Mrs. W. A. Jones, University avenue, gave a charming house dance for her sister, Miss Gwendolen Wood, London, on Friday evening. Mrs. Jones, who received in the drawing room, wore a handsome gown of rose colored tulle, with gold lace bodice and knots of French flowers. Miss Wood, who received with her, was frocked in blue satin of the palest hue embroidered in silver. The dining room was turned into a sitting out place, made most attractive with rose shaded lights, deep seats and fragrant spring blossoms. A buffet supper was served at midnight, and afterwards dancing was continued till the merry party broke up.

The ladies of Sydenham street Methodist church have been digging deep into their own chests and into those of their friends, to find garments in which to appear at their entertainment in aid of the Chinese Famine fund. A dress worn at Queen Victoria's coronation has been unearthed and another worn when Edward VII was in Toronto in 1860 as the Prince of Wales. A bonnet last worn ninety years ago by a girl in her twenties, will re-appear in aid of the starving millions of the eastern empire.

So many visitors took advantage of the knowledge that Mrs. R. K. Kilborn, King street, was receiving on Friday afternoon, that her charming rooms, where open fires and fragrant flowers added their welcome to that of the hostess and her daughter, were filled with a constant stream of visitors. Miss Grace McKee made the tea in the dining room, where sweet peas and primulae centred the table, and Miss Laura Kilborn assisted her in seeing the visitor's wants were supplied.

Mrs. James Caggon entertained at luncheon at the Country Club on Friday in honor of Miss Kathleen Carruthers. The table was lovely with golden daffodils and the guests were: Mrs. P. G. C.
