ETTINGER-BLYTH WEDDING

Took Place at the Home of the Bride's Mother, Tuesday.

At high noon, Tuesday, a pretty house wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, 129 Division street, when Pearl Elizabeth, daughter of the late William Blyth and Mrs. Blyth, was married to Dr. George Harold Ettinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ettinger, King street west. Rev. W. T. G. Brown, pastor of Sydenham street Methodist church, officiated. Miss Leah Walker was at the piano, and as the bride entered with her mother, she was greeted with the wedding march from Lohengrin. She wore a charming gown of white georgette over satin charmeuse, made with many dainty ruffles and embroidered in crystals and pearls. Her hat was of silver lace and panne velvet, and she carried lovely sunset roses. She was preceded by her flower girl, Miss Doris Anglin, in white organdie and carrying a gilt basket of marguerites. The drawing room was lovely in green and white, the arch of evergreen and white narcissi where the ceremony took place, having a wedding bell of white everlasting in the centre. During the signing of the register John Alexander sang "All Joy Be Thine" and then Mendelssohn's wedding march announced that the service was ended.

The buffet wedding breakfast was served from the table with its centre of the big wedding cake on a square of ebony lace, and bridal roses in small vases. Mrs. Blyth, the mother of the bride, was in black taffeta enriched with jet and black velvet hat with touches of Kings blue. Mrs. J. G. Ettinger's gown was of black georgette and taffeta, and her hat was of velvet with a crown of gold brocade. The bride travelled in a lovely frock of brown velvet with touches of burnt orange, brown velvet toque with French flowers, and a Hudson seal coat with sable trimmings. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold and enamel wristwatch, and among the other handsome wedding gifts were several from the various organizations of Sydenham street church, of which both young people were members. Dr. and Mrs. Ettinger left on the fast train to the east, followed by many good wishes.

Theatrical

"Linger Longer Letty"
On Wednesday, Dec. 22nd, Oliver Morosco will present his new musical comedy, "Linger Longer Letty" with the inimitable Charlotte Greenwood as star, at the Grand Opera House. The agile Charlotte will be remembered here as the star of "So Long Letty," the musical piece that made her a national favorite and the new play is a sequel to her former success, as she is once more the long and lanky Letty. The book by Anna Nichols tells the story of a family of sisters, who are all society mad, except Letty, who is made the Cinderella, as she is the only one who can sew and cook, until she finally rebels and starts on a society career of her own, thereby involving herself and the rest of the cast in numerous funny complications.

The music is by Alfred Goodman, who has provided a tuneful score while the cast supporting Miss Greenwood will be the same as during the run of the piece at the Fulton Theatre, New York, with the same big chorus and production.—adv.

At The Grand
Eugene O'Brien, popular Selznick star, will be seen at the Opera House for the last time to-night in his latest screen vehicle, "The Broken Melody." The story of two young artists who in their fight for fame nearly lose the most precious thing in their lives. The star is supported by an exceptionally clever company, and the photography and scenery is well up to the high standard set by all Selznick productions. There is another splendid feature, "Clover's Rebellion," starring the charming motion picture actress, Anita Stewart. The story deals with a young girl whose relatives wish to force her into a marriage with a foreign nobleman. When she meets the young doctor with the funny automobile, the rebellion commences and furnishes the spectator with five reels of the most delightful entertainment. There are reels of comedies and other subjects and the Grand's Orchestra will offer, "Do A Little This—Do A Little That," "Sweetie O'Mine," "Some Little Bird," "Broadway Rose" and other late numbers that have just been received.—Adv.

At The Strand.
Can you imagine Sessue Hayakawa, the noted dramatic actor of the screen playing the part of a light-hearted, adventurous Arabian youth, full of fun and mischief? That is just what he does in "An Arabian Knight," which opened a three day run at the Strand theatre last night. It was a delightful surprise. "An Arabian Knight" is a fascinating comedy-drama set in that wondrous land of romance and adventure, Egypt. The story details the adventure of Ahmeda, a happy, carefree youth, who is at once the joy and distress of his neighbors. But his trouble starts when Condelia Darwin, an American girl who believes she is the reincarnation of a princess who lived two thousand years ago, asserts that Ahmeda had been her king in those far away days. Sessue Hayakawa gives a rollicking performance. The picture however is not an entirely humorous one. There is plenty of dramatic action, and tense moments of suspense and thrills which are bound to hold the interest of the spectators.—Adv.

At Griffin's
In his newest William Fox production "The Terror," which was presented for the first time at Griffin's last evening, Tom Mix marks up another winner. Not only does the star hold his audience spell-bound and make it gasp in amazement at his new stunts, but he has a photoplay that is a genuine delight. "The Terror" is a story of the rush for gold in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and the picture without question, is the most thrilling Mix has done this season. In addition to the above interesting feature, the 4th episode of that great serial "The Branded Four" was also shown last evening, and delighted all present. A selected comedy and topical and Educational news round out the programme, which cannot fail to please the most critical.—adv.

Someone remarked the other day that Collyer once picked seven winners in a day. When Judge Nelson was sporting editor on the Globe he once called seven in succession at Woodbine. This is a feat that will seldom be duplicated. Collyer, a handicapper in the Racing Form, picked six in a row once at Havre De Grace.

Football was played in Japan as early as the year 794 of the present era. China played football long before Japan, so long ago that the football was stuffed with hair until the fifth century, when some ingenious Chinese thought of inflating it.
