Theatrical

At the Grand.
Eugene O'Brien, the popular Selick star, will be seen at the Grand to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday, in his latest release, "The Figure-head." The story of a rich young society man who is used by a gang of political "bosses" as a cat-paw, and who to the surprise of all concerned turns out to be the very man for the position, makes a strong play in which the star is seen to the best advantage. There is another extra good feature, "Dollars and a Winged Man," a Vitaphone picture starring Alice Joyce. This is a splendid story of the domestic problems that are met in our every-day life, and offers a solution to these as well as being one of the most delightful love stories ever screened. The star is supported by a specially selected cast, and the settings and photography are of the best. As well there are reels of comedies and other subjects and a special musical programme by the Grand's orchestra.—Advt.

"Winnipeg Kiddies."
Feel blue? Then go see the Original Winnipeg Kiddies who will bring the cream of the year's hits in a brand new 1920 Revue to the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Jan. 6th. Even better gowned than usual, with a magnificent setting that shows these off to better advantage, the thousands of admirers of these charming youngsters will find a new interest in them when they see them in this programme and elaborate setting. Much more comedy, jangling comedy patter, has been injected into the show which, though snappy before, is much more snappy now. There will be a special children's matinee at 4.15.—Advt.

"Babes in the Wood."
After a few weeks on "the road," during which the finishing touches necessary to make a perfect production, have been put on, F. Stuart Whyte will bring his fifth annual pantomime, "The Babes in the Wood," to the Grand Opera House, for a two-day return engagement opening Friday, Jan. 7th, with a special matinee on Saturday. Reports from cities where the attraction has been presented indicate that this season's production sets a new record for gorgeousness in scenic and costuming display as well as for the wealth of clean comedy and delightful English melodies included in the book and score. Among the featured members of this year's company are Wes Dorothy Mackay, Charles Cardell, Harriet Fawn, Betty Hare, Mona Warren, Tom Ellis, Reginald Hincks, and Victor Dyer, as well as a score of hand-picked British beauties.—Advt.

At Griffin's.
A gowny, girly, figureful diversion entitled "An Adventurer," will bring Julian Eltinge, famous female impersonator, to Griffin's for to-morrow and Wednesday. As a feature presents the first acting performed by Julian Eltinge in a long time, it is awaited with no little interest and impatience by the many who have enjoyed his work for the screen. Julian Eltinge has deservedly won for himself the reputation of being the best female impersonator on the American stage and his work in this picture bears out that reputation. As Madame Fedora, who stops the wicked plotters from restoring the monarch in the land of Alpania, he has a role which gives him ample opportunity to display his grace, charm and understanding of a woman's temperament, he goes through a series of experiences on the battlefield, in aeroplanes, and automobiles that would turn the ordinary man's hair grey. This unique feature and the balance of a well-selected programme make up a programme which cannot fail to please all who see it.—Advt.

At The Strand.
Have you ever felt the corroding effects of time? Do you feel old at thirty-five or thereabouts? Have you lost your youth? If so, how are you to regain it? If you don't know you should see Thomas Meighan in his latest, William DeMille Paramount picture, "Conrad in Quest of His Youth" which will be shown at the Strand theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This will do more for you than any physician can do. The picture is delightful and not only does the hero again regain the state of being he seeks, but no spectator who is becoming old can view the picture without feeling younger. The recipe for youth is discovered by Conrad is not the fabled elixir, nor does it lie in physical culture, but in love. After vainly endeavoring to revive his past romances, Conrad falls in love and with the realization that he is in love, come the restoration of his youth.
Margaret Loomis is leading woman and Kathryn Williams, Sylvia Ashton, Mabel Van Buren, Maym Kelso, Bertam Johns, Charles Ogle and other popular players appear in the cast.—Advt.

At The Allen.
What is said by experts to be one of the most convincing bits of double exposure photography ever perfected in motion pictures is seen in "Earthbound," the unusual spirit-photoplay produced by Goldwyn, from a story by the noted author, Basil King. In the final scene, the spirit of a murdered man, released by the forces that bound him to earth, walks slowly upward and onward over the mountains on the horizon, until his form fades from view into the great beyond. It is an affecting climax to a remarkable picture. It will be shown at Allen theatre for three days commencing to-day. Comedy—Pictorial and overture "Chu Chin Chow" by Allen concert orchestra completes a very attractive bill.—Advt.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Ex-Aid. Cohen's Thanks.
Kingston, Jan. 3.—(To the Editor): Please allow me some space in your valuable paper to express my sincere thanks to yourself for kind remarks, also Messrs. William Cook and J. M. Hughes for their letters to the press, and to my many friends, who came from all parts of the city to work and vote for me, and while you were not successful in putting me in as an alderman, you have certainly encouraged me to continue to be one of Kingston's good citizens.
Yours truly,
—ISAAC COHEN.
