WOULD RATHER GO TO JAIL

Takes Three Months for Not Telling Where He Got Liquor.

William Mitchell, the young man who fell into the hands of the police some days ago, on a charge of being intoxicated, still holds the secret as to where he secured his supply of liquor. All the king's men and all the king's horses could not pull the story from him in the police court on Tuesday morning, and rather than tell, he took a sentence of three months in jail from Magistrate Farrell. The sentence was for three months, or until such time as he cares to disclose where he secured the liquor, but "Billy" does not care to give away his great secret, so he went to jail with his lips sealed. Whether or not his stay with Governor Hawkey will tend to weaken him remains to be seen, but other men besides Mitchell have served terms in the jail because they would not tell where they secured their liquor.

Thomas McComb will have to pay $50 into the police treasury or in default spend two months in jail. He got under the influence, and had to be taken care of by the police when found on the street "drunk and uncomfortable." McComb had several stories as to how he came to get under the influence. First, he said he got his leg on two per cent beer, but any person who knows anything about this "near beer," knows that no person would be accused of being intoxicated even if he drank a barrel of it. This story, of course, would not go with the magistrate. McComb then told a yarn about taking a bottle of bay rum. No, he did not have it applied by a barber. He just bought a bottle for his own use, and tipped it off with a chaser of water. McComb's final story was told when he came before the magistrate Thursday morning. This time he blamed it all on poor Montreal. The magistrate ran down the curtain with a fine of $50 and costs, with the option of two months in jail.

Theatrical

At the Grand. "The Gray Tower's Mystery" is the title of the latest Vitagraph feature production starring Gladys Leslie, and is one of the best released this season. The story deals with a young working girl living in Chicago, who learns one day that she is heir to her uncle's large estate in the west. Soon after her arrival another claimant to the estate appears, and while his claims are being investigated, he is done away with under circumstances that point to the young girl as the guilty party. She escapes during a bad electric storm, and her hunt for the real criminal makes a picture crowded with excitement and thrills, with a delightful love story running through it. There are reels of Big V comedies, O. Henry pictures, and other subjects as well as a musical programme by the Grand's orchestra. This bill will be seen to-night only.—Advt.

"Way Down East." Plays come and go, but few live forever; amongst those that have received public favor is "Way Down East," whose popularity has made it a by-word in America; it has enjoyed a continuous run for over twenty-five years and has been witnessed by more people than any other play of its kind. This year's revival is under the direction of Counihan & Shannon Inc., who have spared no expense to make this year's production bigger and better than ever. The electrical effects are said to be the most bewildering of their kind and the snow scene in the last act an acme of reality. The company numbers twenty-five people, amongst whom may be mentioned Hazel Regan, Edwin Dudley, Al. Bushue, Millie Stevens, Dick Mack, Jeanette Case, Winna Rogers and Jack Morrissey. "Way Down East" will appear at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday nights, Dec. 31st and Jan. 1st, with special New Year's matinee on Saturday.—Advt.

At The Strand. Mary Miles Minter's latest photoplay, "Jenny Be Good," is the principal attraction at the Strand theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "Jenny Be Good" is the story of romance and youth which has its beginning in a tree-house. Jenny (Mary Miles Minter) and the hero, Royal Renshaw, are secretly married. When Royal's parents learn of this they send him off on a cruise and induce Jenny to have the marriage annulled. The heartless girl goes to New York to forget Royal and diligently applies herself to the art of playing the violin. At the patroness of Mrs. Rossiter-Jones, her patroness, where she is to give a private concert, she meets Royal and his wife, chosen for him by his parents. The story is full of pathos and intense situations, relieved by a vein of humor, which is very entertaining. It all ends very happily, but Jenny at the apex of her musical career gives it up at the command of love. "Jenny Be Good" is the photo-drama of the book by the same name, written by Wilbur Finley Fauley, well-known in the literary world as a contributor to various magazines and as the society editor of one of New York's principal dailies. The novel is one of the season's best sellers and the photo-drama follows the story very closely.—Advt.

At Griffin's. For to-day, Friday and Saturday, the management of this theatre has been fortunate in securing an ideal programme, which cannot fail to appeal to all classes of theatregoers. The ever-popular Wallace Reid heads the programme, in his noted picture "The Valley of the Giants." This is the kind of picture that the public love to see Wally in, and which gives him many opportunities to display his usual talents, and perform in his best manner. In "The Valley of the Giants" he plays another of those universally loved roles, which have made him the most popular male star on the screen. On the same programme we also show the ninth episode of "Pirate Gold," that unique serial starring Geo. E. Seltz and Marguerite Courtot, which depicts them in many strange situations. A splendid line of added attractions, including Prizmas, master pictures in nature coloring, go to make up one of the finest programmes to be seen in Kingston, and a Happy New Year is in store for all who see this bill. Don't miss it.—Advt.

KNIGHTS OF THE GRIP

Held Banquet At Randolph Hotel Wednesday Evening. The annual banquet of the Canadian Order, Knights of the Grip, was held at the Hotel Randolph on Wednesday evening, and was a most successful event. A. F. James, night chief gripman, presided, and Canon W. F. Fitzgerald, a guest of the evening, gave an excellent address in response to the toast "Canada and the Empire." A pleasing event was the presentation to High Chief Gripman James by his fellow members on the occasion of his retirement from office, of a silver tea service. During the evening, a very fine programme was given, including songs by Mrs. J. Evans, Miss Christine Black, violin solo by Miss Jean Douglas and a reading by Eva Newell. Dancing took place at the end of the programme.
