MORE CHRISTMAS EVENTS

Entertainments Held in St. George's and St. Paul's Sunday Schools.

The senior classes of St. George's Cathedral Sunday School were given their annual tea in the hall at 6.30 o'clock on Thursday evening, and it was a merry party of boys and girls who filled the long tables, laden with good things. At eight o'clock the programme, arranged by the teachers for the entertainment of the parents and friends of the school, began with a piano solo by R. R. F. Harvey, which was loudly applauded. St. George's troop of boy scouts, who are trained by Sergeant Midleton, R.M.C., gave camp fire songs, drills and signalling exhibitions. Two songs by boy soloists of the cathedral choir, Charles Smith and Arnold Fair, gave great pleasure to the audience. A minstrel show by some of the boys was very amusing. Alfred Fair, accompanied by Mr. Harvey, sang "Someone is Coming To-night," and brought forth such applause that he had to come back and sing again. A Christmas drill by the little girls, several recitations and a song, "O, Bethlehem," accompanied by Miss Marjell Hyland, a charming piano solo by Virginia Fair, song by Miss Isabel Hughes, an Irish dance by E. Fitzgerald, were among the most admired numbers. The dean congratulated Rev. E. Kidd and the teachers on their work and then the boys gave three rousing cheers for the dean, Rev. W. E. Kidd, and Mr. Harvey, in turn. The class prizes were presented and "God Save the King" brought a pleasant evening to a close.

St. Paul's Christmas Tree.

The Christmas tree for St. Paul's junior department Sunday school was held Thursday evening, and was a great success. Christmas carols were rendered splendidly by the children of infant and junior classes. Miss Mildred Hanson and Osman McKay gave splendid piano-forte pieces. The following gave recitations and songs: Helen Stanley, Edie Ashby, Pearl Ryan, Elinor Clarke, Eileen Loring, Eva Malloy, Heather Ryan, Helen Stanley, Winifred Boyne, Isabel White, Ivy Loring, Basil Ferguson, John Peters, Victor Kelly, Maude Cooke, May Ferguson, Sybil Stacey, Joy Jinks, Katie Day, Vera Loring, Daisy Ryan, Gladys Brown, Blanche Curran, Mildred McIlroy, Lorne Brislton, Allan Marshall.

Miss Saunders played accompaniments. The children reflected great credit on her and on Mrs. W. F. Fitzgerald for their pains with them. About 120 gifts were distributed. J. Smith was Santa Claus. The school room was well filled with happy people. Canon Fitzgerald presided.

At St. James'.

St. James' annual Christmas entertainment took place in the parish hall on Thursday evening, W. H. Dalby acting as chairman. The programme opened with a much enjoyed duet sung by Miss Hartrick and Miss Guild. Miss Marion Scrutton sang very sweetly, and Francis Rose played a violin solo. The recitations were by Herbert Hamilton, Myrtle Cair, Reginald Savary, and Miss Murray; choruses by Miss Roberts' class and Miss Elliott's class; dances by Miss Guild's class and Miss Sharpe's class; piano solo by Phyllis Andrew. A dialogue, "Mother Goose and Her Children," by Miss King's class, was much appreciated. A gentlemen's biscuit-eating contest was conducted by J. K. Carroll, Mr. Murray being the winner. During the evening Rev. T. W. Savary thanked Miss Goodfellow's class for going about the three nights before Christmas and singing carols. The class collected $26, which will be used to purchase some necessities for the new building. When the programme was finished, delicious refreshments were served. The evening was voted one of the merriest this season.

At Sydenham Street Church

The primary and junior departments of Sydenham street Methodist bible schools held their Christmas entertainments on Thursday afternoon. The children of the primary department assembled at the school at three o'clock where they played games and listened to some stories told by Miss Ferrier, the former superintendent of the department. The children had their Christmas tree, and each child was given a bag of candy. The junior department, of which Frank R. Anglin is the superintendent, held its entertainment commencing at six o'clock. Mr. Anglin was chairman, and the following programme was given: Piano Solo, Jean Taylor; Recitation, Agnes Ward; Recitation, Jack Halligan; Address, R. H. Ward; Vocal Solo, P. Rowland; Recitation, Edna Gerald; Address, Rev. W. T. G. Brown; Recitation, S. Mounster; Recitation, Myrtle McQueen; Christmas Story, Mrs. Mitchell. The teachers and many of the mothers worked all day Thursday preparing the banquet.

Bethel Christmas Tree.

Bethel Congregational Sunday School held its annual Christmas entertainment Thursday evening, when a large crowd of friends of the church and Sunday School enjoyed a splendid programme put on by the various departments of the school. The programme was followed by an old time Christmas tree. The school this year made an offering for the hospital.

COOKE'S ENTERTAINMENT

Prizes Presented by Santa Claus for Good Attendance.

On Wednesday evening Cooke's Sunday School presented its annual entertainment before a large and appreciative audience. The hall had been beautifully decorated by a committee of young folk, who made a veritable fairyland by means of evergreens and tinsel.

The programme commenced by a chorus by the primary department. The entire evening was virtually devoted to a demonstration of the entertaining abilities of various members of the school. Recitations by Jean Truscott, Cora Horne, Dorothy Dunlop, Dorothy Laird and Kathleen McKee were exceedingly well-rendered. Vocal numbers by Etta Donnelly and Hugh Brownhill, Billie Laird, Marguerite Lemmon, Edwin Moore, Mac Donnelly, and Miss Christine Diack were heard with much pleasure. Eldon Boyd rendered a piano solo, as also did Dorothy Laird, and Miss Jean Douglas entertained with a violin selection in her usual inimitable manner. The Mission Band very ably presented the dialogue "Christmas in Naughty Land," and the concluding number was a dialogue entitled "Writing Poetry," by the members of Miss Eason's class.

Santa Claus had arranged to be present in person, and he arrived in time to distribute the prizes for attendance. R. J. Diack, superintendent of the school, and D. A. Shaw, were present every Sunday of the year. Mr. Shaw's record is particularly commendable as he has not missed Sunday School in eight years. Other teachers present every Sunday but one include Miss McFarlane, Miss Myrtle Leishman, Miss Strickwood, Miss E. Newman and Mr. Anderson.

Scholars present every Sunday were, William Patterson, Jack Percival, David Donnelly, Karl Williamson, Donald Stewart, Dorothy Dunlop, Robert Patterson, Margaret Patterson, Wm. Percival, Robert Percival and Kathleen McKee. The last named little girl joined the school five years ago, and has never been absent now late in that period. Those present every Sunday but one were, Wallace Newman, Florence Newman, Sarah Connor, Eleanor Sim-
