Told in Twilight

The little bungalow at the foot of Maitland street, where the big waves were rolling in from Lake Ontario, in which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Knox Hill have begun their married life, had many visitors on Thursday, when Mrs. Hill received for the first time since her marriage. She wore her wedding gown of white satin with silver embroidery, and her corsage bouquet was of pink roses. Her mother, Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, received with her, wearing a beautiful gown of blue georgette enriched with beading and a black velvet hat with touches of blue. The charming rooms with their novel arrangement were lovely with flowers, deep red roses in a large cut glass vase serving as a background for the girlish hostess. Yellow and pink chrysanthemums were here and there, showing to advantage against the creamy walls and dark polished furniture. The tea room, entered from each side of the long reception room, was indeed lovely with its big silver basket of pink carnations resting on the fluted lace which centered the polished table, where the water tea and coffee equipage gleamed softly under the light shaded with deep blue and pink. Here Mrs. Nell Polson and Miss Florence Cunningham were in charge, assisted by Miss Margaret Hemming, Miss Harriet Gardner, Miss Helen Strange, Miss Helen McKay and Miss Flo Cunningham. From the dining room the visitors went out to the sun parlor with the grand view of the lake in its varying moods, and then back to inspect once again the pretty and unique little home at the request of its young chatelaine. "It is the dearest house," said one young girl, and it is, indeed.

TO-DAYS FASHION

A Lovely Corel and Rose Negligee.

Exceptionally charming is this negligee. The upper part follows the lines of the cape. It is slashed on the shoulders so that the soft pink of the skin is noticeable. It is lined with pale blue satin. This is pleasingly revealed in the small collar that folds away from the back of the neck. The crush belt that encircles the waistline is made of folds of pale blue, violet and rose satin. Side pleats distinguish the skirt or coral crepe de chine. This negligee would also look very attractive if developed in lovely shades of orchid or gold with a dainty touch of contrasting color.

For appetizing main dish, midday snacks or one-piece luncheon, oysters are always adaptable. And since modern methods of packing and preserving have made them available even to inland dwellers, we can get good oysters almost anywhere. Here is one oyster dish that may take the place of meat at the family dinner.

Oyster Pie.
1 quart of oysters
2 cupsful of flour
1 cupful of top milk
1/2 cupful of shortening
1/2 tablespoonful of cornstarch
1/2 teaspoonful of salt
2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder
Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt, and cut in the shortening. Add the cold milk gradually. Place the dough on a floured board, cut in two and roll out. Put in two shallow, greased baking pans and bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes. Slowly dissolve the cornstarch in a little milk, gradually add the rest of the milk, and cook with the oysters and seasonings. Pour half the mixture on top of one pie crust, cover with the other, and pour the rest over the top crust. Serve immediately. Or, if preferred use only one pie crust, and pour oysters on top, using a deep dish. Cover with a meringue made of two

The Alta-Petem Club, of Sydenham Street Methodist church, of which Miss Muriel Walsh, who is one of next week's brides, is a member, gave a merry surprise party at her home on Brock street, on Wednesday evening. A "study" which frame was a broom, and whose body was made up of various articles useful in a kitchen, clothed in gown, cap and apron, was set in the corner of the drawing-room, much to the surprise of the guests. When the unusual visitor was cruelly remembered, the clever verses were read, creating much fun and laughter. During the evening dainty refreshments were served and then good-night was said, with many good wishes to the bride-to-be.

Mrs. Bruce Taylor entertained the wives of the staff of Queen's University at tea on Wednesday at the Principal's Residence. The cosy home-like rooms were gay with Queen's flowers, gold and red chrysanthemums, and the table was in charge of Mrs. James Cappon and Mrs. James Thir, with the wives of the deans of the various faculties assisting them. This very pleasant affair was arranged by the hostess to give a new-comer an opportunity of meeting the women with whom they will be in close touch during their stay at Queen's, and those who have been in town for some time of welcoming their new associates.

Oily skin and shiny nose

How to correct them

Do you know that the oil in your skin is necessary to keep it smooth, velvety, supple? This oil is constantly being produced by the glands of the skin. When it is too abundant the result is an oily skin and a shiny nose. You can relieve this embarrassing condition by using the following treatment as frequently as is necessary.

With warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin firmer and drier the very first time you try it. Use it as often as your skin requires, nightly if necessary, and before long you will see a marked improvement.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs. You will find Woodbury's on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. A 25 cent cake will last a month or six weeks.
