THREE-YEAR ARTS COURSE

To Be Recommended to Reduce Expenses of the Universities.

Toronto, Feb. 17.—The royal commission on university finances has recommended no radical changes in the relation of Toronto, Queen's and Western universities to one another, or to the provincial government, it is understood. The University of Toronto will continue as the provincial university, while Queen's and Western will receive, as in the past, annual grants from the government. The principals of decentralization of education has been approved by the commission, it is believed, but its application will not affect the inter-relation of the three universities so much as it will the relation of the high school to the university.

Three Year Art Course.
The chief proposal in this direction is understood to be the transfer of the first year of the arts course from the sphere at the university to that of the local collegiate and high school, thus presumably making the university course one of three years instead of four.

The decentralization scheme has not been adopted unqualifiedly, however, it is understood, since the commission will probably recommend the concentration in the provincial university at Toronto of the higher branches of graduate and research work, and possibly even the work of the engineering and applied science faculty as well.

When appearing before the commission, the representatives of Queen's and Western approved the principle of centering certain forms of graduate and research work in Toronto, so this proposal will raise no great trouble. Western has no engineering department, but Queen's has a well-established school of mining and undoubtedly would protest very loudly at any attempt to curb its future development.

Financial Assistance.
As for the financial assistance which the universities at Kingston and London will receive, no definite figures are yet available, but it is understood that very sweeping reductions will be made in the financial budgets submitted by those two colleges. It is believed that the commission has recommended that Varity be given fifty per cent. of the succession duties in order to provide it with definite and growing source of revenue. The commission, while acknowledging the government's responsibility to Queen's and Western, will probably suggest that they continue to receive their support in the form of annual fixed grants.

The report of the commission is now in the hands of the printers and will probably be tabled in the house next week.

Birth Rate in England Highest on Record

London, Feb. 17.—Births in England and Wales during 1920 reached the highest figure ever recorded, and the death rate was the lowest, according to an official report of the Registrar-General. The birth rate per thousand of the total population was 25.44, and the death rate was 12.4. The deaths of infants under the age of one year were 80 per thousand.

DEAD BEFORE HOME BURNS

rancy. On the way to Napanee, on the next day he questioned in regard to the fire. "He told me he had gone to Mrs. Jackson's on the day of the fire and on his return home found his wife burning up in the house." Witness said he had gone to the scene of the fire with Thomas Forsythe and found the house was completely destroyed. The cellar was 16x20 feet and in the west corner were human bones. Found a sill in the cellar that must have been thrown in. He saw a vacant spot from which the sill had been removed. The bones were badly broken up. It was possible that the bones were broken by people walking on them, but they were in the corner of the cellar, witness saw a stove in the west end of the cellar about two feet from the bones, but did not think the bones could have been broken by the stove. He had spent three weeks on the investigation.

On cross-examination witness said did not know the technical names of the bones found. Said he thought the stove probably fell into the cellar first and then the body.

This concluded the evidence for the prosecution.
It was contended by J. M. Simpson that the crown has not proved a case against the prisoner. His lordship said he did not see his way to do this and that the case must be given to the jury.

Evidence for Defence.
Council for the accused then addressed the jury. He told them that Young was not at the house at the time of the fire; had been away all afternoon. The first thing in a murder case is to prove that a murder has been done. He intended to prove to the gentlemen of the jury that as husband and wife the Youngs go along well together. The first witness for the defence was then called and sworn.

Dr. Dobbie, chief physician of Weston Free Hospital, said he remembered having a patient named Ellen Arch. She came from Madoc and was suffering from a pulmonary disease. She was admitted to the hospital, July 2nd, 1911, and on Oct. 18th, 1912, discharged because she left of her own accord. Her habits were rather simple-minded with an occasional show of temper. She came from a reformatory to them. She was not very robust and her disease might develop into consumption. In answer to J. M. Simpson, witness said consumption may produce an affection of the heart that would prove fatal. In answer to the counsel for the prosecution, James Hutchinson, Brockville, witness said consumption might produce a hemorrhage, which would cause sudden death, especially after some sudden strain.

Mrs. Jennie Kellar said her maiden name was Tina Rodger. Her mother, (the deceased Mrs. James Young), married for the second time, Edward Ash and was sent to the reformatory for marrying Ash, from there she was sent to Weston hospital. She did not know if she was properly discharged from that institution. Her mother was married again to James Young, and they got along very well. Witness stayed with them for a month in 1918. Her mother was weak and suffered from consumption. She saw them again in 1919. They were not quarrelsome. James Young carried the water and wood, and witness' mother did the house work.
Mrs. Dora Gifford, sister of previous witness, gave similar evidence. She said James Young and her mother got along well and seemed to have everything they needed. She had plenty of nourishing food and the two seemed to be fond of each other.
Dr. John D. Willoughby gave some evidence in regard to anatomy as did Dr. R. A. Leonard, Napanee.

At 9.30 p.m. court adjourned until 9.30 o'clock on Thursday morning.

James—Grant Wedding.
Miss Beatrice E. Grant, youngest daughter of the late James Grant, Sydenham, was quietly married at the old homestead on Wednesday, Feb. 16th, by George Stafford, to Alva F. James, of Kingston. The bride was dressed in a moire poplin gown of ashes of roses shade trimmed with gold lace and carried a shower bouquet of roses. She was given away by her brother, Barnabas. After the ceremony dinner was served and the party spent a pleasant hour in social intercourse. The bride went away in a broadcloth suit of reindeer shade with hat to match and wearing the groom's gift, a necklace set with whole pearls. She received a number of handsome presents, among them being substantial cheques from her brothers. Mr. and Mrs. James took the four o'clock train west and were given a royal send-off by the Women's Institute which turned out in a body to shower them with confetti and good wishes.

ESCAPED LYNCHING

Negro Asked Mob to Pray First—Crowd Changed Its Mind.
Clyde, Ga., Feb. 17.—Negro possumen who came to shoot, remained to pray here last night at their prisoner's call. This ended plans for a lynching and Israel Waters, negro, charged with having attacked a school girl of his own race, and captured by a posse of white and negro residents, went to jail instead. The whites turned Waters over to the negroes for punishment following his capture. He said today he had been stood up to be shot, and when he asked the brethren to pray for him, the mob changed its mind about the shooting.
