Eleven Milk Vendors Fined and Twelve Cases Are Dismissed.

A good deal of Magistrate Farrell's time on the bench is taken up in hearing liquor cases, but it is not very often that he is called upon to deal with milk.

However, on Tuesday morning, a batch of milk vendors were summoned, some charged with selling milk without a license, and others with a breach of the by-law, in not keeping milk in a proper place. About an hour and a half was taken up in the hearing of the cases, and the grand summary showed that eleven vendors had been fined $1 and costs each, and twelve cases were dismissed. The fines imposed were for selling milk without a license, as in the other charges, Magistrate Farrell stated that there was not sufficient evidence to form a conviction for not having the milk kept in a "refrigerator or receptacle, and not exposed to the air or a sleeping room," as the by-law defines.

The case of Edward Stokes and John Hilyard, charged with assaulting and robbing William Shawcross on Dec. 3rd, had to be further enlarged, as the plaintiff is unable to appear in court.

Theatrical

"Babes in the Wood."

The annual engagement of F. Stuart Whyte's English pantomime at the Grand Opera House has become the outstanding event of the season with a great majority of local playgoers. Mr. Whyte brought his first company to Canada five years ago and each production since then has been more elaborate than its immediate predecessor. This season the fairy legend of "The Babes in the Wood" has been chosen as the background for Mr. Whyte to draw the series of brilliant, scenic and costuming displays, which, together with the usual bevy of stunning girls and abundance of clean comedy has made the name of this clever British producer stand for all that is wholesome in theatrical entertainments. "Babes in the Wood" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 7th and 8th, with a matinee on Saturday.—Adv.

"Winnipeg Kiddies."

What is the end of a perfect day? It is to see the original Winnipeg Kiddies in their brand new 1920 Revue, comprising the cream of the year's hits. They are coming to the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Jan. 6th. The same charming kids will be seen, a tiny bit bigger, but not a whit less childlike, yet more efficient—and they will be gowned even more expensively than before, and this time will be seen in a beautiful setting of their own. The Kiddies were forced out of their retirement by the demands of the public who wanted to see these kiddies again before they grew up into manhood and womanhood. There will be a special children's matinee at 4.15.—Adv.

At the Strand.

If you believe yourself to be old at thirty-five and that life has nothing further in store for you, you should see Thomas Melghan in William De Mille's splendid Paramount picture, "Conrad in Quest of His Youth," which opened a three days' engagement at the Strand theatre yesterday. Without telling the story in detail, I am privileged to tell you that the central idea of the story—that one never grows old when one loves—fills one with enthusiasm. At least it did the persons who saw the picture when I did. Conrad finds it impossible to travel the road back to seventeen, because there is none, but when he fell in love "presto" his vanished youth returned. The picture is an excellent one and well worth one's while to see. The settings are elaborate and the development of the story logically carried out. Mr. Melghan is supported by an unusually capable company, Margaret Loomis playing opposite him. There are Mabel Van Buren, Kathryn Williams, Sylvia Ashton and other artists, all of whom contribute their bit to make the picture artistically satisfying.—Adv.

At The Allen.

"No God, No sin, No future life. Nothing but the survival of the fittest, and every man for himself." That was the ruthless creed by which two men lived. They thought it had brought them success and riches until one of them was forced to sacrifice his wife upon the altar of that creed. Then he killed Dick Desborough, the man he had looked upon as his best friend, but Dick, even after death, was not free to progress. His spirit was forced to remain earth-bound until he was willing to be guided by the higher creed that "love is the great progressive force both in this world and what we call the next." That is the theme about which Basil King built the powerful story, "Earthbound," which critics have recognized as the greatest and most impressive screen production ever attempted. In showing "Earthbound" at this theatre today we feel that we are offering the supreme achievement of motion picture art. It is an event which no one who thinks in the higher terms of life can afford to miss.—Adv.

At Griffin's

Julian Eltinge Famous impersonator delighted the audience at Griffin's last evening who saw him in "The Adventurer" his first picture since his prolonged absence from the screen. This is a novel attraction, and quite different from the usual run of pictures. The impersonator provides some rare fun, and his acting is of the highest order. Julian Eltinge has been called "the most beautiful woman on the screen" and this title is upheld to the highest degree in this picture. "The Adventurer" is a splendid attraction and cannot fail to appeal to all theatregoers. On the same programme is shown the 6th episode of that fascinating serial "The Branding Iron," which enjoys such a large following of Griffin patrons. The "stunts" performed in this episode provide many thrills, and an enthusiastic reception was accorded this picture last evening. The Voice-A-VII Movies, and the balance of our programme is also of a high class order, and should attract a large audience for this evening and to-morrow.—Adv.
