PRINCIPLES OF ROTARY

An Address to the Kingston Club by George Bridgen, Toronto.

The members of the Kingston Rotary Club had the pleasure of listening to a splendid address on "Rotary" at Thursday's luncheon, held in the British-American hotel, when George Bridgen, president of Bridgen's Ltd., Toronto, and past president of the Toronto Rotary Club, was the speaker. He delivered a forceful and most inspiring address on the principles of Rotary.

"You have entered the portals of one of the most wonderful organizations," said the speaker. "It is an organization which has won the respect and admiration of every right-thinking man in this country and if you are to retain that respect and admiration, it is necessary that you should exercise the greatest care in the selection of your members, for upon the standard of these members will depend the standard on which your club is operated. It is very important that you should select strong-minded men—men of sound principles and strong will, men who have the will to put into action the ideas and principles which they believe to be right. Select men who will develop—men who will stand for what is right and good, and above all things, select men of integrity and of unblemished reputation. Get men of high calibre.

"The democracy of Rotary is very wide. Rotary never was, is not now, and never will be, solely a rich man's club. 'Service' is the keynote of Rotary. Rotary carries the idea of service. A Rotarian not only carries it into his own home and business, but to his community, and to everyone he comes in contact with. He meets everyone in common brotherhood. Rotary is the centre of influence for all that is good in the building up of the highest standards of life. Rotary needs men of refinement, men of character, logical, sound, practical, broad-minded and unselfish men who will work for the best things in their community."

The speaker pointed out that the members of the Rotary Club should take an active interest in civic matters. And if they could not find the time to take an active interest, they should have representatives and give them all the support possible. Rotarians should create and give happiness.

"The true meaning of Rotary is 'service.' And this service can only be given through the highest efficiency. All this requires organization. The emblem of Rotary is a wheel. Each member is a spoke in this wheel, called upon to do duty, while the rim of the wheel is regarded as 'service.' And the results will come from the individual efforts of the members: A Rotarian cannot be a good Rotarian outside of his business, unless he is a good Rotarian in his business. Rotary has an atmosphere which breeds strong and successful men, far-seeing men, men who stand out like the tall trees of the forest and withstand the high winds. Rotary makes men who are on the square and who demand a square deal for everyone. They stand for home, country and God."

In concluding his address, Rotarian Bridgen stated that he felt sure that the Kingston Club would measure up to the requirements of Rotary. He wished the Kingston club every possible success.

DO YOU WANT TO BE WELL DRESSED?

Is there anything more annoying than to find a Suit of Clothes, after a few weeks' wear, losing its shape and becoming sloppy in appearance?
The fact that a suit looks well when first tried on does not mean that it will keep its shape. An experienced presser and a hot iron work wonders with almost any suit, but a Suit must have more than pressing to keep it in shape permanently.

Quality of material used in a suit, the correctness of the tailoring, the workmanship, particularly the part which is not seen, and the trimming, play very important parts in the shape retaining qualities of a Suit.

You Sir, who are thinking of buying a new suit, examine closely the make and trimmings of any suit you may see. Come and examine our clothing and see if you do not agree with us that the old established firm always gives you the best values.
