

Stop That Tickling A BIRD OF A FEATHER

By Juanita Hamel

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

That tickling in the throat sensation is most distressing and causes a nasty, irritating, dry cough that not only keeps you in misery all day long but also prevents you enjoying a good night's rest.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks combined with the lung-healing virtues of the world-famous Norway pine tree, will give almost instant relief in all cases of this nature.

Mr. E. A. Price, Port Carling, Ont., writes:—"For about a month last fall, I had a bad cold and cough and a tickling in my throat. I coughed nearly all the time. I tried different remedies and cough syrups, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and before I had used two bottles, my cough was all gone, and gone for good. I have not coughed since."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 35c. and 50c. a bottle at all dealers; manufactured only by The J. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever the hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

$900,000,000 A YEAR

Such is Cost of This Luxury to Italian Workers. Rome, Nov. 12.—Professor Ugo Ancona, formerly under secretary of transportation in the Italian cabinet, has just made public a statement that while the Italian government has spent more than $1,000,000,000 a year for bread for the people, the Italian workers have spent $900,000,000 a year on wine alone.

The government's expenditure for bread has resulted from its undertaking to pay the difference between the cost of producing wheat and the price of bread. In consequence of this the Italian workers have been able to buy bread at the rate of one lira for each kilogram of 2.20 pounds.

Professor Ancona says that while the workers refuse to pay more than this, they have no objection to paying four or five lire for a quart of wine, which before the war cost about twelve cents a quart. He asks whether it is just that the Italian government should continue to supply over $1,000,000,000 annually for bread when the people do not grudge $900,000,000 a year for the luxury of wine.

The professor advocates that the Italians should eat less bread and pay what it costs and that they should drink less wine and export more of it, so that the profit on wine would help to pay for importation of bread.

The amount of land given over to wheat production in Italy greatly decreased last year. The disastrous result is that the imports are increasing daily.

You may not believe that fine feathers DO make fine birds. Then again you may believe in giving yourself the benefit of the doubt. A feather can be SO charming!! And think of the pleasant miracle of flying favor with just ONE!! Seemingly it can be done. If a peacock is vain of his cluster, need you be vain with a single trophy? Maybe you are clever enough to enjoy the art of the thing—to realize that charm AND a feather are a fateful combination. Many a good man has been knocked down by a feather!!

NO. III.—PERT REMARKS.

The chesty concert singer said to his friend, "I am thinking of touring South Africa next year." His friend said, "Take my advice and don't, an ostrich egg weighs two or three pounds you know." What a difference to that most lovable and interesting character Chopin, his delicate touch was full of expression and exquisite grace, his physical condition debarr'd him from every bodily exertion. He was seriously restricted always by a lack of strength, and died at the age of forty. Listen to what Chopin said of himself, "I do not know in the highest circles, why I do not know, but the people here (Vienna) are astonished at me, and I wonder at them for finding anything to wonder at in me. My manner of playing pleases the ladies so much, I move in the highest circles and I do not know how I got there. I am in the world like an E string of the violin on a contrabass."

Living during the same period but in the little country of Belgium was de Beriot, a man of different habits. This talented violinist was appointed solo violinist to William I. King of the Netherlands. "De Beriot" received a New Year's present of a dozen bottles of champagne from a wealthy friend. The violinist consumed the wine and returned the empty case with his card, on which he had written "encore." His patron did not resent this, but sent a second lot with his visiting card, on which he had written the word "finale."

Joseph was another great violinist who is known as the most distinguished teacher and greatest violinist of recent times. Joachim insulted the Kaiser, for when the Kaiser asked Joachim to teach two of his sons the violin, Joachim refused, "Your Majesty, I fully appreciate the honor of teaching your sons, but I am very sorry to say that all my time is so taken up with talented students that I find it impossible to accept your majesty's offer. Ever after that time Joachim was no longer a favorite with the Kaiser. Joachim was the greatest teacher of his time, he took no pupil at any price, who was not already an artist of talent, yet we often think of the words of Jacob Abbott who said "never get out of patience with dullness or stupidity," but we are inclined to question when we read of an examiner receiving these replies. What is a double sharp? When you strike two black keys at the same time, one with each hand. Define "form" in music? Well it is not good form to applaud by stamping your feet, you should clap your hands. What does "st" signify? So far for one day's practice.

What is a Minuetto? A short piece that you can play through in one minute.

