"The Boy" Tonight. Of quite another brand is the entertainment to be offered at the Grand Opera House tonight, and Saturday matinee and night. "The Magistrate," that somewhat out-of-date farce written 34 years ago by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, has been set to music to make an appeal to theatregoers of a new generation. Under the title of "The Boy," London's sensational musical comedy success, the hilarious fun of "The Magistrate" will be brought back to us. It will be recalled that "The Magistrate" possesses a very funny second act, where in a judge, his "14," really 19-yearold stepson, a wife, her ex-suitor and a sister-in-law are caught in a raid on a notorious hotel. In the cast of musical comedy favorites to be seen here are Marie Dilworth, Clyde Dilson, Mabelle Mignon, Cosmo Bellew, Lillian Lee Anderson, Donald Archer, Gene Laymon, and others.-Advt.

At Griffin's.

Standing room only was the order of last evening when "Riley" and his company presented for the first time their newest play. This is the funniest imaginable, and deals with "Riley" and his friend, "Sweeney's" attempt to get into a girls' boarding school, posing as girls, when in reality they are escaped convicts. All d have gone well had not the theriff entered on the scene. They make a hurried exit, and cause much merriment. Queen's Staff Wins From Theologues

One of the most amusing games of the season was played at the covered rink Thursday afternoon when teams represented Queen's University staff and the students of theology battled for honors. Although the "theologues" strove hard to win, the "Profs" put it over them to the tune of 10-0. A large crowd of students was present to see the "event" of the season and were loud in their applause. The professors, after seeing the brand of play they were up against, apparently decided that a goal tender was unnecessary, as the goal guardian's pads were to be seen decorating the nets, while Prof. Ellis was forward playing with the goal stick. For the "preachers". Donaldson was doing his best to save the day, at imes dropping, the "slab" in his excitement to attempt a baseball catcher's stop of the puck. He certainly had the pade on the right way to keep down the score the way he did. Blacklock at centre played the best game for the losers. Some of the "preachers" showed lack of practice, but with a few years more experience ught to be able to skate, to say nothing of playing hockey. Their defence worked hard, but as the staft were in their territory most of the
