TELLS OF HER AIRFLIGHT INCIDENTS OF THE DAY

Gertie Thornley, Formerly of Kingston, Writes in English School Paper.

A former young pupil of Victoria school, Gertie Thornley, who is a niece of "Teddy" Green, of the city engineer's department, had a trip in an aeroplane and in The Aurburnian, the organ of the Auburn Superior Public School, in England, has an interesting account of the trip made by herself. Gertie Thornley will be remembered by her former school chums here. It is of interest to note that Gertie was fortunate enough to win a competition, thus gaining a fly over Sydney. In her write-up Gertie, who is an address on The Aurburnian, says:

"I have set myself a very difficult task when I attempt to describe my thoughts and feelings while the aeroplane I was in hovered 2,500 feet above Mother Earth. I and the other eight-winners were driven by motor to Mascott Aerodrome, and during the drive I learnt that there is a part of N.S.W. which is muddier than Auburn is. After waiting a little the aeroplane and pilot were ready. We donned some heavy fur-lined caps and a pair of goggles each and were ready. At last we climbed up into position. The propeller turned round and round, faster each time, until I felt quite breathless and, at last, with a zip, zip, the aeroplane commenced to move at a pace of thirty-seven miles an hour across the field, and looking over the side we saw that we were gradually rising. O! the feelings that passed through me during those first few seconds in the air, more than I would feel in a whole week of common school life. To feel that only a few thin planks of metal and wood separated me from space; that if anything happened, I would fall down, down, down, and there would be nothing to stay me in my fall.

"Far below us was spread out Sydney and its surroundings. The ships bobbed inside and out the heads, seemed but toys. At an angle, the houses seemed like miniature doll's houses, while straight beneath were like ant hills; while winding creeks and rivers were as silver threads and the waters of the sea as sheets of green waves sparkling in the sun. Even the largest objects seemed quite small. It was so seemed very windy and cold with the kind of cold windiness which is said to seeth your teeth on edge and make every part of you freezing cold. While in the air we were travelling at seventy-five miles an hour but only the cold draught of the propeller in our faces, the whirr of the engines, and the flying landscape, told us that we moved. Several times the pilot banked one of the wings and at those times I at least held tight; indeed at one time it turned completely over on one side and then we both held tight.

"Looking down upon the earth a thousand different shades of coloring presented themselves to the eye. We had a glorious view—the sun shone brightly and everything in earth and sky was lovely and alive with color. But this happy aerial party could not last forever, and at last the aeroplane commenced the downward glide and left the enchanted regions of the air. When we got down to terra firma we were snapped by several cameras and were both given a souvenir to remind us in future years of our first flight."

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; colds which put his little system out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHEESEMAKERS' CLASSES

At Dairy School Close—Makers Now Better Qualified.

The cheesemakers' classes at the dairy school closed Saturday and the members of the classes who attended derived much benefit from the opportunity given them to hear the lectures given by Prof. L. A. Zuehl and Inspector G. G. Pablow on important practical problems of cheese manufacture and marketing. All matters having a direct bearing on present day methods of manufacture were taken up, and valuable demonstrations to illustrate new approved methods were given. Many of those present in the classes are, in consequence of the week's course, better qualified to take up the work at the opening of the season and a general improvement in quality of output will doubtless be observed. Some of them will be better inspectors. Certificates, however, are not issued except to those who take the entire course, pass the prescribed examinations, both written and practical, have at least six months experience in a cheese factory or creamery before taking the course and, later, by giving proof of ability to successfully manage a factory or creamery, by having at least one season's experience as a manager, after passing the required examinations. Each applicant for a certificate will be visited during the factory season, and he and his work reported on by some person selected for this purpose by the superintendent of the school.
