SPLENDID OPERA COMPANY ARMISTICE NIGHT DANCE

Appeared at Grand in "The Mikado"—Plays Again To-night.

At the Grand Opera House on Thursday evening the Royal English Opera Company opened its three days' engagement with Gilbert and Sullivan's ever-popular opera, "The Mikado." The company, which is a very well balanced one, was greeted with hearty applause after the opening male chorus, in which the voices were heard to great advantage, supported by the very excellent orchestra. J. Humbird Duffy, who played the part of Nanki Poo, the son of the Mikado, is the possessor of a fine voice and good stage presence, and made a splendid foil for Miss Hana, Shimozum, who made a fascinating Yum Yum, with her graceful dancing and sweet soprano voice. Jefferson De Angelis as Ko Ko was perfection in his role and his song "I Got Them On the List" was greeted with roars of laughter. The list, by the way, has been enlarged since he played the same part in the early days of the famous opera. "Three Little Maids from School" was another old favorite that brought forth hearty applause. "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring" was perhaps the hit of the evening. Mr. De Angelis was so delightfully funny in his objecting to marrying Katsusha, a lady of the Mikado's court, Miss Marie Horgan's fine contralto voice was heard to advantage in the famous "Til Willow" duet with Jefferson De Angelis. Detmar Poppin as Poo Bah, Lord High Everything Else, was an imposing figure in his gorgeous costume and his fine bass voice was very pleasing.

Once again the city fathers upon the walls of the city hall looked out from their golden frames upon a gay scene, when Catarqui Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire gave a their bridge and dance on Armistice Day, choosing it as a fitting time to do their share towards sweetening the war memorial fund, that has for its object the education of the sons or daughters of Canadian soldiers, first in the schools and colleges of our own land, and then if they are fortunate enough to be successful in winning the scholarships offered in the universities of the old land. There were twenty-two tables in play during the afternoon, and the prizes, a china dish, a big bunch of 'mums and a pack of cards, were won by Miss Aileen Foiger, Mrs. P. Hill and Miss Ada Birch. In one corner of the hall the tea table was a charming feature, with pink candles in silver candleabra and lovely white and yellow chrysanthemums in silver and crystal vases. Here Mrs. Wurtele poured the tea, which was taken to each table at 4.30 on a tray gay with a Japanese napkin with dainty sand-witches and cakes and most refreshingly tea. Mrs. Percy Wiglar and Miss Rhoda Wurtele were in charge of the tea with the other members of the refreshment committee, composed of Mrs. Bermingham, Mrs. Norman Fraser, Mrs. Hugh Nickle, Mrs. J. H. Rowland, Mrs. C. S. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. J. L. Whiting, Mrs. Arthur Cunningham and Miss Lilla Callaghan assisting them. The bridge committee were Mrs. Norman Fraser, Miss Hora and Miss Wurtele. In the evening the guests were received by the regent, Mrs. Sandford Calvin, Mrs. Hugh Nickle, Mrs. J. L. Whiting and Mrs. W. Bermingham. "Symphony Six," the splendid orchestra of Science '23, was stationed on the platform and played an excellent programme of eighteen dance numbers. Supper was served at 11 p.m., from the same flower-decked table, with Mrs. Arthur Cunningham pouring coffee and the other members of the refreshment committee assisting. Mrs. J. L. Whiting and Mrs. W. Bermingham were in charge, and the arrangements were most satisfactory. The regent and chapter are to be congratulated on a very successful affair.

ACHIEVEMENT

THE Nordheimer Piano has proved itself worthy of the confidence bestowed upon it by its purchasers. It has brought melody into many of Canada's finest homes—it has afforded highest musical enjoyment to its owners and their friends. Many years have rolled by since the House of Nordheimer conceived the ideal of a piano that would yield the greatest possible tone value, grow richer with right use, resist the changes of atmosphere and the passing of time.

The fulfilment of these aims is a proud achievement—one reflecting credit upon even the least important of the craftsmen whose combined efforts have developed that remarkable tone which is the distinguishing feature of the

Had a 'Real Hard Time Getting to Watertown, N.Y.

A despatch from Watertown, N.Y., says: J. Marsh Kellar returned after an interesting experience in endeavoring to get home. Whatever may be the case with which bootleggers claim to cross the border from Canada, Kellar finds the immigration authorities possess eagle eyes and bull dog persistency.

It was only after his attorney, Herbert C. Teepell, had interceded for him that Kellar was able to come to Watertown in readiness to face a charge in county court next week for selling liquor in dry Watertown. Eight hundred dollars in cash security depended upon his success in crossing the line.

Kellar was indicted by the October grand jury and put up $500 in cash to appear for trial. Subsequently he was again arrested upon a charge of selling at his Lapper street home and deposited $100 additional for examination next week in city court. Then he and Mrs. Kellar went to Canada, their native country and former home.

Kellar is not a naturalized citizen. A few days ago he headed from Kingston, Ont., for Cape Vincent on his return to keep his court appointment but immigration officers at the American port refused to let him land. Three times he essayed the journey only to be turned back. Then he tried Ogdensburg and was held in custody by Inspector Robinson.

After stating his case and showing the necessity of his appearance in Watertown, Mr. Kellar induced the inspector to communicate with Attorney Teepell. Arrangements were completed this afternoon to permit the temporary entrance into the United States of Mr. Kellar upon the promise of his counsel that the man will be returned to Ogdensburg promptly after the trial, should he be acquitted.

GETS BIG BOAT TO HELP WORK

65-Foot Navy Yacht Will Aid in Collection of Spawn.

Collection of millions of whitefish, lake trout and ciscoe eggs is now under way to fill the 800 glass jar incubators of the United States fish hatchery at Cape Vincent, N.Y.

In this work, as in the distribution of the fish next spring, the hatchery will be aided by the "Whitefoot" yacht, a gift from the navy department, which reached Cape Vincent after a stormy voyage from Oswego. Use of a sea going boat for the hatchery has been urged for more than a year by persons interested in the propagation of fish, who have contended that such a craft would not only save money to the fisheries department but that the possibility of properly planting the young fish would preserve millions of lives for future consumption by Americans.

It has not been possible, with the limited means at the disposal of the hatchery, to place little fish in waters best suited to their needs. For instance, should be planted in bays and scattered, to insure plenty of food, but it has been necessary to liberate them within a limited radius from the hatchery.

The yacht is a former private pleasure boat, taken over by the navy department during the war for a gun boat. It mounted two guns and was commissioned largely for antisubmarine work.

The craft proved its seaworthiness in the run from Oswego in a gale. It will be at once put into commission and used in the collection of spawn now under way. Superintendent Snyder, of the hatchery, is highly pleased with the boat.

Lake trout, whitefish and ciscoe eggs are being collected this month. Next spring yellow perch and pike fry will be taken. In January about 1,000,000 brook trout eggs will be added to the hatchery, being purchased from commercial hatcheries, and rainbow trout will be received from other stations.

Presentation At Wilton.

There was an interesting gathering at Wilton, on Wednesday night, when neighbors and friends to the number of one hundred or more, gathered to say good-bye to Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Burgess and family, who are moving on Monday to Napanee. Mr. Burgess lived in this district from childhood, and he and his wife are held in very high esteem by all their acquaintances. During the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess were presented with a handsome dinner set in an address accompanying the gift which bespoke best wishes for the recipients and their family in their new home. The address, which was signed by Mrs. Frederick Cole and Mrs. Archie Simmons, on behalf of neighbors and other friends, was read by N. A. Asseltine, who taught Mr. Burgess at school in his early days.