We cannot but smile at some answers, for Willie after reading about the Guitar asked, what is a guitar? Why said Johnnie with a sneer, it's a disease in the head. No it ain't said Freddie, giving his chum a nudge, it is a lump growing on the throat.

The violinist was certainly put to a test for an answer when the landlady said to the violinist, who also was a new lodger. Oh, good-morning. Good-morning answered the new lodger. I hope you had a good night's rest, said the landlady. No I did not said the mild looking man, your cat kept me awake. Oh, said the landlady tossing her head, I suppose you are going to ask me to have the poor thing killed. No, not exactly, said the gentle lodger, but would you very much mind having it tuned. Speaking of singing we cannot do better than listen to the soap-box orator. Yes, said the orator, this is indeed a wonderful country. We have thousands of women who are wonderful singers—thousands of women who hold their audience for hours at a time—after which they lay it in a cradle and rock it to sleep.

HONEST PIANO TUNERS. Beware of the type of person you engage to tune your piano. By far most piano tuners are honest, but there are still many so called "tramp tuners" who are not, by any means, above reproach. No one seems to think of a piano tuner having "character" as one of his assets, but it is really one of his greatest. The conscientious, honest tuner, who does his job with a view to securing future patronage is wholly different from the tuner who thinks that the way to get business is to make it through crooked tricks of the trade, and bow-re of the tuner who tickles your vanity with assurances that your forty year old square piano has a "magnificent tone and brilliant," when you know he is lying and that your old square was obsolete twenty years ago.

SHARPS AND FLATS.

Wales, which has long been noted for its religious revivals now has the revival spirit in its musical life. This revival is manifesting itself in a remarkable quickening of interest in the hitherto neglected instrumental branch of the art. Marshal Poch, who, it is understood, attended some performances of Wagnerian dramas while in Germany with the French Army of Occupation, was recently asked—so the story goes—to take under his patronage the proposed revival of Wagner in Paris. He declined, saying: "As for music, I only know the first two measures of 'Madelon.'" I can't recall any longer what follows them."

Now that women have the vote, they should set about having themselves engaged as players in symphony orchestras. There is no reason why they should be barred from those positions if they have the necessary qualifications. England is admittedly slow about recognizing the rights of women, but the symphony and theatre orchestras of London have been using female players for many years.

The visit of Walter Damrosch and his New York Symphony Orchestra to Europe this summer was somewhat of a real tour. The governments of Italy, France and Belgium issued official invitations as soon as the trip was mooted. In France, the Paris Grand Opera House was placed at the disposal of the orchestra, and the ministers of fine arts and public works saw that special facilities were accorded the musicians by the railways.

"Certainly a fugue of Bach takes in a different significance," says Charles D. Isaacson of New York Globe, "if John Sebastian, in his wig and lace collar, is seen smiling at you. As the music is played, it is pleasant to visit with the composer at his home in Leipzig—there he is, sitting in a great, wide-armed chair, smoking a deep-bowled pipe and sipping occasionally at a mug of creamy ale; on his lap two children, several more on the floor, and several more bustling around the pots and pans, helping their second mother Anna. It is good to hear him talking in his deep, gruff voice, which comes from the very pit of his huge paunch, thinking of his as quite human, feeding the children, helping his wife to dry the dishes, begging the young wife to sign for the guests—and finally writing his music late at night—that immortal music that you are now to hear. Anna is sitting at the foot of the table, just where the lamp sheds its light to the floor, quietly sewing and gazing from time to time at the composer, who is seated at the large table. He taps the table with his pen, he catches the spirit of the theme, he nods his head several times to make sure he has understood perfectly the message which comes to him—finally jumping up to look at the children and coming back, "Anna how nicely the children sleep; little Emanuel is feeling much better thank God."

LINDSAY

The Very Life of the Dancing Party

When friends drop in for the evening, and the rugs of the living-room or library are rolled aside and the dancing begins, it is that the LINDSAY Player-Piano comes in handy. You may be quite sure to play for dancing, but surely you do not relish the idea of playing all the time and not dancing at all. Neither is it correct to invite a friend and the him or her to the piano for the evening. With a LINDSAY Player-Piano all may play in turn, as each can play perfect dance music with it—Fox Trots, One Steps and the dramatic of waltzes that would make a wooden Indian dance. We have prepared an interesting little booklet, illustrating and explaining the various uses to which the LINDSAY Player-Piano can be put. A copy is yours for the asking, write, phone or call in for a copy if interested.
