the place for the Boys' Naval Brigade is at the Y.M.C.A.

The Y.M.C.A. is not a self-supporting institution, and it has suitable environment for such an organization.

The A. and N. is self-supporting, at least so the commandant says, and it has not the environment for such an organization.

In conclusion, Mr. Commandant, you made several great mistakes. It was very nice of you to try and get rid of our secretary by finding him a position. But was it not crude?

It was, indeed, very consistent with your so-called unity policy to try and close our doors.

Very ambitious indeed! You should not, however, forget human nature, even in your dealings. Start a scrap with a family, and you can break it, but, just once, show a sign of outside interference and you bind the family together. The G.W.V.A., Mr. Commandant, will now go on and thrive thanks to you.

Yours very truly,
—W.M. SUSMAN
Second Vice-President, Kingston Branch, G.W.V.A.
