General Now Beadle.

Speaking at a city dinner, Lord Riddell relates that he recently dined at the hall of a city livery company, and was astonished to find two generals shaking hands very heartily with the beadle. It turned out that the beadle had himself been a general. An old soldier, he had risen from the ranks during the war, and then, having served his country, he came back and re-entered the service of a city guild. "This was one of the finest things I ever heard," said Lord Riddell amid applause.
