URGE THE PEOPLE TO BUY WAR ARTIST'S STORIES

Canadian-made Goods—Resolution of the Local Board of Trade.

The council of the Board of Trade met on Friday afternoon, with President J. M. Campbell in the chair. Resolutions are to be drafted and sent to the members for Kingston and the county stating that the board is against the new proposals in regard to the Workman's Compensation Act and the Mechanics' Lien Act which have been submitted to the Ontario government.

The resolution regarding Canadian-made goods to be sent to the federal and Ontario governments reads:

"Whereas the increasing imports and decreasing exports, together with the resultant exchange situation, and to provide steady employment for our Canadian industries and transportation systems renders it necessary that some action be taken to draw the attention of the people of Canada to the necessity of purchasing goods manufactured in Canada.

"Therefore be it resolved that the Kingston Board of Trade do urge the Dominion and provincial governments to give the preference to Canadian-made goods in their purchases for departmental needs and to organize strong educational and publicity campaigns throughout the Dominion, urging upon all to conserve their resources, and to buy Canadian-made goods only, and to largely support Canadian industries; and, further, that copies of this resolution be forwarded to all the governments concerned and the boards of trade and chambers of commerce throughout Canada."

Of His Experiences While Painting Portraits of Great Generals.

London, March 19.—"An onlooker in France," by Sir William Orpen, which was published yesterday gives, besides a large number of war sketches and portraits of famous warriors, a breezy and unconventional account of his experiences as a war artist. When Sir William was painting Marshal Haig the latter said:

"Why waste your time painting me? Go and paint the men, they're the fellows who are saving the world, and they're getting killed every day."

In August, 1914, Sir William went south to paint Marshal Foch.

"He would certainly sit; how long did I want him? For an hour and a half each day for four or five days? Certainly. When did I wish to start, the next day? Certainly; he would sit from 7 a.m. to 8.30 a.m. for as many mornings as I wished. Might he smoke while he sat? Yes, 'bon'."

During all the time Foch was sitting great battles were going on and the Germans were being driven back.

"News was brought to him about every ten minutes. If it was good, he would say 'bon'; if it was bad, he just made a strange noise by forcing the air out through his lips."

Painting of General Plumber's portrait was enlivened by the fears of his batman that the artist would not do "the Governor" justice. Sir William writes:

"When I got the General the way I wanted him, the batman leaned over my shoulder and said: 'Is the Governor right now?'"

"Perfectly," I replied.

"No, he ain't," said he, "not by a long chalk," and he went over to the General and started pulling out the creases in his tunic and said: 'Ere, you just sit up proper, not all unched up the way you are. What would her ladyship say if I let you be painted that way?'"

After the armistice Sir William was summoned to Paris to paint the Peace Conference. This is his impression of the scene at the Quai d'Orsay.

"For a seat I was usually perched up on a window sill. It was amusing to sit there and listen to Clemenceau, Le Tigre, putting the fear of death into the delegates of the smaller nations if they talked too long. President Wilson occasionally rose and spoke of love and forgiveness. Lloyd George just went on, working, his secretaries constantly rushing up to him, whispering and departing, only to return for more whispers. Mr. Balfour, whose personality made all the other delegates look common, 'would quietly sleep.'"

How other sitters impressed the artist is related with candor. Balfour came for a sitting at about 12.15 p. m.

"He was sound asleep by 12.35 p. m., but woke up sharp at 1 p. m., and left for lunch."

President Wilson "was very genial and sat well, but even then he was very nervous and twitchy. He told endless stories, mostly harmless and some witty."

An immense demonstration against Irish-German activities was held at Madison Square mass meeting in New York Friday night.

George Cook, Toronto, photographer, was held up by thugs in his studio and robbed of nine dollars.

Arson and murder are rampant in Galway, Ireland. Families flee from Clifden because of lawlessness.

NO. 20 C.O.C.F. OBSERVE
32ND ANNIVERSARY

By a Social Gathering in Orange Hall on Friday Evening.

The thirty-second anniversary of the organizing of Kingston Council, No. 20, Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, was fittingly celebrated by the members at a gathering held in their lodge room in the Orange hall on Friday evening. There was a large turnout of members and invited guests. The members had with them for the occasion, W. H. Montague, Hamilton, grand recorder, and Dr. J. H. Bell, Hamilton, grand medical examiner, and both gave interesting addresses, regarding the work of the order.

An excellent programme of music was given and refreshments were served. William Pillar acted as chairman.

The musical programme included selections by Salsbury's orchestra, solos by Mrs. John Evans, Mr. Kerr and a quartette composed of young ladies. The various numbers were warmly applauded.

Her Limitations.
She was giving orders at express rate, for they were a married couple. He—poor man—was, as a rule, the most submissive of men.

But even a cab-horse will turn. Throwing out his manly chest, until he nearly lost sight of it under the stubble on his chin, he brought his fist down with great gentleness upon the table.

"Do you think, my dear," he ventured, "that you rule the whole universe?"

"No," she snapped, "but I rule the first letter of it!"

Soused But Sprightly.
Ray Baker, still hanging on as director of the mint, makes the latest contributions to the literature of conviviality. Two clubby inebriates had reached the maudlin stage. The following conversation ensued:

"You know George Thomas?"

"Yes; what's his name?"

"Who?"

ROBERTS—Entered into rest, at 85 Division street, Kingston, Ont., on March 18th, Jessie Edward, widow of the late E. T. Roberts.

Funeral notice later.

SMITH—At St. John, Quebec, on Friday, March 18th, 1921, Leslie Smith, the dearly loved son of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. C. W. Smith, aged six years and ten months. Deeply mourned.

Funeral from Outer Station to Cataract Cemetery on Monday afternoon, on arrival of the International Limited.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our baby, Eva Grace Belle Wickham, who died March 20th, 1920, aged 17 months.

One year ago our deepest sorrow came. We almost fell beneath it, so bitter was the strain.

No one knows the bitter heartache. No one but God can tell.

The pain and grief we have suffered at the loss of the babe we loved so well.

But the God that gave has taken. To Heaven our darling one.

Although our hearts are broken. Thy will, O Lord, be done.

A father's pride, a mother's care. Came in this world our joys to share.

She was not long here to remain. Till God called her home again.

Sadly missed by mother and father.
