

HIS LIFE RUINED BY DYSPEPSIA

Until He Tried "FRUIT-A-TIVES" The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

MR. FRANK HALL, Wyvale, Ontario.

"For some two years, I was a sufferer from Chronic Constipation and Dyspepsia. I tried every remedy I heard of without any success, until the wife of a local merchant recommended 'Fruit-a-tives'. I procured a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and began the treatment, and my condition commenced to improve immediately. The Dyspepsia ceased to be the burden of my life as it had been, and I was freed of Constipation. I feel that I owe a great debt to 'Fruit-a-tives' for the benefit I derived from them."

Mrs. A. Crawford Tells How Cuticura Healed Little Girl

"My little girl's trouble started with small pimples on the back of her head and they spread down her back. The pimples were hard and red and they itched and burned terribly. She scratched and irritated them and they later developed into sore eruptions. Her hair fell out and became thin and dry, and scales fell off her clothing. I used a free sample of Cuticura and the pimples commenced to dry up. I bought more and when I had used one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Alonso Crawford, 83 Park St., Bangor, Maine, Jan. 22, 1920.

Helping the Other Fellow

By the Rev. Charles Steitz.

We've been told that there's no such thing as "the golden rule" in business—that it's all a question of doing the other fellow, and doing it first.

And those who have quoted this saying of David Harum's have thought it clever. Well—it sounds smart, and there is a certain type of men who think it's smart. But they have another guess coming. It would be too much to say that the golden rule—to do unto others as you would have them do unto you—dominates business life. But there's more kindness and manhood and square dealing in business than most of us think.

For instance, some time ago a big paint maker's plant was burned out—just as the season was to begin. It was hard luck, for there wasn't time to secure and equip another building which would be at all adequate.

But the chief rival of this concern notified its competitors that it had a building which was not in use, and to which the unfortunate firm was welcome.

This immediately brought relief and the business went right on without very much interruption.

And the firm that had been so generously assisted by its rival, with equal generosity purchased pages of advertising matter in trade journals telling about this spirit of the golden rule which had been exhibited in such a practical fashion.

Don't you suppose that this entire transaction made a fine impression upon the trade, and that it brought to the surface the better instincts of everybody who heard or read about it?

Don't be deceived into believing that the comparatively few sharks in business life are typical. They aren't! There's more down-right good fellowship and decency among the mass of men than we know.

It isn't preached about or exploited, nor is there a pietistic attitude assumed by those who might be credited with the real stuff—but it's there! And the rest of us may be glad.

"Good-will among men" is increasing. It's a poor observer of the tendency of the times who doesn't see it. You've often prayed the Lord's prayer—but do you know what it means? It is a social petition—it is a united appeal. There isn't a single "I" or "my" in it. It is "Our Father, give us 'our' daily bread, forgive us 'our' sins, lead 'us' not into temptation, deliver 'us' from evil."

When men pray "Our Father," it is implied that we belong to a great brotherhood, and that God is the Father of us all. There may be some wandering sons and daughters of in the wilds, but their wandering makes them none the less children of our Father. We do not disown our children when they have sinned. We love them still, and we regard them tenderly. "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children," does anyone imagine that God deals with His children less tenderly?

If we belong to this great brotherhood, how can we engage in un-social actions? When the employer avails himself unfairly of an opportunity to so manipulate the market or to control an industry as to throw out of employment large numbers of men and women or unduly increase the cost of living, the new testament does not say to him that he is depriving the workman of his rights—it insists that he has violated the law of love and of brotherhood. This is the christian way of getting at the social problem. It isn't a question of rights but of duty—the duty of the employer to the employee, the duty of the employee to the employer, the duty of the maid to the mistress, the duty of the mistress to the maid.

When we pray unitedly for daily bread, how can we do anything that will deprive our brother of his bread? When we pray unitedly for the forgiveness of our sin, how can we be unforgiving toward our brother? When we pray unitedly to be kept from temptation, how can we deliberately put temptation in the path of our brother?

No man can pray the Lord's prayer and be an individualist—he must be a brother, he must have the social instinct.

And yet, all these years perhaps, some of us have thought that this wonderfully perfect prayer was intended merely for ourselves and for the supplying of our exclusive needs. It was really given so that we might help supply our brother's needs. Give us—forgive us—lead us—deliver us—this is the petition of true brotherhood and neighborliness.

HERE are four riddles for boys and girls with wise heads. We told the artist to draw the pictures to represent the riddles, but he guessed the right answer—and put them in too! We barred him from the contest and told him to keep it a secret. Luckily, he got the answers all jumbled up, so you won't be any the wiser. If you can unscramble the jumbled letters beneath each riddle picture and put them in their right order to spell the right words, you will have the right answers. It isn't an easy task. Good thinking, patience and perseverance may find you the answers. Try it. If you think you have found the answers, write them carefully on a sheet of white paper. Put on nothing but your four answers and your name and address in the upper right-hand corner of the page. Handwriting, spelling, punctuation and general neatness will count if more than one answer is correct. We will write and tell you immediately if you are correct, and send you a handsome illustrated list of all the prizes that you can win.

ness, and thus through our temporary helplessness we become stronger. But once in a while it is given to men to go aside awhile for quiet thought, free from the rush of our artificial life. And from their solitude they come forth leaders because they've had a chance to think things
