TRYING TO PROVIDE WORK

For the Many Thousands of Unemployed in Great Britain.

London, Nov. 12.—Great Britain is faced by the greatest unemployment problem known in thirty years according to labor experts. The Government seeing the rocks ahead is hastily organizing relief plans and arranging construction schemes in London and the provinces to provide work for thousands of unemployed during the coming winter.

Hard times are predicted in the shipbuilding yards in the north of England where ship owners are refusing orders to build owing to fluctuating prices and conditions. Due to high wages, the book binding industry is gradually going out of business. The increase in wages has more than doubled the cost of production in the past four months and publishers are sending work to Holland and Belgium. As a result, thousands of book binders are idle.

High wages, shorter hours and restricted output, causes the unemployment problem, experts say. "Labor is attempting to insist on post-war industry being run upon war conditions, but it cannot be done," says F. A. MacKenzie, a leading economic publicist. "Germany is recovering her manufacturing power; her people work harder, with low wages and this is a vital factor in international competition. Americans, while paying very high wages have the advantage of cheap raw material and a greater use of labor saving machinery, with a greater output, and are able to produce more cheaply than we can in many lines. England is flooded with quantities of American and German goods which are underselling her own markets, and not only the home market but foreign markets in the Argentine and Shanghai. The flood will be greater in the months to come."

Mr. MacKenzie says the remedy lies in a plan whereby the profits of a greater production would be shared by the employers and employees on a permanent basis.

THE PREMIER SPEAKS AT MEDICINE HAT

Had Enthusiastic Reception, Though in Heart of Farming District.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Nov. 12.—Upwards of two thousand persons had to be turned away from the Methodist church here Wednesday, so great was the throng which desired to hear the prime minister speak. Although the church in which the meeting was to be held is the largest in the city, it was filled to overflowing before seven o'clock, and an hour before the meeting was scheduled to begin. An overflow meeting had been arranged but had to be abandoned because Mr. Calder, who was to have addressed it, was suffering from a severe cold. The premier's reception, while upon a scale of less magnitude, equalled in warmth and enthusiasm, his welcome in Calgary on Tuesday.

Medicine Hat is in the constituency of Hon. A. L. Sifton. It is in the heart of a farming and ranching district, and many of those who heard the premier must have been disciples of the agrarian movement. Thus, it was all the more noticeable, that although Mr. Meighen subjected the farmers' fiscal policies to a withering analysis, and came out squarely and uncompromisingly for a protective tariff, they cheered him as only a western audience can cheer. The men on the plain, however much they may differ in politics, have one thing in common; they admire courage. And while they quite evidently do not always agree with the prime minister, they quite plainly like his fearless, bold and take no pains to conceal their admiration. There will be no misunderstanding regarding the position of Mr. Meighen.

"I believe in the protectionist principle," he said. "I believe that any departure from it would be disastrous to the economic welfare of this country, and so long as I am prime minister, there will be no departure from it." It was a declaration of policy hardly designed to win easy applause in a constituency such as this, but it was cheered nevertheless. Hardly less outspoken was Mr. Calder, who in opening his remarks, told the audience that for years past he had been fooling the west and fooling himself with free trade talk, but that more mature reflection had brought him to the fiscal views of his new leader.

Former Premier Parent Leaves Largo Estae

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—An estate of $470,247 was left by the late Hon. Simon Napoleon Parent, former premier of the province of Quebec, who died at Montreal on Sept. 7th, and whose will was filed for probate in Ottawa. Provision for an annuity of $5,000 for his widow is made, $5,000 is to be distributed for charitable purposes. The remainder of the estate is equally divided between the sons and daughters, each of whom receive $50,000 as their share.

THE RETAIL MERCHANTS CONDEMN

(Continued from Page 1.) Experience has proved that the vast majority of the people resent this form of taxation, and with the individual this amounts almost to a revolt, hence the loss of sales, and particularly our merchant tailors, milliners, and furriers are feeling the effects of this. We recommend that the tax be collected from manufacturers and producers."

It was pointed out that when the same stamp system was in use among the druggists (the only difference being that the stamp was fixed to the article instead of to the sales slip), an accurate estimate showed that the cost of collecting was sixty-five per cent, and the government received but thirty-five per cent of the tax. It was shown by the druggists that the tax could be collected through the manufacturers and wholesalers at a cost of but ten per cent, and the stamp was abolished. Mr. Hoag as a druggist explained how the stamp system came to be done away with and the question was asked: "If it cost 65 per cent to collect from druggists, what will it cost to collect from all other lines of retail trade?"

Not Putting On Stamp. Mr. Beal, organizing secretary for the Dominion Board, stated that it was a fact that fifty per cent of the retail trade was not putting on stamps at the present time, with the result that the whole burden of the tax was falling upon the few.

R. J. Rodger, jeweller, explained the effect the tax had on the jewellers. He thought that the retailers should go before the government with a practical scheme. All, he said were willing to pay the tax and the proposal regarded with most favor was a tax on business turn-over. This was the system in use among jewellers now, and they were satisfied with it. It might be extended to include all lines.

The next matter dealt with was the application of the Bell Telephone Company for an increase in rates. The following resolution was passed, and the secretary was directed to send a copy to the city clerk: "That in view of the decreasing cost of many products the Retail Merchants Association of Kingston, endorse the action of the city council in opposing increased telephone rates."

Mr. Hoag announced that the Dominion Tariff Commission would sit in Kingston for the purpose of hearing representations from merchants, manufacturers and others in the district between Brockville and Belleville and the association might desire to draw up its views for presentation to the commission. No action was taken.

Want Bank Corners Lighted. A deputation was appointed to wait upon the bank occupying corners on the principal streets which were the darkest spots on Saturday nights, and ask that their windows be lighted.

Mr. Beal announced that the Dominion annual convention would take place at Brockville, January 11th and 12th, 1927.

A proposal was made to have the association take action toward securing desirable candidates for the city council next year. R. J. Rodger stated that some of the members of the present council considered withdrawing at the end of the year, and the association was called upon to use its influence in selecting suitable men who would take an interest in civic affairs. The matter was deferred until the next meeting, which will be held in the first week of December.

BURDICK STUNNED AT LONG SENTENCE

Gouverneur Banker is Not Afraid of Jail but Worries for Wife.

Auburn, N.Y., Nov. 12.—With tears rolling down his cheeks, Leslie W. Burdick sat in the jailer's office in the Onondaga county jail last night and told the story of his meteoric rise from a clerkship in the First National bank of Gouverneur to the presidency of the institution. He was sentenced by Judge Frank Cooper, in the Auburn court-room, to three years in Atlanta prison, and fined $10,000, for embezzlement and misapplication of the bank's funds.

At intervals the little woman by his side wept, too, mostly when her husband told of his promotions, and how they had thrilled the little household of three. The Burdicks have a son, seventeen, attending a preparatory school in Maryland. Denying that he had been guilty of the charges, and had been convicted for technical violations of banking methods, Burdick said the bank had not lost a cent through his inconsistencies; that every penny of the $75,000 he was accused of having stolen had been restituted. He likewise flayed reports that he had invested in "wild cat" schemes, had loaned money without securities to corporations in which he himself was interested.
